SOUTH FAVORS BAN ON COTTON FOR NEXT YEAR

Asks State Legislatures for Laws to Enforce Long Proposal.

CONFERENCE IS HELD BY PRODUCING AREAS

Caraway Plan for Purchase of 8,000,000 Bales by U. S. Is Indorsed.

New Orleans, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—State Legislatures of the South were called upon today by the New Orleans cotton conference to pass acts to prevent the planting of cotton in 1932.

The conference also adopted a proposal of United States Senator Thaddeus Caraway, of Arkansas, that the Federal Farm Board purchase 8,000,000 bales of cotton at a price above the present market to be allocated to those farmers who agree not to plant any cotton next year, and to be sold at the farmers' orders and for their benefit.

Gov. Huey P. Long, who called the conference in an effort to find relief from the overproduction and low price of cotton, was chosen chairman of a standing steering committee with authority to choose his associates later. The conference then adjourned sine die.

It was attended by more than 1,000 men and women, including three governors, two United States senators, half a dozen United States representatives and many Southern State officials.

Plan Held Constitutional.

Gov. Long, explaining his proposal, said he obtained it from Representative John Sandlin, of the Fourth Louisiana District. It would prohibit by State law the planting or gathering of any cotton during the year. He asserted it was constitutional and necessary and called on the conference to adopt it.

On motion of J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture of Texas, a special committee was appointed to meet in executive session to report back to the full conference.

The committee approved resolutions of indorsement of the Long plan and the Caraway plan, and both were accepted by the conference by an overwhelming oral vote.

After adjournment, Gov. Long said he would call a special session of the Louisiana Legislature "very soon" to act on the recommendations. Other governors, he said, would be urged to follow suit.

Under the conference resolution, none of the legislative acts would become binding unless similar legislation "shall be adopted by States producing not less than three-fourths of the cotton grown in the United States."

The conference voted down in a roar of "noes" a minority report of Mr. McDonald, providing for Southern States legislative action reducing the 1932 cotton area by one-third.

When the commissioner offered his minority report, Gov. Long, who was presiding, said:

"We are going to vote that down."

And the conference yelled a roar of noes that drowned out the ayes.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Stone, of the Farm Board, said yesterday the board favored "any sound, workable plan" of adjusting cotton production to consumption and reducing the surplus. He declined, however, to comment on the plans of Gov. Huey Long and Senator Caraway adopted yesterday by the New Orleans cotton conference.

Carl Williams, cotton member of the board, said: "The action of the conference shows the South is thinking about the necessity for reducing production."

The purchase of 8,000,000 bales of cotton at 8 cents a pound would entail an expenditure of $320,000,000. The board was given $500,000,000 by Congress. Approximately $105,000,000 has been invested in the purchase of 1,300,000 bales in price-stabilization operations.

South Carolina to Vote On Cotton Plan at Once

New Orleans, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—South Carolina may be the first State to act on the plan to prohibit cotton-growing. Gov. Blackwood of South Carolina tonight said he would call a special session of his State Legislature almost immediately to consider the Long plan.

Arkansas, Oklahoma, Georgia and perhaps Texas will follow with some definite action soon, according to representatives of those States, although they did not commit themselves to special sessions.

Careless Clerk Startles Treasury With Alarm

A thoughtless clerk electrified the Treasury Building both literally and figuratively yesterday just before the department closed for the night. Turning the knob of a safe in one office before shutting the door, a general alarm sounded through the building.

Guards posted in the corridors about the building jumped to alert. As usual when the alarm sounds, no one was allowed to leave the room in which he happened to be when the alarm sounded. The trouble was soon discovered and comparative calm was restored.

DEATH FIGURES BACK HOOVER RELIEF VIEW

President Cites Decrease as Proving Voluntary Aid Has Been Adequate.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

To show that relief organizations successfully handled physical distress among the victims of unemployment last winter, President Hoover yesterday called attention to the high standard of health in the Nation.

Using figures supplied by the Public Health Service, the President pointed out that the public health for the first six months of 1931—January to July—was unusually good, even better than it was in the first half of 1928, a period when jobs were plentiful.

President Hoover yesterday also announced that 52 men and women had accepted places on the advisory committee to the new unemployment relief organization. He had asked 60 to serve. Two asked to be excused because of illness and six were away on vacations.

In accepting places on the advisory committee, some of the appointees wired the President fervent promises of cooperation.

Martin A. Carmody, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, sent the President the following message:

"Personally and for Knights of Columbus, I am pleased to accept appointment and serve loyally my President in his earnest endeavors to aid the unemployed and alleviate suffering. I pledge to Your Excellency the wholehearted support and cooperation of the 2,500 subordinate councils and 500,000 members of the Knights of Columbus in the United States."

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., who will direct the unemployment relief organization, is expected to arrive in Washington this morning. In the forenoon, he will accompany the President to the latter's Rapidan camp, where the two will discuss relief plans over the week-end.

President Hoover made public figures yesterday indicating a big increase in the number of persons given employment by the Federal Government through construction and maintenance work.

At the beginning of the depression, he said, the number directly and indirectly so employed was 180,000. This time last year the number had increased to 430,000, and by August 1 last, it had jumped to 760,000.

That number, the President said, probably will increase in the autumn with the increased activity in the construction of roads built with Federal aid. The road building will decrease in the cold months, he said, but in the meantime work on public buildings will have increased. The President said that by January 1, between 80,000 and 100,000 more men will be employed directly or indi-

UTILITY CHIEF'S FUND TRANSFER PLEA REJECTED

Chicago Head of Capital Gas Company Loser in Meeting Here.

REQUEST UNEXPECTED BY DISTRICT OFFICERS

Magnate and Aid Surprised by Summons of Board for September 21.

Albert E. Peirce, of Chicago, president of the Central Public Service Corporation, flanked by two attorneys and George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., argued unsuccessfully with officials of the Public Utilities Commission two hours yesterday afternoon for rescinding of the latter's recent order restraining the local utility from transferring money to the Central Public Service Corporation or its subsidiaries.

Visit of Mr. Peirce to the District building was as much a surprise to the commission as was the utilities body's subpena served on the utility magnate earlier in the day.

Following the executive conference Harleigh H. Hartman, acting chairman of the commission, stated that the commission had no intention of withdrawing its order. The parley, he declared, dealt only with this aspect of the investigation into the ownership of the Washington gas companies.

Second Surprise Sprung.

Mr. Peirce issued a typewritten statement defending at length his contention that the utilities order be withdrawn.

Another surprise was sprung by William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, who is gathering evidence for the suit against the Central Public Service Corporation, when he had a subpena served on Fred S. Burroughs, vice president of Chase, Harris & Forbes, New York bankers, as he was leaving the conference. Mr. Burroughs is also a director of the Washington Gas Light Co. The summons merely called for the presence of Mr. Burroughs at the hearing scheduled for September 21.

Chase, Harris & Forbes were principal bankers of the Seaboard Investment Trust, former owners of the local gas companies, and are believed to be involved in the deal which transferred 84 per cent of the stock to the Central Public Service Corporation.

Yesterday morning Mr. Peirce was served with subpenas by a United States marshal at the Carlton Hotel just as he was leaving to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co.

All Records Required.

He was ordered to appear at both the gas pressure and the gas ownership hearings and to produce at that time all of the stock and financial records in his possession belonging to the Washington Suburban companies, the Westfield Trust, the Central Public Service Corporation or to himself relating to control of the local gas concerns.

This surprise move so disrupted Mr. Peirce's schedule that the directors' meeting was postponed first until the afternoon and then until last night. Several phases of the commission's investigation of the gas companies' control were scheduled to be discussed, but there was no announcement of any action from officials.

Subpenas served on Mr. Peirce and Mr. Burroughs were issued under a section of the public utilities act which authorizes the commission to compel attendance and production of records at a hearing. The penalty is $100 a day fine. This action may be supported in any Federal court.

The order which Mr. Peirce sought to have rescinded was issued August

SPAIN, ANGERED BY 2 PRELATES, PRODS VATICAN

Protest Follows Seizure of Papers; Cardinal and Bishop Involved.

PIUS IS GIVEN 5 DAYS TO DENY KNOWLEDGE

Note Demands He Also State Church Attitude Toward Republican Regime.

Madrid, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux today protested to Pope Pius XI against the activities of Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura y Saenz and Bishop Mugica of Vitoria.

The protest included an ultimatum allowing the Holy See five days in which to explain whether it had knowledge of documents recently taken from a Catholic cleric on the border, it was announced tonight.

The documents were said by government officials to have been found on Justo Antonio Echeguren, vicar general of Vitoria, who was detained at San Sebastian last Friday while on his way to visit the exiled Bishop Mugica.

Protest Forwarded by Nuncio.

The government's protest has been forwarded to the Vatican by Mgr. Federico Tedeschini, papal nuncio at Madrid.

Minister of Interior Miguel Maura said antigovernment feeling in the northern provinces was running high under Catholic and Basque Nationalist inspiration, and the government had decided to send several batteries of artillery and three divisions of troops there as a precautionary measure.

The minister announced the troops would merely go through maneuvers in the hope this would exercise a tranquilizing effect.

Senor Maura said the Papal Nuncio had told him the Vatican had no knowledge of the documents seized at San Sebastian. Nevertheless, the minister declared, the government wanted the Vatican's own confirmation, and this was the reason for the ultimatum.

Removal Reported Asked.

The seized documents advised the Spanish clergy, Senor Maura said, to dispose of church property and send the money abroad.

The protest was made in the course of a secret conference with Mgr. Federico Tedeschini, Papal Nuncio at Madrid. The newspaper La Voz said tonight it had learned authoritatively the government had demanded the removal of the cardinal primate and of the exiled Bishop Mugica from their Spanish charges.

The newspaper asserted the foreign minister informed Mgr. Tedeschini it was indispensable that the Holy See immediately define its attitude toward the Spanish republic.

The government announced that firearms factories in several northern cities had been seized and would be held until the situation was again tranquil.

U. S. to Intervene In Dam Labor Row

Doak Sends Two to Seek End to Dispute Over Workers' Pay.

(Associated Press.)

Labor Department intervention in disputes between employes and contractors at Hoover Dam was announced yesterday by Secretary Doak.

The Secretary said the State employment director at Reno, Nev., and Commissioner of Conciliation E. H. Fitzgerald, of Los Angeles, had been instructed to go to Las Vegas and assist in settling labor troubles.

In a letter to President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, who had transmitted a complaint from the Las Vegas Central Labor Union, the Secretary said the Hoover Dam project did not come under the "prevailing rate law," which now applies to all Federal contracts.

WHEAT IS BARTERED FOR BRAZIL COFFEE

Farm Board Effects Exchange With South American Government.

(Associated Press.)

Two nations oppressed by excessive agricultural production yesterday sought a partial solution of a mutual problem by the simple expedient of exchanging portions of their surplus crops.

An agreement was signed under which 25,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat will be bartered for 1,050,000 bags of coffee held by the Brazilian government.

Just as a huge surplus of wheat has accumulated in the United States a tremendous supply of coffee has piled up in the South American country.

The wheat which is to be exchanged was bought by the Farm Board's grain stabilization corporation in the open market as part of a plan for maintaining wheat prices at a level which would return a profit to the farmer. The Brazilian coffee involved was acquired by that government in a similar effort to assist the planters.

The agreement was signed at the Brazilian Embassy by Ambassador de Lima and George S. Milnor, president of the stabilization corporation, concluding negotiations quietly conducted for several months.

Milnor signed the agreement Thursday before returning to Chicago. Chairman Stone, of the Farm Board, and corporation officials were present yesterday when the Ambassador completed the negotiations with his signature.

In addition to the 1,050,000 bags of coffee involved in the exchange agreement, 225,000 bags will be given the Bush Terminal Co., of New York, by Brazil for grading, handling and storing the coffee without expense to the Stabilization Corporation. Further, the agreement provides that the coffee shall not be offered for sale in this country until the fall of 1932 and then will be released in monthly allotments of 62,500 bags to avoid disturbance to the coffee trade. A bag holds 132 pounds.

The United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, imported 1,728,569,297 pounds of coffee with a value of $192,819,538. Usually between 65 and 70 per cent of American imports

Clark Jury Deadlocked After 24 Hours' Labor

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The jury in the case of David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney accused of slaying Charles Crawford, politician, and Herbert Spencer, editor of a political magazine, appeared deadlocked tonight.

There were haggard looks on the faces of several of the seven women and five men as they were taken to dinner at 5:30 p. m. They received the case yesterday afternoon. The jurors had made no request to return to the courtroom to explain their position, nor did they call for any instructions from Superior Judge Stanley Murray.

HANKOW FOLK PERCH ON ROOFTOPS TO DIE

400,000 Homeless, Many Refusing Help as Futile; Famine Threat Grows.

Hankow, Saturday, Aug. 22 (A.P.). Native portions of the Wuhan cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, today are places of death, destruction and abject desolation with unknown thousands already gone to a watery doom as a result of the unprecedented floods of the Yangtze River.

More than 400,000 persons are homeless in this district alone, while destitute scores are succumbing daily to dysentery and typhoid fever.

Touring the native section of Hankow in a boat, a representative of the Associated Press saw thousands of one-story houses entirely submerged by water which covered the district from ten to fifteen feet deep. Larger edifices were collapsing hourly, their foundations washed away by the water.

Military authorities forcibly removed thousands of refugees from roof tops, but there are still other thousands remaining, hoisting a few yards of cloth overhead against the merciless rays of the sun with temperatures approaching 100 degrees Fahrenheit daily. Those remaining, sit apathetic and stunned, awaiting they know not what.

Superstition, which holds many thousands in its grip, has presented a serious element in delaying rescue efforts. Refugees are convinced that Hankow is doomed and refuse to help themselves or receive help, but merely sit atop roofs awaiting the inevitable—death.

Without immediate relief many thousands more are doomed.

Medical authorities believe that when the floods subside, probably

BRITONS IN SESSION AT NIGHT ON CRISIS

England's Greatest Battle in Finance Hangs on Budget Compromise.

London, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Prime Minister MacDonald, facing one of the greatest economic and financial crises in the history of Great Britain, tonight was confronted also with definite opposition in trades union ranks to his budget relief proposals and the possibility that his government might be squeezed into a resignation.

As an indication of the seriousness of the situation, the cabinet, which had adjourned without expecting to reconvene before tomorrow, hurriedly was recalled for an emergency meeting to night at No. 10 Downing street.

What took place at the emergency meeting was not divulged, but immediately after it was adjourned the prime minister and Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden conferred with Neville Chamberlin and Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative leaders, and Sir Herbert Samuel and Sir Donald MacLean, representatives of the Liberals.

It was announced that the three-party discussions probably would continue throughout the week-end, and the cabinet would meet again tomorrow morning.

The SOS summons to tonight's cabinet session went out by telegraph and telephone, but some of the ministers already had started for the country, and so did not attend.

Prior to the night cabinet meeting, Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Snowden talked for almost an hour with the opposition leaders, who called on them after the cabinet had been in session six hours.

This "S O S" summons came after leaders of the opposition parties had called on the prime minister and Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, and conversed for nearly an hour, following upon the six-hour cabinet session today.

The assumption was that opposition leaders had either presented new proposals or suggested compromises with the Trades Union Congress which would enable the government to "save its face" and go before Parliament with the apparent support of all sections.

The prime minister's position at present was described as "between the devil and the deep blue sea," with negotiations and compromises necessary before the ministry can hope to breathe easier.

Notwithstanding the dark outlook and wild rumors arising from tonight's emergency meeting, close political observers were of the opinion the cabinet's resignation was possible but not at all probable, because

3 BANDITS DIE WITH 2 POLICE IN WILD CHASE

Thugs Shoot It Out With Pursuers in Flight After Robbery.

14 PERSONS HURT AS GUNFIGHT RAGES

100 BLUECOATS RUSH TO GENERAL ALARM

One Outlaw Killed at Wheel of Car; Others Succumb on Way to Hospital.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Three gunmen and two policemen were shot dead and fourteen bystanders wounded late today in a hold-up and sensational chase through five miles of uptown residential streets.

Approximately 100 bluecoats pursued the killers and carried out the police commissioner's recently issued command to "shoot to kill." One thousand shots were fired, police estimated, as the gangsters and the officers tore through the Bronx to upper Manhattan, where the fugitives were brought to bay and trapped in a spray of bullets.

Gloria Lopez, 4-year-old daughter of a fireman, was among the wounded bystanders in the fighting precipitated when two bandits killed Patrolman Walter J. Webb, 39, before he could draw his pistol to protect a $4,000 pay roll.

Speedily the two bandits and their chauffeur picked a path through traffic until, cornered by a lurching truck in upper Manhattan, they elected to shoot it out and lost.

Traffic Policeman Shot Down.

A traffic policeman, Edward Churchill, 35, who single-handed tried to halt the slayers at a Bronx intersection, was the second officer to die. With six bullets in his body he was left for dead at his post. He was alive, however, when found, but succumbed in a hospital.

Besides Webb and Churchill, those killed were:

Herbert Haase, 27, driver of the taxicab.

John Brecht, 25, of the Bronx, and an unidentified companion about 25.

Haase was killed as he sat in the driver's seat of the bullet-torn taxicab when it finally was halted in Dyckman street, near Nagle avenue. Brecht and the other man, struck many times by bullets, died in a Memorial Hospital.

The extent to which Haase participated in the pistol warfare was not made definite by the police tonight. They were checking his record. It appeared he was the owner of the cab, to which the robbers had transferred after making off in a stolen car at the holdup scene.

Legion Offers 30,000 Vigilantes to New York

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—State Adjutant Commander Maurice Stember, of the American Legion, announced tonight that he would renew an offer tomorrow to place 30,000 legionnaires on the streets of New York City as vigilantes, to stop the rapidly growing crime wave.

The legionnaire army, equipped with steel helmets and bayonetted rifles, can be mobilized within two hours, through a specially tested system, Stember said.

"We have been shocked by this growing disregard for human life," he said, "and it is time something radical should be done. Police Commissioner Mulrooney and his men are not to blame. They are doing their best, but the boldness of the lawless element has risen to the pitch where it must be stopp

Crime Cost Above Billion, Wickersham Body Reports

Guess on Total Declined, But Items Carry Amount Beyond Ten Figures With Prohibition Taking Two-thirds of Government Share.

(Associated Press.)

A red ink entry of more than $1,000,000,000 was recorded yesterday by the Wickersham Commission as but a fragmentary figure for the annual cost of crime to the American people.

Declining even to "guess" at the total toll levied by criminality, the commission nevertheless broke down its figures to show a yearly contributing item of more than $34,000,000, chargeable directly to Federal prohibition enforcement.

Seen as the first detailed, authoritative comparative analysis of this cost in dry law history, the report asserted two-thirds of all Government funds for criminal law enforcement were expended upon this one law. It was estimated as costing $0.32 per capita annually, and as requiring 1.03 per cent of the annual Federal expenditures for all purposes.

The bulky, 657-page report upon the "cost of crime," addressed directly to President Hoover, pointed out that despite the page upon page of impressive statistics assembled it was "wholly impossible" to reach an accurate total figure.

Goldwaite H. Dorr and Sidney P. Simpson, New York lawyers who wrote much of the document, explained that limitations of time and funds had made it impossible to obtain totals attributable to racketeering, bootlegging, extortion, fraudulent bankruptcies, thefts of uninsured property, bucket shops, and all the range of confidence games.

Nevertheless, the two experts piled figure upon figure and statistical table upon table until the purposely unadded items swept beyond $1,119,000,000. Even this incomplete analysis pushed the cost beyond $3,000,000 a day.

The commission, as a preface to its list of recommendations for reducing this cost, asserted even such incomplete findings "strikingly confirm the accuracy of the general belief that crime imposes a tremendous economic burden on the community."

The eleven members urged that "Nation-wide, thorough and scientific studies of racketeering and organized extortion should be made" as basis for an attack upon this type of crime.

It recommended also that if necessary the huge sums expended annually for criminal justice be increased

4 to 10 Midshipmen Facing Dismissal for Misconduct

(Associated Press.)

For misconduct on a recent European training cruise, a group of midshipmen is threatened with dismissal from the Naval Academy. From four to ten Middies are involved. Their names and the nature of the charges are being carefully withheld.

Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the academy, visited the Navy Department Thursday, made a preliminary report and conferred with Capt. Ralph E. Pope, acting chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Capt. Pope said the midshipmen would be allowed to make explanations after which the superintendent would recommend dismissal or not as the circumstances might warrant.

"On every cruise there are usually six or eight men who get into trouble," said Capt. Pope. "There were 984 on this summer's cruise. You take nearly 1,000 young men and usually you get one-tenth of 1 per cent who do something they ought not to do."

One or two midshipmen were dismissed after last year's cruise, he said, adding it was the policy of the department to "make no statement on any midshipman in trouble," because their families and the members of Congress who appointed them should be spared publicity.

On the cruise, from June 6 to August 13, the midshipmen, aboard the battleships Arkansas and Wyoming, visited numerous European ports. Admiral Claude C. Bloch was in command and is understood to have made the charges now under investigation.

Girl Friend Hints Dual Life Of Vanished Rich Importer

Mary Reissner, Alleged Governess, Said to Admit Being Stateroom Companion of Japanese on Cruise Which Ended in His Mysterious Death.

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The details of a dramatic week in the family life of Hisashi Fujimura, missing Japanese importer, became public today, helping piece together an almost unbelievable story of sudden death, the birth of a child, high-stake poker and possible suicide at sea.

The part played in the life and death of the wealthy Fujimura by Mary Reissner assumed increasing importance. She was with him on the liner Belgenland's "show boat cruise" a week ago today, when he disappeared, ostensibly as governess for his 7-year-old daughter. Today, when the Belgenland docked from another gala trip Miss Reissner's status was altered. She was quoted as admitting she was the companion of Fujimura, occupying the same stateroom. Jan Ribas, an artist, who had the adjoining cabin, told of hearing a jealous quarrel between the beautiful girl and the Japanese, followed by screams.

In Norwalk, Conn., another phase of the drama developed. Mrs. Fujimura gave birth to a daughter yesterday, and today she weakly insisted her husband was alive. "He is in New York," she told investigators. And then she revealed that on the day her husband disappeared a 3-year-old daughter died. Japanese servants arranged a quiet funeral. A telephone query at the Fujimura house was answered by the eldest child, a boy, who shouted "Scram!" and hung up the receiver.

Miss Reissner, who first gave her name as "Reisner," was questioned by Federal officials, who said she admitted she was not a governess, but a former chorus girl, whose most recent appearance was in George White's "Flying High." She is divorced from Pierre von Reisaner, Birmingham, Ala., dancing master, and has a 3-year-old son. The investigators also said Fujimura maintained two residences for the girl, an apartment in West Forty-eighth street and a suburban home in Rye, N. Y. Neighbors at Rye said Miss Reissner had lived in the house since June with her son, a German nurse, a Japanese butler and a Chinese cook.

Friends of Fujimura said he had taken rapidly to the ways of the Oc-

FIGHTING CONTINUES IN GIBARA VICINITY

Rebels Still Well Equipped Despite Federal Victory; Outbreaks in Havana.

Havana, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The curtain of censorship over eastern Cuba lifted a bit today and showed continued guerilla warfare in the mountains about Gibara, where federal troops drove the rebels and their "foreign legion" expeditionary reinforcements from the town Wednesday after hard fighting.

Twenty or twenty-five insurgents who took position in the Gibara railroad tunnel held up government troops for many hours, according to reports reaching here, and the insurrectionists have been able to reunite outside the town. Skirmishing was going on today between rebel bands and federal detachments along the short mountain range near Gibara.

Although the federal army seized much war material, including machine guns, rifles and ammunition, in the assault on Gibara, the rebels were reported still to be well equipped.

Among them, according to information received here, are Germans, French, Japanese and Americans.

Estimates of the casualties in the fighting around Gibara range all the way from 300 to 600. Government sources reported four soldiers dead and eight wounded, and totaled rebel casualties at 43.

The little city of Gibara was damaged only slightly by bombs dropped from the nine airplanes which assisted the government infantry. Most of the charges fell on the outskirts of the city.

At the height of the fighting 2,000 government soldiers and an estimated 1,000 rebels were in action, according to advices received here. Details as to the number of men involved in today's skirmishes along the mountain range near the town were not available.

Federal units detached to hunt down groups of revolutionaries in the hilly country found pursuit difficult because of the nature of the terrain.

After sporadic fighting in Havana during the night, all residents and visitors were warned not to discuss rumors of the insurgent movement except on the basis of official government reports. Violations of the order may be punished by deportation, imprisonment or fine.

(Associated Press.)

Speedy conclusion of the Cuban revolution was predicted yesterday by Ambassador Guggenheim, at Havana, in a message to the State Department.

The ambassador said the capture of the rebel stronghold, the jailing of prominent leaders and the loyalty to the government of the army and navy presaged a conclusion of the insurrection.

Third Head of Chile In Month Takes Office

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Manuel Trucco today began his new duties as vice president and acting head of the Chilean government, replacing Vice President Esteban Montero, who resigned to campaign as a candidate for president in the October election.

Trucco is the third head of the government in about a month, as Montero replaced former President Carlos Ibanez, who was forced out of office. Trucco was minister of the interior, and became vice president through the order of succession provided by law.

The cabinet presented its resignation when Trucco was sworn in as a formal gesture to permit him to form a new cabinet if he desired, but Trucco refused to accept. Later, however, accepted the resignation of Francisco Careceda, minister of public works and agriculture. Luis Alamos Barros was appointed to the post and Horacio Hevia was named minister of interior, succeeding Trucco.

Bill for Higher Tariffs Sent Chilean Congress

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The government today sent to Congress a bill increasing many tariff duties. Rates now in effect have failed to provide the expected revenue and national industries need further protection, the government announced.

The rate on gasoline imported in tankships is doubled in the bill, and on gasoline in drums is increased 65 per cent.

On automobile chassis the duty is tripled, and on rubber tires and rice it is doubled. Other products affected are thread, electric lamps, typewriters and adding machines. Most of the imports which would be hit by the increases come from the United States, England and Germany.

American Bankers Confer Upon Argentine's Loan

Buenos Aires, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Local bank representatives, including those of the National City Bank of New York and the First National Bank of Boston, have conferred with the minister of finance regarding the payment of a $50,000,000 loan which expires October 2.

It was understood the banks offered their assistance in order to avoid a currency famine if that much money were withdrawn.

Big Town's City Hall Offered at Best Bid

By JOHN J. DALY

FOR SALE—A City Hall.

Will sacrifice fine site in the mid-Western section of the United States overlooking Lake Michigan; protected fresh-water bathing nearby.

Superb police and fire departments, model up-to-date school system, go with property.

Golden opportunity for the right party willing and able to take over a $27,500,000 deficit which can easily be made up with a little racketeering on the side.

Good janitor service and elevator operation.

Reason for selling, to settle a State.

Situated in Cook County, this City Hall has all modern improvements; electricity, steam heat, and mail delivery.

* * * *

IN the heart of a great city—the second largest in the United States—the City Hall lends itself admirably to almost any project or enterprise. Of composite architectural design, it is fashioned somewhat after Le Jardin des Tuileries and L'Hotel de Ville in Paris, Buckingham Palace and Westminster Abbey in London, der Reichspraesidentenpalast, Wilhelmstrasse, und der Rathaus in Berlin, and the building can be used as a mammoth hotel, skating rink or gymnasium, with pool parlors and bowling alleys in the basement.

Situated in the downtown district, the City Hall is convenient to all shops and stores, hotels and theaters, with street cars, motor buses and taxis passing the front door. Railroad stations are not far distant, offering an easy escape from the city.

Health department is part of the equipment, and goes with the building—which means free medical service, with ambulance equipment.

A twenty-car garage is included.

Street cleaners at the service of the new owners, the property will be kept clean at all times; grass cut in spring and summer, snow shoveled in winter, blank bullets and cartridges promptly removed.

Taxes, right.

Yearly income of $1,500,000 from the telephone company for a franchise and other miscellaneous fees and licenses.

* * * *

THERE are several outstanding bills against the property, of $25 and $50 value, which must be taken over by the purchaser, along with one first trust, in the form of a judgment, of $6,500,000.

The hall is completely furnished, even to an organ loft with an organ and a soft pedal. There are various reception rooms, baths, and a completely furnished mayor's office, with secretariat thrown in for good measure. Ladies' rest room on the top floor, gentlemen's smoking room near the entrance-way, and ice water throughout the building.

Twenty thousand employes, now enjoying payless pay days, are willing to work on the estate, one of the handsomest town houses in America, with all the glories of the suburbs and all the conveniences of the city. Fine hardwood trees, shrubs and herbaceous border grace the landscape, with potted flowers in the front windows. The hall is thoroughly weather-stripped, with storm doors for the winter and awnings for the summer.

Easy terms for quick sale.

Address, Mayor Anton J. Cermak, Chicago, Ill.

UTILITY BODY REFUSES PLEA FOR TRANSFER OF GAS FUNDS

13 after Assistant Corporation Counsel Roberts had made a surprise raid on Washington Gas Light Co. files and uncovered evidence that the local utility intended to transfer $26,020 and a certain gas transmission line to the Central Public Service Corporation.

Others present at the conference, besides Messrs. Peirce, Hartman, Burroughs, Roberts and Wood, were Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and James Piper and Arthur Dean, attorneys for the Washington Suburban Cos. and the Westfield Trust.

Statement Gives Story.

The statement by Mr. Peirce, said to incorporate the arguments used before the commission, follows:

"In connection with the order recently passed by the Public Utilities Commission, forbidding Washington Gas Light Co. to make any payments for natural gas the following facts were laid before the commission:

"That Central Public Service Corporation had originally planned to build a pipe line system to transport natural gas from gas fields, which it owned or was about to acquire, in Kentucky and West Virginia, to various points in Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia and Indiana, and to supply gas to distributing systems controlled by it in Virginia, Maryland and Indiana, as well as to various distributing companies along the line, and to the Washington Gas Light Co.

"It developed, however, that Columbia Gas & Electric Co. had a considerably more extensive project under consideration which would serve all of the territory that the proposed system of Central Public Service Corporation contemplated serving, and although Central Public Service Corporation had already made very substantial expenditures in connection with its project, it decided not to proceed with it, because an opportunity was presented to obtain a supply of natural gas from the Columbia Gas & Electric System on very advantageous terms, both as to certainty of supply and price.

Claims Capital Benefited.

"This was due to the fact that Central Public Service Corporation was in a position to offer Columbia Gas & Electric Co. a large market for gas to its own subsidiaries in Virginia, Maryland and Indiana. On account of Col. Peirce's relations with Central Public Service Corporation, and the large market for gas which he controlled, he was able to obtain a supply of natural gas on very attractive terms for Washington, which at that time was badly in need of an additional supply of gas. Due to these arrangements, Washington was saved from making important capital expenditures that would have otherwise been necessary.

"A definitely natural gas contract has not yet been worked out for the Washington Gas Light Co., and so far it has been billed for natural gas at the same price paid Maryland Gas Transmission Corporation (a subsidiary of Columbia Gas & Electric Co), plus an allowance estimated to cover operating cost, interest and amortization of the branch line necessary to bring gas from the main line of the Maryland Gas Transmission Corporation, near Rockville, Md., to Washington.

"This difference in price does not constitute an increase of 4 cents per thousand cubic feet as has been erroneously stated in the press, but has amounted to $2,400 per month, which is less than 1 cent a thousand cubic feet of gas delivered. The title to the transmission line in the District of Columbia was vested in Washington Gas Light Co., and there is not now and never has been any intention of transferring title to that line to any other corporation.

Money Due as Penalty.

"Natural gas could not be delivered by Maryland Gas Transmission Corporation on the date set, and Maryland Gas Transmission Corporation paid the sum of $26,020 as a penalty. This payment was turned over to the Central Public Service Corporation and has been credited against the cost of the transmission line built in the District for Washington Gas Light Co. The cost of the portion of the transmission line within the District was approximately $68,000, and Washington Gas Light Co. has not as yet paid the balance due.

"For the purpose of effecting economies in operation, the Washington Gas Light Co. has availed itself during the past few months of the services of various experts in the employ of Central Public Service Corporation, and has paid these experts for their services on a reasonable per diem basis. These experts have turned over the sums so received to the Central Public Service Corporation, as reimbursement for their time which was devoted to Washington matters.

"Col. Peirce reiterated his belief that his ownership of the beneficial interest in the Westfield Trust, in which the ultimate control of stock of the Washington Gas Light Co. lies, does not in any way violate any laws. He stated, however, that inasmuch as the commission is shortly going to hold a public hearing on these matters, he preferred to make a detailed statement as to his ownership at that time."

Soldier's Invention Aids Plane Motors

Means to Remove Water From Gasoline Sought Many Years.

An oil segregator which will separate water and gasoline in airplane and other motors highly sensitive to impure fuel has been invented by a foreign-born sergeant in the United States Army.

This invention is one which has been trying the skill of highly trained mechanics and engineers for years, only to be discovered by a non-commissioned officer who has never had technical education. In the case of airplane motors, it is said to be a means of eliminating many dangerous accidents and forced landings and to have been adopted both by the Army and Navy.

The inventor, Master Sergt. David Samiran, is a native of the Island of Cyprus, British-owned, who came to this country as an engineer in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York in 1911. He joined the Army at the beginning of the World War, and is said to have conceived the idea of the segregator while serving at France Field, in the Canal Zone, in 1924.

Count Will Wed Cousin Of Ambassador Garrett

Rome, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Miss Rosamond Thomas, cousin of Ambassador John W. Garrett, of Baltimore, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hooper Stevenson, of Boston, will be married to Count Edward Oppersdorff at Ambassador Garrett's villa at Capri next Monday, it was announced today.

Kidnaping Scouted In Broker Mystery

Rosenthal Lawyer Says Note From Client Asks for Ransom.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—An attorney for Charles Rosenthal, 25-year-old member of the New York Curb Exchange, who, police say, has been kidnaped and is being held for $100,000 ransom, admitted tonight he had received letters asking for the ransom money.

The attorney, Edward Nathan, said the letters were written by young Rosenthal, seemingly under compulsion. He would not divulge their contents beyond admitting they asked for immediate payment of the $100,000. Rosenthal disappeared August 11.

The young banker vanished soon after his mother, Mrs. Nellie K. Rosenthal, widow of a wealthy New York real estate broker, had bought him a seat on the curb exchange at a price reported to be about $500,000.

President of Honduras' Wife Plans to Fly Home

New Orleans, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The wife of Dr. Vincente Mejia Colindres, president of Honduras, arrived today from Washington for a brief visit before returning to Tegucigalpa. She came by train but immediately inquired as to airplane accomodations to Honduras.

Senora Colindres has been a patient at a Baltimore hospital, having some weeks ago flown to the United States via Havana and Miami.

PETROLEUM PRICES CLIMB IN OKLAHOMA

Advances Range From 11 to 30 Cents a Barrel; Gasoline Is Marked Up.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Petroleum began to climb the price ladder today, mounting well toward Dollar Oil and apparently auguring higher prices for gasoline at automobile filling stations in the near future.

As the Texas Co., important mid-continent buyer, posted increases in four States, Gov. William H. (Dollar Bill) Murray said he believed major purchasers would agree by Monday to $1 a barrel—the top he has set in return for the opening of his State's monster producers.

Texas Co. prices in Oklahoma were advanced 30 cents for high gravity oil to 70 cents a barrel. Advances for Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico fields ranged from 11 to 30 cents a barrel, to a similar top.

Murray Hears of Mergers.

The upward trend also extended in at least one locality to the retail gasoline market and Southwestern oil men, confident of better times since well shutdowns in Oklahoma and east Texas took an estimated 900,000 barrels daily from the market, heard other news indicating that stabilization of the depressed industry may not be remote.

Gov. Murray spoke of rumored mergers of major oil companies, and said he thought "they'll be in by Monday" on his $1 price. He reiterated his decision to require all companies taking oil from the same producing horizons to agree to the $1 price, a unitization plan and proration before wells are opened.

Some trouble, he said, would be experienced in allowing some unnamed companies which he says have agreed to the $1 price to open Oklahoma City field wells.

Also, he sounded a warning to mid-continent States to "not let this thing get away from them when the fields are opened again." He contended "we can't trust the oil men with it—they would hog one another."

Gasoline Is Advanced.

At Tulsa, independent marketers and the Sinclair Refining Co. marked up the price of low grade "competitive" gasoline from 11 cents a gallon to 13 cents at filling stations. The independents said they intended to show the major companies they were not attempting to prevent higher crude prices by keeping gasoline rates down.

Meanwhile, in the East the Standard Oil Co. of New York advanced the price of gasoline in tank car lots half a cent a gallon to 6 cents, and the Stoll Oil Refinery Co. hiked Kentucky crude rates 15 cents a barrel to 65 cents, meeting a recent Ohio oil company advance.

An appeal for immediate restriction of oil imports went to President Hoover from Tulsa offices of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. The telegram said that reported resumption of normal imports by large interests would result in shutdown of independent refineries and discharge of thousands of workers.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A 10 per cent increase in the amount of crude oil that may be produced in Pennsylvania grade fields was agreed upon today by the Pensylvania Grade Oil Conservation Board.

The new agreement, effective immediately, will permit production of 60 per cent of that April, 1930, in the Bradford and Allegany fields and 80 per cent in all other Pennsylvania grade fields.

The new schedule, a "gentlemen's agreement" among producers of Pennsylvania grade crude oil in western Pennsylvania, western New York and West Virginia, will be effective until the next meeting of the board, to be held in Bradford, Pa., next month.

3 BANDITS AND 2 POLICEMEN DIE IN PAY ROLL THEFT FIGHT

ried uptown at the first general alarm and visited the five points between the holdup and the capture, at which shots were exchanged.

On learning the details of the third recent gangster shooting in which bystanders have been wounded, and the second in which children have been among the victims, Commissioner Mulrooney expressed concern at the seriousness of the encounter, but said he was satisfied with the conduct of his men.

From the car used by the bandits police recovered the pay roll and a variety of firearms.

The holdup from which the fighting sprang occurred in an alleyway off East 133d street, the Bronx, where the robbers had been lying in wait for the $4,916 pay roll.

Lloyd Fomhoff, manager of the Mendoza Fur & Dyeing Works, drove into the alley with the money. At his side sat Policeman Webb, who had accompanied him from a bank.

Open Fire Without Warning.

Without warning the holdup men sprang out of concealment and opened fire. One of the first bullets fired bored through Webb's metal shield and into his chest. The gunmen snatched the pay roll money from Fomhoff and fled in a taxicab. Webb died in a few minutes, on the way to a hospital.

Westward across the Bronx the holdup band fled. Word of the crime was flashed to all police stations. Emergency squads set out, the sirens of their cars screaming the alarm in many residence streets.

At East 169th street and Boston road the fugitives looked back and spied Policeman Churchill overtaking them on a motorcycle. They opened fire. Churchill catapulted from his machine, seriously wounded.

Pressing on into Manhattan the gunmen came upon Policeman Michael Lydon, on traffic duty at the busy intersection of Broadway and West 162d street. Lydon got in their way. They opened fire again and Lydon and four passersby crumbled before the volley.

Chase of Killers Ends.

A few blocks behind the fleeing men two policemen on the running board of a taxicab had joined the chase. They drew close to their quarry. Another burst of fire from the careening taxi picked them off the running board.

Then the killers came to the end of their wild career. As the speeding taxi circled toward Dyckman street in the Inwood section, a big truck rolled across in its path and brought it to an abrupt halt.

Eight detectives leading the pursuit, came quickly up from the rear. They opened fire at close range and the driver of the cab, Herbert Haase, 27, fell across his wheel, dead.

Another burst of shots and the two passengers slumped to the floor of the cab. They were taken to a hospital, but were dead upon arrival.

In the taxicab were five revolvers, a large amount of ammunition and the stolen pay roll.

Fourteen Persons Wounded.

The injured in the gun fight were listed by authorities as follows:

Cullen, Thomas B., 25, shot in shoulders.

Giordino, James, 13, shot in shoulder.

Hyde, Vincent J., 32, city fireman, shot in chest.

Katz, Rubin, 34, shot in shoulder.

Klein, Nicholar, 31, shot in left forearm.

Lopez, John, 35, city fireman, shot in right ear.

Lopez, Mathilda, 32, his wife, shock.

Lopez, Gloria, 4, their daughter, shot in head.

Lyons, Michael, 28, patrolman, shot in right hip.

McPhillip, Francis, 30, shot in left leg.

Sigel, Jacob, 31, shot in mouth.

Vanblekin, Mrs. Sophie, 40, shot in right leg.

Wray, Betrand, 25, possible fracture of skull received when thrown from motorcycle.

At about the same hour two youths suspected of being holdup men were shot by police in Jersey City, N. J., but not seriously wounded. Police mistook the two for robbers who had held up the New Jersey Telephone Co. and escaped with $1,600.

Four Youths Get $687.

Another holdup occurred in Manhattan, when four well-dressed youths held up an engraving office on the tenth floor of an East Forty-fifth street building and escaped with $687 of a $2,000 pay roll.

Before ascending, the bandits pressed a gun against an elevator operator and forced him to accompany them so they would be sure of a quick escape.

Several policemen were in the building, guarding pay rolls of other concerns, but so well executed was the robbery that none of them heard the disturbance.

cident. His Oriental birth was not reflected in the furnishings of his home nor in his amusements.

From employes on the Belgenland it was learned he had lost heavily in a high-stake poker game on the cruise, but had paid up promptly. They did not think the sum was large enough to cause worry to a man of Fujimura's wealth, and hence were inclined to discount the theory that he committed suicide.

He also drank on the cruise, he said, but carried his liquor well. Russell Patterson, illustrator and a passenger on the Belgenland, told of a talk he had with Fujimura's 7-year-old daughter, in which the girl described Miss Reissner as "papa's girl friend."

Simon Feinstein, attorney who has represented Miss Reissner, withdrew from the case today, saying he had received a telephone message "to get out of the case or get bumped off."

Detectives were working on the possibility that Fujimura was the victim of a "badger game" perpetrated by three men who were called "well-known criminals."

Vindictiveness Charged In Luke Lea's Defense

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Arguments in the trial of Col. Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, on trial here with three others on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Central Bank & Trust Co., of $1,300,000, continued today with the defense charging the State with "vindictiveness" and the State berating the defendants.

With the exception of a speech by Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles, State's prosecutor, who directed an attack on Lea and his son, Luke Lea, jr., a co-defendant in the case, the arguments, in the main, were taken up on involved legal questions.

German Radio Exhibit Bid for World Market

Berlin, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Germany's eighth annual radio exposition was opened today in the presence of government authorities and representatives of the industry with a broadcast over all German stations.

Four large halls, surrounding a 495-foot radio tower, contained the latest designs and inventions, by which the German radio, sound-film and phonograph industries hope to obtain a firm foothold in the world market. There were 325 exhibitions.

DEATH FIGURES USED TO BACK PRESIDENT

rectly on Federal projects than are now so employed.

President Hoover always has contended that voluntary relief and charitable organizations successfully coped with the physical distress growing out of unemployment last winter, and he said so publicly in a statement on August 7. At the same time he said that he was confident that these same organizations would be able to handle the problem this winter.

Advocates of direct Government aid to the victims of unemployment scoffed at these statements, and renewed their demands that Congress be called into special session and directed to work out some scheme for Federal assistance.

To reinforce his contention that the relief measures last winter were adequate, President Hoover, on August 13, wrote a letter to Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, head of the Public Health Service, asking him for a report on the state of the public health.

General Mortality Less.

Commenting on Surgeon General Cumming's report, the President said:

"In brief, it shows that the general mortality, the infant mortality, the sickness in the country was less in the winter of 1931 than in the winters of full employment of 1928 and 1929. The public health has apparently never been better than it has been over the past six months. It is a most creditable showing of the effort which the country made last winter and one for which the voluntary organizations and local officials are entitled to a very great deal of credit."

At present, the executive said, a large amount of reorganization and planning is in progress in preparation for the fall and winter.

"There is a very evident widespread resolution to meet the situation again," he said.

Letter to Surgeon General.

In his letter to Surgeon General Cumming, President Hoover wrote as follows:

"In order to assemble the entire picture of the unemployment relief problem I should like to know what the public health results show as to the success or failure of the organization during the past winter in relieving distress.

"Therefore I would be greatly obliged if you would furnish me with such data as you have on the comparative state of the public health during the period of maximum burden of distress and relief—that is, in the early months of 1931—as compared with, say, similar months in 1928, a period of full employment. You will, of course, need to consider the effect of the irregular factors introduced by epidemics. I mention this as long experience has taught me that if there is any lowering of vitality in any section of the population, it might result in certain types of epidemics.

"Generally, the final test of success or failure in efforts to meet physical distress is in the relative volume of sickness or death, and I would be glad to know what this test, applied to the last winter, shows."

Insurance Figures Cited.

Surg. Gen. Cumming told the President that reports from thirteen States having a population of 43,000,000 showed a death rate of 12.0 per 1,000 of population in the first five months of 1931, as against a death rate of 13.7 for the same period in 1928.

In 1928 and 1929, he said, there had been moderate epidemics of influenza and pneumonia, but even the death rate with these two causes excluded, he said, was lower in 1931 than in any of the three preceding years.

Data gathered by the Census Bureau and data supplied by the various insurance companies, Dr. Cumming said, also indicated a lower death rate in the first half of 1931.

In the thirteen States which make reports to the Public Health Service, Dr. Cumming said, the death rate from tuberculosis continued to decline in 1931.

Comparatively Healthy Year.

Sickness among wage earners who belong to sick benefit associations, he said, also had fallen off, the rate being 104.2 per 1,000 in the first half of 1931, as against 117.9 for the first half of 1928.

Concluding his report to the President, Dr. Cumming said:

"The data from these various sources indicate that 1931 has started out as a comparatively healthy year. The recent economic situation seems to have had no general adverse effect on health and mortality rates. In view of the agitation in general with respect to the effect of economic conditions on health, public health workers have been surprised at the excellent health conditions that are found upon studying the available facts."

Memphis Registration Inquiry Asked of Nye

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—R. Eugene Johnson, independent candidate for city commissioner, today mailed to United States Senator Gerald P. Nye a request for an investigation by his campaign investigating committee of the ten-day biennial registration in Memphis which closed here last night.

Johnson issued a statement saying "I know of my personal knowledge that most of the registration certificates are in the hands of policemen, bootleggers and gamblers." He said he thought the Nye committee would be interested because the registration certificates are good for the national election in 1932.

Ohio Newspaper Plant Shaken by Explosion

Mansfield, Ohio, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—An explosion, believed caused by a bomb, damaged the plant of the Mansfield Journal at midnight tonight. A night watchman was in the building, and was shaken up by the blast.

The explosion occurred in the basement near the front of the building. Windows throughout the plant were shattered, but it was believed after a hasty inspection that none of the machinery in the press room and composing room was damaged.

America Is Challenged To Save World's Trade

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—A challenge to America to lead the world out of the slough of economic depression was sounded today by Lord Beaverbrook, London newspaper publisher.

The short gray-haired power in British politics and industry, who started life with nothing and temporarily retired at the age of 28 with a fortune of $7,000,000, was aglow with optimism, however, as he stepped from the liner that had brought him from Halifax.

He said he was certain the world would soon experience a great swing of the pendulum, which would bring back widespread prosperity. How soon, he intimated, would depend upon America.

"This is not the greatest depression in history," he said, "and it's not even the worst your country has experienced. Don't forget Coxey's army and the 'hungry nineties.'" several weeks hence, serious epidemics must rage.

The stupendous needs for emergency relief are beyond the capacity of local authorities. Benevolent societies and the chambers of commerce are supplying small amounts of foodstuffs. The water works staff is using junks, with filled water tubs, cruising the watery streets and serving thousands of roof sitters to prevent them from drinking the filthy flood waters.

But such services touch only the fringe of the problem. National Flood Relief Commission officials stated that the Wuhan cities have less than three weeks supply of cereals, little meat and no vegetables.

An authoritative foreign survey shows the threat of famine is growing more serious every day and today there is very little food purchasable in markets, while almost nothing is done to feed the multitude of hungry and destitute.

A large portion of the plant of the Standard Oil Co. of New York here collapsed today.

Destruction of this great inland city of modern China was threatened by the rising Yangtze River and a general exodus of its population of close to a million was in progress. Several hundred miles to the north the Hwai Ho River was spreading out over thousands of square miles in northern Honan, Anhwei and Kiangsu provinces. Eighty counties were reported inundated, lowland villages and crops were destroyed. No estimate of the loss of life was available from the north.

The seriousness of the situation here was augmented by the constant stream of refugees pouring in from other inundated sections.

A typical flood scene was that at Kweiteh, an important center in eastern Honan Province. A mud wall surrounds the town and the Associated Press correspondent there reported this rampart had become the home of thousands of the destitute. The hospital and mission and church buildings were crowded with refugees.

At Nanking the National Government Council took action to cope with the situation. A bond issue of $10,000,000 Mexican (about $3,000,000) was decided upon as an immediate relief measure. A national committee of relief, probably to be headed by T. V. Soong, finance minister and brother-in-law of President Chiang Kai-shek, was being perfected.

Meanwhile the government was negotiatnig with the Federal Farm Board of the United States for the purchase of surplus wheat on long-term credits. The grain would be used for relief of the starving.

Laura La Plante Sued For $60,000 in Crash

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Laura La Plante, screen star, was sued for $60,548 damages today as a result of an automobile accident.

The action was brought by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Dowell. They charged that Mrs. Dowell was permanently injured last July when their automobile was struck by one driven by the actress.

LINDBERGHS SPEND NIGHT IN ISLAND HUT

to the Orient after being held in the Kurile Islands since Wednesday when fog forced them to land at Ketoi Island during their flight from Petropaviovsk, Siberia, to Nemuro.

The tender Shimushiro Maru arrived Thursday alongside the monoplane and later towed it to another side of the island where it was believed the treacherous currents about Ketoi would be less liable to throw the plane on the rocky shores. Friday the steamer towed the vessel 15 miles to Muroton Bay, a land-locked harbor of Shimushiro Island, for safety.

Trouble with the plane's motor developed and it was not until Col. Lindbergh had spent many hours working on it after he arose at 5:40 a. m., today, that it was put in working order.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh spent the night in the hut of a fox farm keeper on the island. Only three men live there the year around.

Radio reports from the Shimushiro Maru, which was standing by the plane, said weather had cleared in the vicinity and Muroton Bay was calm. Col. Lindbergh worked on the motor from a small boat beside his monoplane, which was anchored some distance off shore.

Seiji Yoshihara, the "Japanese Lindbergh" whose attempted flight this summer to the United States ended in the wrecking of his plane at Muroton Bay, kept a cache of fuel and supplies on the island, which the Hochi Shimbun, newspaper sponsoring Yoshihara's flight, had placed at the Lindberghs' disposal.

MEN AT OWN DOORS KEEP FIRE OFF TOWN

Forest Flames Are Checked, Temporarily at Least, in Placerville, Idaho.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Tired crews of fire fighters were beaten back to the doorsteps of Placerville, Idaho, by a raging forest fire tonight, but on that line they stopped the inferno and expressed belief the town would not burn tonight.

At the same time a message was brought from Centerville saying that town, surrounded for two days by a wall of flames, was also safe, at least until morning.

Cool hours of night tamed the fire, but only desperate efforts of several score men and children keep it from razing Placerville.

There flames broke out late today within the fire lines and every man within the city, including Red Cross workers, newspaper men and miners, went into action. The blaze covered two miles in two minutes down a canyon on the opposite side of town from the main fire.

There it was checked after approaching embers sprayed over the town. Every youngster in the place was sent into the streets and yards to stamp them out as they fell.

The town had previously been "wet down" by streams of water pumped by fire-fighting pumps.

Upward of 300 refugees were spending their second night in the open, assisted by the Red Cross and the Idaho National Guard, the former supplying food and medical care, and the latter furnishing tents and bedding.

Davis Proposes Removal Of Moose Offices Here

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Removal of the general offices of the Loyal Order of Moose from Mooseheart, Ill., to Washington, D. C., was proposed today to the supreme council, meeting prior to the opening of the forty-third international convention Monday, by Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, director general of the order.

The delegates, expected to total 40,000 by Monday, will be told their treasury is $1,000,000 richer than it was last year, Senator Davis said, and that 100,000 new members have been added during the year.

Postal Wage Cut Hinted by Brown

Increase in Rates Offers Only Alternative, He Tells Workers.

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Reduction of postal employes' wages or an increase in postage rates is the only possible solution of the annual postal deficit, which this year amounts to approximately $150,000,000, Postmaster General Walter Brown told the National Rural Carriers Association at their convention today.

Baltimore was selected as the 1932 convention city as the convention ended.

Officers of the association reelected are: W. G. Armstrong, Niles, Mich., president; C. V. Martin, Brumfield, Ky., vice president; Clifton S. Brown, Franklin, Tenn., secretary, and T. Ed. Cooper, Elwood, Ill., treasurer.

SENATORS TO PROBE FINANCES OF BISHOP

Bankers Subpenaed to Take Stand as Funds Inquiry Opens on August 26.

(Associated Press.)

The bank records of Bishop James Cannon will be examined by the Senate campaign funds committee next week in concluding its inquiry into the complaint that the churchman failed to account for all the anti-Smith funds intrusted to him in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Subpenas were served yesterday on bankers in three States by the committee and Chairman Nye announced these witnesses would be examined first. He advanced the opening of hearings to next Wednesday, instead of the day following.

The bankers called are F. P. Ferguson, president of the Hudson County National Bank, Jersey City, N. J.; W. H. Wood, president of the American Trust Co., Charlotte, N. C.; F. W. Sheffield, cashier of the Bank of Crewe, Crewe, Va.; S. L. Barrow, president of the First National Bank, of Blackstone, Va., and J. A. Booker, cashier of the Citizens Bank & Trust Co., Blackstone.

There also was an intimation yesterday that the brokerage account of Bishop Cannon would be examined.

Other witnesses summoned yesterday included Dr. Arthur J. Barton, of Atlanta, Ga., a member of the executive committee of the Antisaloon League, and C. B. Stevens, of Charlottesville, Va.

Royalist's Furniture Is Seized for Taxes

Salzburg, Austria, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Bailiffs today removed furniture and art objects belonging to Don Alfonso of Bourbon from Ebenzweier Castle for nonpayment of taxes.

Don Alfonso, a descendant of the Spanish pretender, Don Carlos, has taken the attitude for years that he was entitled to immunity from taxation on the ground that he was exempt from territorial jurisdiction.

Fall in River Drowns Pilot and Passenger

Freeport, Tex., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Lieut. Edgar C. Walthall, of the twelfth squadron, third attack group of Galveston, and Private W. I. Smith of the same group, were drowned in the Brazos River near here today when their plane crashed into the stream.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 21

IN the gay year of 1890 the mounted police force of Washington looked like this. They were commanded by Lieut. F. F. McCathran. The helmet, as you will note in the photograph, was the mode for policemen of that day.

The first unit of mounted police in Washington was qualified September 1, 1861. Congress appropriated $240 a year to feed each horse, but the policemen had to provide their own mounts.

The superintendent of police was also ordered to keep a horse, but Congress generously fed his mount, too. The mounted force increased from time to time until the advent of the auto and then the institution gradually passed.

WINN FOUND GUILTY IN IMMORALITY CASE

Danville Pastor, Fined $50, to Appeal; Is Acquitted of Assault Charge.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 21.—The Rev. J. Arthur Winn, pastor of Moseley Memorial Church for the past four years, was found guilty on two counts alleging immorality and was fined $50, but was acquitted of another count charging assault on Miss Bertha Mabes, a member of his congregation, at the conclusion of a three-day Police Court hearing here today. One of the counts on which he was convicted charged immorality, while the other alleged that he had given Miss Mabes information and directions as to how to reach the study of his church for immoral purposes.

An appeal was noted and the bond of $100 was renewed. Trial of others of ten remaining charges of assault on as many different women was indefinitely postponed pending the outcome of the appeal in the Corporation Court, which meets the first week in September.

The Rev. Mr. Winn did not appear to be affected one way or the other when the decision was announced by Magistrate C. K. Carter, who presided. A crowded courtroom remained motionless and silent after having been warned against any sort of a demonstration upon the announcement of the court's decision.

The trial, which has been replete with sensations, was concluded following more than two hours closing argument by Commonwealth's Attorney John W. Carter. The closing arguments for the defense by M. K. Harrus, of this city, former Senator Walter Mapp and Brooks Mapp, brother-in-law of the defendant, of Accomac, were heard yesterday.

The minister, who is pastor of one of Danville's most influential churches, was arrested recently on eleven misdemeanor warrants, the one just tried, charging assault and immorality, and the other ten accusing him of assaults on as many women, including a Negress.

The pastor denied the accusations of Bertha Mabes and charged that he was the victim of a conspiracy by enemies to injure him, during his testimony of the first trial.

Rain Squalls and Gales Mark Month in Britain

London, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Rain squalls swept by gales continue in the British Isles, and a month of almost unprecedented stormy weather showed little sign of improvement today.

Bathing has been prohibited at some shore resorts because of the dangerous surf. The rains have damaged crops in many parts of the country, and the Thames, swollen by twice the normal August rainfall, is just below flood level. Passengers in last night's channel boats described the crossing as very rough and the coasts generally were lashed by high seas.

U. S. Funds Imperative For Relief, Norris Says

Madison, Wis., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Governmental appropriations rather than private contributions must be made to give relief to the unemployed next winter, Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, said in an interview here today. Senator and Mrs. Norris arrived here fom their summer home in central Wisconsin to attend the funeral of Mrs. Belle Case La Follette.

"Appropriations must be made all along the line," he said, "from the municipality and the county to the Federal Government. These appropriations must come from taxes on great wealth, big incomes and large inheritances."

BRITISH CHIEFS MEET AT NIGHT IN CRISIS

a new election now would cause untold damage to the nation.

Opposition leaders were known definitely to be against it. Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, was hurrying to London from France today and will arrive here tomorrow. This is the second time he has broken his holiday because of the London situation, and it has led to much speculation, since Baldwin undoubtedly would be called upon to form a new government in the event of Mr. MacDonald's resignation.

The government's present difficulties are not so much with the opposition parties, but with its own party, as the Trades Union Congress, with a membership of some 6,000,000, apparently is opposed to the administration's plans of lopping some $600,000,000 from the budget.

Prime Minister MacDonald's proposals are understood to call for a large saving by readjusting the dole and increasing the unemployment contributions of workers. The dole happens to be the pet project of the Trades Union Congress, and committee leaders of the congress, who yesterday delivered that organization's views to the cabinet, were said to have announced that they would stand for almost anything else except interference with this unemployment insurance.

The GIRL About Town

ONE of the Washingtonians who visited the Colonial Exposition at Paris told how Bascom Slemp acted as personal guide through the Mount Vernon building. He had a troop of French women and girls following him. He knows no French, and they know no English. So he waved his hands about in true Gallic fashion, pointing to the replica of the room where Washington died and saying, "Washington—Washington—bed, bed," and the French girls said, "Oui, parfaitement," neither side understanding the other.

* * * *

Nearly all of the Americans going to Paris as Mr. Slemp's guests (at Government expense) traveled on foreign ships. Somebody asked Bascom why he did not require these representatives of the United States to travel on American ships, and he replied, "The appropriation does not require us to use American ships." If he had used French ships his plan might have been construed as a delicate compliment to France, but a lot of the exposition appropriation has gone to British ships. Well, Congress is to blame when it doesn't put a string on public money.

JOY reigned unconfined around Marine Corps headquarters yesterday when Gen. Smedley Butler's request for retirement actually was in hand. He had been threatening this action for some time, but there's many a slip between the cup and Smedley Butler's lip—so dry is he—and the high command hardly dared hope it really would come true. They are all glad to learn that Smedley is to move to Philadelphia.

I met Dave Ingalls, coming or going, who knows which, as I took Aunt Susan through the Navy Building. The Assistant Secretary was in his flying suit, of course. One day he is en route to Cleveland in his private plane, the next one he is coming back, so it is hard to tell when he is a bird alight or aflit. Dave is a favorite of the gods—a pretty wife, lovely home, scads of money and a career. I went to school with Louise Harkness, and I know she deserves all her popularity in the Little Cabinet set.

* * * *

Aunt Susan insisted on lunching at the Capitol. It is not so deserted as one thinks. Some of those big strong men use their minds between sessions of Congress and work in their offices. There was Mrs. Clyde Kelly, a little breathless from a hurried run in from Sherwood Forest, to drag Clyde away from work and back to the cool breezes of that popular resort.

I feel like calling Anna Portner Flood up and congratulating her. How proud she must be that sister Elsa's daughter, Valerie Graham, is making her debut at Newport. It's a long, long way to the Cliff Walk at Newport, but Anna engineered the journey, and it has been accomplished. Valerie's mother, Mrs. Augustine L. Humes, is youthful looking and attractive.

Berlin Police Discover Communists' Arsenal

Berlin, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Police raided a house here today and found a veritable arsenal, described by the raiders as the property of communists. Since the clash with communists in Buelow Platz August 2, the secret political police have been most active, searching for terrorist groups, and today's raid was a consequence of their investigation.

Among the items seized were 17 hand grenades, 33 bottles of chemicals, 11,000 pounds of sacked chemicals, much automatic pistol ammunition, 3 machine guns, and several Mauser pistols.

Expedition's Member Dies in Himalayan Fall

Munich, Germany, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Word today from the Paul Bauer expedition, climbing Kanchenjunga, in the Himalayas, was that Herman Schaller, 25-year-old member of the party, had been killed when he and a native bearer fell off a precipice into a deep chasm on the northeastern spur of the mountain.

The bodies were interred in rocks protruding from the glacier more than 16,000 feet above sea level.

Nine Murder Charges Added to Mine List

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—To the list of 102 murder charges previously returned as a result of labor disorders in the Harlan County coal fields, the grand jury today added 9 more.

Today's murder indictments, which were grouped with 53 less serious ones, name three men on three charges each in connection with a clash last May at Evarts in which four men were slain.

Rail President Found Dead, Pistol at Side

Boston, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Gardner P. Wells, of New York, president of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, was found dead in his office this morning with a pistol by his side.

Wells, who also was president of the Interstate Railway Co. and a director of various other corporations, had been in poor health, an official of the railway said.

CAPITAL'S LOBBYING IS CALLED REFINED

Politics Institute Is Told System's Importance Grows; Big Dinners Denied.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. Herbert von Beckerath, professor of political science of the University of Bonn, asserted at the Institute of Politics tonight that breakdown of the unemployment insurance system in Germany would be "an international disaster."

Such a breakdown, he said, would tend to cause radical political changes, and disrupt economic cooperation between labor and moderate wing of the German bourgeois groups. It is only that cooperation "which can lead Germany out of her critical state," he explained.

In the round table conference on the future of Democracy," Dr. Arthur B. Holcombe, professor of government, of Harvard University, and chairman of the conference, said the present lobby methods in Washington "are more refined" but the importance of the lobby was increasing.

Prof. Holcombe presented two Washington legislative representatives, T. C. Barber, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Elizabeth Eastman, of the Women's Federated Council. Mr. Barber denied the charge that lobbyists "threw big dinners and jackpots of large value in poker to recalcitrant congressmen."

It was asserted that congressmen often resorted to legislative representatives of organizations for information. Miss Eastman said that for 10 years the women's joint congressional committee, popularly known as the "front door lobby," has been serving as a clearing house for the legislative work of more than 15 National Women's organizations. Thus, she pointed out, members of Congress receive only one visit instead of 15 or more from those interested in pending legislation.

Beer Beats Statues, Walker Tells Pilsen

Mayor Quaffs a Big One in Czechoslovakia and Thinks of America.

Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—An American flag flew over the historic Pilsen brewery in honor of Jimmy Walker this afternoon, and New York's oberburgermeister told the assembled city fathers at the ancient city hall that he had no dearer wish for his native city than to see Pilsener signs reappear in its places of conviviality.

After the tour of inspection had been completed the party was ceremoniously led to the brewery's reception hall where a huge goblet of beer was handed to the New York mayor and his health proposed by the chairman of the board of directors.

Quaffing the foaming beverage, Mr. Walker responded, "Hitherto I saw Europe's art galleries, cathedrals and other monuments of human endeavor, but I admit frankly the greatest personal comfort came to me from this luscious beer."

CRIME COST REPORT SETS BILLION TOTAL

Exact Guess Is Declined, but Items Carry Amount Above 10 Figures.

since they are "of less economic importance than the losses inflicted by the criminal."

However, the "efficiency of police administration" was attacked and a suggestion made that this branch of law enforcement be brought to a level "commensurate" with the expenditures upon it. An extension of probation was urged to cut down prison costs.

The expenditure of more money on prosecuting criminals was suggested as an ultimate economy. Finally, a recommendation was made that the number of jury trials be reduced, but that both jurors and witnesses be given increased compensation.

The average Capital resident had to pay $9.21 for his constitutional guarantees of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness last year, a sum exceeded in only two other cities in the United States, the Wickersham Commission's report on "The Cost of Crime" disclosed yesterday.

The only two cities with a higher proportionate cost of justice were Boston, Mass., and Jersey City, N. J. In the quiet Massachusetts capital the average cost was $9.64, and in Jersey City $11.30.

Washington's total bill for 1930 was $4,485,137, the report disclosed. The major item of this was $3,505,015 for police protection. The cost of penal and correctional institutions was next, $479,238. The criminal courts here cost $405,759; criminal prosecution, $86,856, and probation, $8,269.

New York and Chicago Lower.

In New York, where the cost of criminal justice was tenfold the local bill, it averaged only $7.76 per capita, and in Chicago $19,244,249 spent in attempting to enforce the law amounted to but $6.65 per resident.

In Washington, where the total municipal governmental costs mounted in 1930 to $29,337,347, the price of enforcing the law amounted to 15.3 per cent of the total expenses, according to the report. Only four other cities reported a higher proportion, St. Louis, Jersey City, Philadelphia and Woonsocket, R. I.

The commission devoted a paragraph and a table to the National Training School for Boys here, which, according to its computation, cost $207,062 to operate last year. Care of those who stole automobiles formed the largest item of that institution's expense, $98,768.57, the commission reported. Violators of the prohibition law caused the next largest cost, $59,633.86; antinarcotic law offenders cost $1,242.37, and violators of other criminal laws, $47,417.20.

The commission made acknowledgement to Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, and Dr. W. F. Willoughby, director of the Institute for Government Research, for cooperation with Dr. Laurence F. Schmeckebier in preparing a study of crime for Washington.

Auditor Holds Estimate High.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, pointed out that the commission's figures do not tally with those secured by the Efficiency Bureau in 1928 for the Mapes fiscal relations committee of the House. The bureau found Washington police cost only $6.43 per capita in that year.

The District auditor found a close relation, however, between the $3,505,015 the commission said was the local criminal police cost and the total salary upkeep cost of the Metropolitan, Crossing and Park Police. He found the expense of these three totaled $3,439,568.86. The total cost of all the local police departments was $3,521,937 last year.

Chief of Police Henry G. Pratt declined to comment on the commission's report.

Democratic Chief's Wife Indicted as His Slayer

Smithfield, N. C., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Jesse J. Williams, of Clayton, today was indicted for murder of her husband, Johnston County Democratic leader, who was shot to death in his home the night of June 26. She previously had been named as his slayer by a coroner's jury and placed under bond.

At the time of his death, Mrs. Williams said her husband shot himself. Witnesses at the coroner's inquest testified she threatened to kill Williams if he gave attentions to other women.

AMERICAN WHEAT BARTERED FOR COFFEE FROM BRAZIL

come from Brazil. Considerable quantities of American mill flour likewise are exported to Brazil.

A month ago 18,568,000 bags of coffee were stored in Sao Paulo regulatory warehouses, as surplus coffee piled up, in efforts to restrict receipts at primary markets and hold up the price of coffee.

The Stabilization Corporation, if the Chinese negotiations are satisfactorily concluded, will have disposed of approximately 75,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat.

Chairman Stone said the Brazilian barter was based on current market prices of those commodities. He pointed out that the amount of money finally received for the wheat would depend on the market price of coffee when it is sold a year hence.

The coffee involved is exempt from the Brazilian tax. The trade does away with exchange rates, Stone said, which are out of line and will favor Brazil in that respect.

"One big gain in the trade," he added, "is getting the wheat out of this country, and another is fostering friendly relations and stimulating consumption of American wheat."

Last year 4,037,000 bushels of American wheat were exported to that country, 3,154,000 bushels of which were in the form of flour. Most of Brazil's wheat comes from Argentina.

Selling Deemed Easy.

Brazil will pay all freight, insurance, storage and inspection charges on the coffee while the wheat will be shipped f. o. b. American seaports.

Stone said he expected no difficulty in selling the coffee next year to the trade. The Green Coffee Association of New York will meet Monday to consider the effect on regular trading operations. Some concern was said to be felt by the New York importers over the announcement.

The board issued the following statement:

"The Grain Stabilization Corporation announced today (August 21) that with the approval of the Federal Farm Board it had sold 25,000,000 bushels of wheat to the Brazilian government. The wheat is to be paid for by the delivery of 1,050,000 bags of coffee. Under the terms of the agreement the coffee is to be withheld from consumption until the fall of 1932, in accordance with requirements of the Brazilian government now in effect which regulate the amount of exports from that country.

Arrangement for Handling.

"Simultaneously the Brazilian government has signed an agreement with the Bush Terminal Co. of New York, which company undertakes against 225,000 bags shipped to it by the Brazilian government to give to the Grain Stabilization Corporation certain guarantees and to undertake all grading, handling and storage of the coffee, without any expense to the Grain Corporation, under whose control, however, the coffee will remain.

"When the coffee is offered for sale it will be through established channels and for delivery in cumulative monthly allotments of 62,500 bags to avoid disturbance to the coffee trade.

"The wheat will be shipped in monthly installments beginning in September or October and will be from the stocks of the Grain Stabilization Corporation.

"Normally Brazil imports little wheat from the United States, but the United States imports a large part of its coffee requirements from Brazil. It is believed that the results of this transaction will be beneficial to both countries."

FINAL HONORS PAID TO MRS. LA FOLLETTE

Simple Funeral Exercises Consist of Reading of Appreciation.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Belle Case La Follette, "counsellor" of Wisconsin's most illustrious political family, was buried in Forest Hill Cemetery here today beside the grave of her husband, Senator Robert M. La Follette. She died in Washington last Tuesday.

Burial in the family plot, which is unmarked except for a great oak tree, followed simple funeral services at the State Historical Library on the campus of the University of Wisconsin, where Mrs. La Follette and the late senator once were students.

No religious service was conducted. Prof. Max Otto, of the University philosophy department, and close friend of the family, read an appreciation.

"Her life was one of those supreme endeavors to guide mankind to higher levels which constitute the spiritual glory of history," he said. "Her ideal of a possible human society was of breath-taking sublimity and daring; her labors for the realization of the ideal were tireless."

Mrs. La Follette joined with her husband "in a resolute life-long struggle to bring that great society nearer," he said. "She became one with him in his attacks upon dishonesty and corruption in high places; one with him in his unswerving battle for greater justice and freedom for plain men and women everywhere."

Unknown followers of the La Follettes and their progressive movement in Wisconsin mingled with distinguished public officials at the funeral. United States Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, and United State Senator John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, were among those who attended.

Ruth Cranmer Gets Bond in Shooting

State Senator Roy Yates, Victim, Urged to Quit as Legislator.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Ruth Jayne Cranmer was freed in $7,500 bail in magistrate's court today to face trial on September 11, charged with shooting State Senator Roy T. Yates, of Paterson, N. J.

While attorneys were engaged in a sometimes heated argument to obtain her release, pending formal presentation of a case of felonious assault, Yates, center of a political storm in his home State, was asked to resign by John McCutcheon, State controller and Republican leader.

McCutcheon, for many years Yates' close friend and political associate, urged him to give up his seat in the Senate "to save political embarrassment to his party, his friends and himself."

Butler Ready if Needed, President Is Confident

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover said yesterday that if Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler wished to retire from the Marine Corps the Government would approve.

"Gen. Butler is a very gallant officer," the President said, "and I am sure that if the country gets into trouble it will have no trouble getting him back."

Butler announced sometime ago that he intended to retire from the Marine Corps in the fall.

Baltimore Pastor's Body Found at Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The body of the Rev. John W. Cannaday, 25, pastor of the Olive Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, was washed ashore today at Margate City, 6 miles from where freak waves carried him offshore here last Wednesday while bathing.

Police identified the body by a ring inside which his name was inscribed. He was the third victim of the series of high waves which swept the beach. The pastor was on a one-day excursion from Baltimore.

English Royal Couple At Their Summer Home

Balmoral, Scotland, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by Prince George, arrived here today in gloomy weather, to spend their vacation in the royal summer castle.

They traveled overnight from Sandringham by train and stopped briefly at Aberdeen, where they were greeted by civic authorities. The king, wearing highland dress, asked the lord provost about the state of unemployment and expressed hope for improvement.

Fortune in Black Diamonds Unguarded in Times Square

Owner Scoffs at Police Protection Because Crooks Couldn't Sell Gems After Having Stolen Them, But Engineers Pay Fancy Prices.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—In the heart of Times Square, the world's King of Black Diamonds today scoffed at the idea of police proctection for his priceless stock-in-trade.

He is Arthur S. Bandler, owner of probably the only large black diamond concession ever obtained. He spent seven years in the wilds of Brazil developing the unique business and in the last 30 years had handled about $20,000,000 in the rare gems.

"Bandits won't bother us," he declared. "No burglars would believe these stones worth anything. If they did they couldn't do anything with them. Black diamonds can be sold only to mining camps and engineers. There are only a handful of firms in the world that would handle them. Robbers wouldn't stand a chance of disposing of their booty."

The rusty looking stones are unhandsome enough on first acquaintance. Just ugly, darkish stuff, which Bandler crushes in special machinery in his office.

"You wouldn't even pick it up in the street, would you " he grinned. "Well, it's worth more per carat than a white diamond. A woman sales expert, among others, takes small units, worth about $100,000 all told, and visits mining camps all over the world. Sometimes she has to ride horseback into far-off regions, far from rail lines, to her customers. But she goes just the same and presently, on the bitting end of a drill one of these stones will go down 6,000 feet into the earth and bring up core for analysis."

The jet stuff comes from the interior of Brazil, where 1,400 natives, hired at 20 cents a day each, do the mining and transporting. Bandler has built a colony around his concession with schools and a hospital, and his doctors have reduced malaria almost to nil among them.

The black diamond business always has been a great adventure in the Bandler family. When the World War broke out the merchant found his supply cut off. In 1924, with his wife and daughter, Bandler shipped down to Bahia to see what could be done about it. He found it as hard to buy black diamonds there as in New York. But the Bandlers spent many months in the wilds and revolutionized the diamond mining industry at last.

"I had to pay $120 a carat for the stones," he said, "and later $150. I bought $1,000,000 worth in 1924-1925 and finally the Brazilian combination backed out. The price never came down until the recent depression."

Having forced an open market, the prospector turned promoter and obtained from the government the concession under which he operates today.

G. O. P. Is Lauded By Navy Official

Jahncke Claims Tariff Is Responsible for Any Prosperity.

The South was told last night by Assistant Secretary Ernest Lee Jahncke, of the Navy Department, that "whatever degree of prosperity" it has "in these times of depression" it owes to the Republican party and the protective tariff.

"There is no important industry of the South," Mr. Jahncke said, "that does not directly or indirectly benefit by the Republican protective tariff.

Mr. Jahncke said "Democratic leadership most inadequately serves the people of the South," and continued:

"The South needs a declaration of independence from the domination of a time-withered political party whose favors go to the weaker Northern section because favors are unnecessary to hold the allegiance of the Southern section."

He said Florida vegetables, Louisiana sugar and Tennessee and Virginia rayon are protected by the tariff "in spite of Southern opposition."

Pola Negri to Escape Operation, Doctors Say

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Physicians attending Pola Negri, motion picture actress, stricken Thursday with acute appendicitis at her Beach home here, decided today not to operate.

Dr. Leo J. Madsen, Miss Negri's physician, said her condition showed improvement.

Press Groups Bar Sweepstake News

Services Give Assurance of Ban to Postoffice Authorities.

(Associated Press.)

The Postoffice Department has been assured by the Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service that they will not distribute news matter relating to sweepstake lotteries.

Arch Coleman, Acting Postmaster General, yesterday announced the press associations had agreed to cooperate to the fullest extent in efforts of the department to exclude such matter from the mails.

Action of the associations, Mr. Coleman said, was to be commended. He pointed out that the department is required by law to prosecute persons disseminating such information in the mails.

U. S. Remits Capt. Hawks' Fine.

(Associated Press.)

The Customs Bureau yesterday ordered remitted a $500 fine assessed by the collector of customs at Burlington, Vt., against Frank M. Hawks, of New York, and Maude Tait, of Springfield, Mass., for landing their airplane at Burlington without obtaining permission from the Treasury to do so.

AWARDS ARE MADE FOR CHOICE RECIPES

With Vacations Nearing End Renewed Interest Arises in Post Contest.

With the return of many housewives who have been on vacation renewed interest will be taken in the weekly prize recipe contest.

The Food Editor requests that all contestants write plainly in ink, on one side of the paper only. Be sure to sign entries with your name, address and city. Otherwise it will be difficult to reach you with your prize.

Another thing: All recipes sent for this contest must contain the names of ingredients advertised on this page or those of the stores which advertise them. This contest, while primarily to provide new and interesting recipes for menu books, is also intended to invite special attention to the group of advertisements which appear on each page Saturday. In these advertisements are many suggestions for the busy housewife, and she will find it of real profit to read them closely. Prizes awarded are:

LADY BALTIMORE CAKE.
(Honorable Mention.)

¾ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
1 cup of sweet milk
3 cups of Washington Flour
2 teaspoons of baking powder
6 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and sugar. Beat until light. Add milk. Add flour in which baking powder has been sifted. Mix well. Flavor and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in layers in a quick oven. Make a large three-layer cake. If a small cake is desired, halve the recipe.

Put layers together with the following:

Icing.

2 cups of Zirkle's delicious strained honey
½ cup water
2 egg whites
1 cup of chopped raisins
½ cup of chopped figs
½ cup of pecans
½ cup of almonds

Make a boiled icing by cooking honey and water until it spins a thread when dropped from the tip of spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff. Divide icing, leaving out enough for top and sides of cake. Mix fruit and nuts with remainder and put between layers. Decorate with whole nuts.

MISS EMMELINE H. PEARSON.

Recipe for Jiffy Cake Wins $5 for Mrs. Atkins

Mrs. Ella M. Atkins, of 219 Twelfth street southwest. Her recipe for this toothsome cake won the weekly $5 prize offered by The Post for the best recipe using products advertised on the Saturday Food Page.

Confection Capturing Post Award Can Be Baked in 15 Minutes.

A recipe for "jiffy cake" prepared by Mrs. Ella M. Atkins, of 219 Twelfth street southwest, quickly won the $5 first prize awarded every week for the best formula calling for ingredients advertised on the Saturday Food Page of The Post.

The cake derives its name from the speed with which it can be prepared and baked. Mrs. Atkins advises baking for about fifteen minutes at a temperature between 300 and 350 degrees.

For the body of the cake all she requires is 4 eggs, 2 cups of sugar, 2 cups of Washington Self Rising Flour, and a cup of hot milk. This amount makes three 9-inch layers of cake.

Her recipe for the tasty filling is almost as simple and is as quickly prepared. It is:

JIFFY CAKE.

4 eggs
2 cups of sugar
2 cups of Washington Flour, self-rising
1 cup hot milk

Makes three 9-inch layers.

Break eggs in bowl; beat to froth. Sift in sugar a little at a time, beating or stirring. Sift flour once before measuring, and then sift into eggs and sugar. Add hot milk a little at a time. Add 2 tablespoons of vanilla. Batter is very thin. Bake in temperature 300 to 350 degrees about fifteen minutes.

Filling: 2 squares of chocolate
1 pound XXXX Sugar
1 tablespoon of butter
3 tablespoons of Wilkins Coffee (left-over coffee)
1 teaspoon of vanilla

Melt butter, chocolate and coffee together, stirring in the sugar gradually. Add more coffee if necessary or more chocolate if you like a dark brown.

ELLA M. ATKINS.

LUNCH AND SUPPER URGED FOR PICNICS

Hot Food Should Be Served at Noon, Prepared on Outing Grounds.

Children and young people generally will rejoice in the news that the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture advocates all-day picnics with both lunch and supper in the open air as part of a low cost food budget. It will take careful planning, warns the bureau, but there will be fun in it.

And so there will be. Perhaps the best plan is to have one hot and one cold meal for the all-day picnic, with the hot meal preferably in the evening, the bureau points out. But if you are carrying fresh meat without a portable refrigerator, the hot meal should be at noon, for, without ice, it will not be wise to keep the meat until evening. All the necessary provisions and equipment can be carried in a knapsack, basket or old suitcase. Paper napkins, plates and cups, old knives and forks and spoons, a can opener, a pot to make the coffee in, and a light weight skillet are equipment enough for a simple picnic.

For the de luxe picnic there are special containers to keep foods crisp and palatable. But roughing it has its advantages in its complete informality and in the satisfaction to be gained from a brief excursion back to more primitive housekeeping days. With the aid of a skillet and a pot for the coffee, a satisfying and delicious supper of cold meat loaf, fried apples, corn on the cob, and coffee can be cooked over an open fire.

None of the hot foods in this picnic supper require a roaring fire. The corn will take longest to cook. The ears, by the way, should be dipped in water before being laid on the broiler or grate. During the 30 minutes or so that it takes to cook, the corn should be turned occasionally so that the ears cook on all sides. Many picnic grounds are equipped with grates or open fireplaces, so it is seldom necessary to carry one from home. But corn can also be cooked right in the fire, much as potatoes are baked, the husks taking the place of the mud casing of the latter. When the corn is about half done the fried apples should be started at one edge of the fire and the coffee at another.

For lunch the bureau suggests making sandwiches of lettuce and sardines, the large variety of which are packed in tomato sauce and which sell for about ten cents a pound can. These carry well, as do the sticks of raw fresh cucumbers and carrots which the bureau suggests as a relish. These are cut from the vegetables in finger lengths and wrapped in waxed paper at home or they may be cut at the picnic grounds. When dipped in salt and pepper they offer a pleasant variety to the usual picnic relish of pickles. Quartered or sliced tomatoes, with peaches for dessert make an adequate balance for this lunch.

These two picnic meals are intended for older children and adults only. When young children are in the party a dish easy to prepare is milk vegetable soup. Cans of evaporated milk and mixed strained vegetables can easily be carried along and blended together just before serving. The evaporated milk can also be used for hot or cold cocoa drinks which would supply the children with their daily milk.

Frankfurters, sardines, doughnuts, raw carrots and cucumbers, sweet corn and coffee are not suitable for very young children. But they may have any of the other picnic foods mentioned.

The modern refrigerator is electrical

Let electric refrigeration save . . . the costly foods you now waste

"GUESSWORK" refrigeration is out of date. Health and appetite must be served. Food waste prevented. Time, money and labor saved. Only electric refrigeration solves this many-sided problem.

Your Electric Refrigerator will make it possible for you to take the fullest advantage of the substantial savings you can effect by purchasing food in greater quantities. You need have no fear of food spoilage in your Electric Refrigerator, for the constant temperature of less than 50 degrees will keep it fresh for long periods.

Further savings in the family budget are made possible because of the very low rates for "Matchless Service" to operate your Electric Refrigerator. It takes only a few pennies a day and the added convenience and dependability are alone worth more than that. Don't put off purchasing your Electric Refrigerator for another day.

DR. PALMER'S CAREER IN WEST IS RECALLED

Wild Men in Black Hills Are Tamed by Youthful Missionary.

By DAVID GRAHAM.

(The writer of this article is pastor of the Union Congregational Church of Hill City, S. Dak. He gives some interesting personal history of Dr. John C. Palmer, minister of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, who founded the first church at Hill City and recently went there to attend a celebration in his honor.)

Sometime during the year 1891, while the Black Hills of South Dakota were attracting pioneers and there was much talk of "gold in them thar hills," a young man just out of a Presbyterian theological seminary was sent out to Hill City as a missionary. Then, as now, Hill City was in the geographical center of the Black Hills and tin mining had attracted numbers of Cornish tin miners to the town.

The well-known English passion for gambling, together with the pioneer spirit of the times and the greed for gold, made Hill City a most unlikely place to preach the gospel of meekness and peace, but John Carpenter Palmer was a resourceful young man and an athlete. Before long he was playing second base on the local ball team, and the older residents still recall that when he took his place on the field Hill City enthusiasts bet thousands of dollars on the game. They seldom lost their money, but Mr. Palmer (he was not Dr. Palmer then) was in it for the love of the game.

Permitted to Wear Silk Hat.

After the first few games he became popular and he was the only man permitted to wear a silk hat, according to a story told recently. A stranger appeared in town one day while Dr. Palmer was there wearing a silk hat, and before he reached the hotel his hat was shot off. A few days later "Preacher Palmer," as he was called, appeared on the streets wearing a silk hat. Two men drew their guns to shoot off his hat, but they were immediately covered by so many guns that they decided to forego the sport. Some of his friends walked behind him up the street with drawn guns till it was an understood thing that one man had won the privilege of wearing a silk hat on the streets of Hill City.

"Preacher Palmer" was called for jury duty once in a rather sordid case where an old lawyer had been robbed of a diamond ring belonging to his wife. Had the plaintiff been where he ought to be the theft would not have occurred, as the defendant was a woman of loose morals. The lawyer admitted some things not to his credit, and it was Palmer who suggested the novel verdict rendered by a jury out of sympathy with both sides: "Not guilty, but you must return the ring." The lawyer's wife got her ring back and the case was dismissed.

Wife Hill City Girl.

Mrs. Palmer is a Hill City girl, her father, who died in Washington a few months ago, being a business man in Hill City during the boom period. She and Dr. Palmer were married in Hill City amid general rejoicing on the part of the miners and other enthusiastic supporters of the red-headed Presbyterian preacher.

A Masonic lodge was chartered in Hill City in 1892 and one of the first initiates was the preacher, who the following year became senior warden. His removal to New York prevented him from taking the master's chair the following year.

Dr. Palmer has had only three pastorates in his entire ministry. He spent three years at Hill City, eighteen years in New York and he is now in his nineteenth year at Washington Heights Presbyterian Church. A story is told of the first wedding ceremony he performed.

The happy bridegroom told him to be sure to be on time, as a splendid dinner was arranged for 1 o'clock and the bridal party would have to hurry to catch the afternoon train. At 12 o'clock the guests assembled, but the bride, from behind closed doors, pleaded for more time. At 1 o'clock she was still in her room and no information was forthcoming except that she wanted more time. By 2 o'clock the bridegroom was frantic and every one else felt nervous, but nothing happened till 3 o'clock the door opened and the bride, with her attendants, made their appearance.

Bought Ticket for One.

The ceremony was hurriedly performed, the bridal couple were rushed to the station just in time to buy tickets, but the bridegroom boarded the train with only one ticket. He had forgotten to buy two. Later on the secret was revealed and every one was satisfied. The bride spilled a bottle of ink down the front of her wedding gown and refused to leave her room till she had secured a new piece and had it sewed in.

Dr. Palmer was in Hill City last week for the first time since the early days, but the six or eight old-timers left agreed that he is still the same red-headed "Preacher Palmer" who played baseball and tennis and was one of the two preachers whose impressions have been permanent and whose memory is loved by all who knew them.

Perhaps it was coincidence, but it so happened that the other preacher visited Hill City at the same time and the presence of the outstanding leaders of the entire history of churches in Hill City was a double blessing to the people who knew them and remembered them with sincere affection.

Dr. Palmer has risen in esteem in his parish, in his synod and in Masonry, but he will never experience deeper, more lasting affection than that with which he is regarded by saint and sinner alike in this little parish or by this little lodge of Masons to be found in the heart of the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Church of God Pastor Lincoln Park Preacher

The Rev. C. W. Oyer, pastor of the Church of God, will deliver the address at the Y. M. C. A. open air service in Lincoln Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The meeting will open with a song service under direction of W. R. Schmucker.

Bible Class Plans Picnic.

The Timothy Bible Class for Men of the Ninth Street Christian Church will hold their annual class picnic in Rock Creek Park, just back of the Sixteenth Street Reservoir, next Saturday afternoon. Plans are formulating for a very large gathering.

WILL PREACH

well-known Baptist evangelist, who will preach at the First Baptist Church in this city tomorrow. Dr. S. J. Porter, the pastor, is on vacation. Dr. Palmer is one of the best known ministers in his connection.

Raskob Children In Regatta Mishap

John J., Jr., and Betty Are Driven Ashore in Bay; Big Race Deferred.

Chestertown, Md., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Two sailing boats of the star class, piloted by children of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, ran ashore in a high sea at Strong Point on Chesapeake Bay today, in the annual regatta of the Chester River Yacht Club. Motor-boats went to their assistance. One of the small craft, the Carrie Buggs, was sailed by John J. Raskob, jr., and the other by Betty Raskob.

A high sea and a 40-mile northeast wind played havoc with the regatta and the principal race scheduled for the day, the Chesapeake Bay free-for-all sailing championship was postponed until Sunday.

Mr. Raskob appeared with two craft for this event, but declined to race in view of the fact that the $3,000 gold trophy, the Bill Raskob Memorial Cup, was offered by him. He won last year's race.

LanternFestival Unlikely Before Fall and Indoors

The Lantern Festival, outdoor event sponsored by the District Community Center Department which was postponed from last night until tonight, has again been postponed because of weather conditions until some later date during the fall, according to an announcement made yesterday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Peoples, who announced the postponement, said that after consultations with park authorities and the Weather Bureau, it was agreed that the grounds would be in no shape, even in the event of sunshine today, to give the festival on the grassy slopes of the Washington Monument tonight.

While no further plans for the presentation of the festival have been definitely reached, it was said that it would probably be held later in the fall in some indoor auditorium.

Pope and Italian Envoy To Vatican Confer Again

Vatican City, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Rev. Tacchi Venturi conferred today for three hours with Pope Pius, presumably about the relations of the Holy See with the Italian government. It was their second conference in two days.

Shortly after he had left the pontiff the Italian Ambassador to the Holy See arrived to confer with Cardinal Pacelli, the papal secretary of state. There was an inclination to believe that a settlement of the dispute with the government is not far distant.

Tennessee Pastor to Preach.

For a second Sunday the Rev. Wiley R. Deal, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Maryville, Tenn., will fill the pulpit of the West Washington Baptist Church.

COLORED CATHOLICS GIVE MYSTERY PLAY

Portrayal in Anacostia Said to Be More Moving Than at Oberammergau.

By WILLIAM FRANKLIN SANDS
(In the Baltimore Catholic Review).

There is an interesting movement developing in one of the colored Catholic parishes of Washington which is most worthy of attention.

Ten years ago a tract of land was acquired by the archbishop out of one of the old Civil War forts that formed the inner defense line of Washington, and the parish of Our Lady of Perpetual Help was established under the Rev. F. M. Schneeweiss.

Many attempts have been made to develop some parish activity that would hold the interest of all members, ranging from Scout troops to the usual social gatherings.

Nothing took root, however, until, several years ago, a young Howard University student, a very real leader, offered himself to the rector of the parish as a volunteer worker with the boys. Discovering a considerable musical talent, trained by the sisters of the parish school, a beginning was made in the presentation of biblical tableaux accompanied by the old Negro spirituals.

All Join in Tableaux.

Out of that beginning has grown an annual Mystery Play, in honor of the Assumption which has drawn in the whole parish, just as it did so many centuries ago in Oberammergau; men of over 80 years of age down to the smallest infants.

The annual presentation draws its audience now from the surrounding Baptist and Methodist communities, as well as from parish membership.

The men of the parish have taken advantage of the natural setting and built an open stage across a wooded ravine, each contributing his labor, as the old cathedrals were built in Europe in the Age of Faith. It is a more perfect community work than I have seen in any other American parish.

Portrayal Is Natural.

The keynote of this success lies in the double fact that something has been found to draw out all the latent love of art and music in the Negro, and that mere "acting" has been rigidly avoided.

As in Oberammergau, each one taking part is taught to express simply and symbolically only what he or she would do naturally if really doing the things portrayed. The result is high art and a deeply impressive spirituality which is the essence of the true Mystery Play.

I can say, soberly and without exaggregation that I have not seen at Oberammergau, with all its centuries of tradition, a more deeply impressive Passion and Crucifixion. It is a community prayer, as it should be, not a pageant nor a play.

Baltimore Conference Of Methodists Deferred

Winchester, Va., Aug. 21.—The Baltimore annual conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will meet in Roanoke, Va., September 30, instead of September 28, according to word received here today.

The postponement was voted unanimously at a meeting of the bishop's cabinet, and was done at the request of the presiding elders of the eight districts of the conference. It was said that they had been unable to get all their reports from church pastors in time for the conference if held on the original date. The conference will meet in Greene Memorial Church, and will be in session about one week.

Will Address Harrison Class.

Reuben P. Leatherwood will be the speaker before the Harrison Men's Bible Class of Congress Street Methodist Church tomorrow morning. His subject will be "The Gospel for All Men." J. C. Pipkins will teach the class.

Dr. Briggs Back in Pulpit.

Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, has returned from his vacation in North Carolina and will be in his pulpit at both services tomorrow.

At Petworth Baptist Church.

Dr. Franklin I. Winter, minister of the First Congregational Church of Ashland, Ohio, will preach at Petworth Baptist Church tomorrow morning.

Tennessee Forces Tags On Interstate Trucks

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Tennessee today entered the three-cornered Kentucky-North Carolina-Georgia truck tag warfare by arresting a driver from Marietta, Ga., and one from Ensley, Ala., and assessing them license fees.

Joe Williams, assistant chief of the State highway patrol, said a formal order had been issued instructing the patrol to take into custody all trucks operated through the State on a regular schedule. He said those making occasional trips would be given the tourist's courtesy of free passage.

Dedication Is Planned For Hopewell Convent

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 21.—The convent of St. James' Catholic Church at Hopewell, which has just been completed, will be dedicated on Sunday, September 6.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the dedication. The services will be conducted by Father James Gacquin, the pastor, and other Catholic clergymen. The convent will house the Sisters of Mercy of Scranton, who will have charge of the school.

39th Candidate Enters Contest in Arlington

James R. Williams, of Highland Park, Arlington County, a resident for the past eleven years, yesterday filed his intention to become a candidate for one of the five seats on the county board, which on and after January 1, 1932, replaces the present three members of the county board of supervisors, in accordance with the new form of county government.

Mr. Williams is the thirty-ninth person to announce his candidacy for this office.

Following the Gleam

TENNYSON'S last volume, published just before his death, includes "Merlin and the Gleam," an allegory of the ideals he had set before himself as a poet. He, as the old man, talks to the young mariners just about to set out. He tells of the Gleam which shines for every one who will see it; which calls, which beckons on through wilderness, drear hollows and mountain wraiths; which passes the warbling waters and cataract music of falling torrents and over the levels of pasture and ploughland. Onward, and ever onward, it leads. To follow it is to live, to die in the search for it is happiness, for the Gleam can never fail.

"There on the border
Of boundless Ocean
And all but in Heaven
Hovers the Gleam."

So to the young mariners, the old magician gives his parting word of counsel—

"Down to the haven,
Launch your vessel
And crowd your canvas,
And ere it vanishes
Over the margin,
After it, follow it,
Follow the Gleam."

Our Lord followed the gleam of holy purpose to do his Father's will and so blazed love's Road Beautiful for us to follow. With face set steadfast he marched past all the milestones along our winding trail, "in all points tempted like as we."

The winged Victory, which the Messenians set on their temple at Olympia, stood on a block of stone above the temple, but the block was painted blue, so that, as the spectator came up, he saw the temple and the angle of its roof, and then what appeared to be a gap of blue sky and the exquisitely carved goddess just beginning to fly from the summit of the temple—quite a clever piece of deception. There was no such make-believe about Jesus. His ascent was over the solid steps of human experience. "Making himself of no reputation, he took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God hath highly exalted him and given him a name which is above every name."

INEXCUSABLE DELAY.

Hearings in Washington on the railroads' petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates have been concluded. Additional testimony will be taken in five Western cities, but the nature of the opposition has been clearly indicated. No one has attempted to challenge the carriers' argument that they are in dire need of greater revenue. Farming, mining and manufacturing interests merely contend that higher railroad rates would impose an additional burden upon them and thus discourage business recovery and would divert traffic to competing agencies of transportation.

There is no direct clash between the contentions of the carriers and claims of those interests opposing higher rates. On the one hand, the railroads point out that their net operating income declined 57.6 per cent during the first half of 1931 as compared with the first half of 1929. In the first six months of this year they earned only 2.15 per cent on their investment, in spite of the fact that the law instructs the Interstate Commerce Commission to establish rates that will give the carriers a "fair return." The commission has heretofore held that a fair return should be 5¾ per cent.

The need of the railroads for more revenue is not open to question. But shippers contend that the railroads are not in more straitened circumstances than are many other industries; that an increase in freight rates at a time when commodity prices are tobogganing to lower levels would work a hardship on business. In other words, the farmer, coal operators and other shippers think that the railroads ought to share the losses occasioned by the depression in spite of the fact that they are under Government regulation and are not allowed to accumulate surplus funds in prosperous years.

In reality what the railroads need is not higher rates but more traffic. The volume of freight hauled fell off 14 per cent in 1930, and during the first half of 1931 was 27 per cent less than in the corresponding period of 1929. Higher rates are urged as a substitute for normal business. Presumably the carriers would not be asking for an increase if the demand for their services were normal. Their petition must be regarded, therefore, as an emergency demand.

Indications are that when business picks up the carriers will be able to earn a fair return with rates approximately equal to the present schedules. Certainly they would not ask to retain emergency rates any longer than necessary with the threat of encroachment by trucks, pipelines and waterways constantly over them. Why does not the commission deal with this petition as an emergency measure and leave the question of future rates for future action?

When the commission finishes gathering its elaborate data it must decide the issue at hand largely on the basis of theory. The facts on which that theory must turn are already well known. The railroads need more revenue and the public needs low freight rates so that the movement of commodities will not be hampered. Shall a return of 2.15 per cent be considered reasonable in view of the depression and the encroachment of competitors, or shall higher rates be established for the period of this emergency?

That fundamental question can not be altered by the opinions of a thousand farmers or by meticulous probing into unimportant details. Hearings thus far held have thrown little new light on the situation. Why should the same ground be covered again at Dallas, Salt Lake City, Kansas City, Chicago and other Western centers? The commission is taking all summer to decide an issue that it could have disposed of in a few weeks. Its procrastination is inexcusable.

MEXICO'S EXPERIMENTS.

Mexico is embarking upon experiments in finance and the regulation of industry that threaten to bring about serious complications for business throughout the republic. The sudden withdrawal of gold from circulation in favor of the silver peso has caused serious loss to all holders of gold contracts and made doubly difficult the payment of foreign obligations that now must be liquidated at exchange premiums of 50 to 100 per cent.

To this complication the government has added a revolutionary labor law, controlling the relations between employers and their employes, that will virtually render employers impotent to conduct their business, except at the behest of the employes.

An eminent group of employers has memorialized the president, expressing belief that the law would not only defeat its own purpose, but the curtailment of industrial activity resulting therefrom would still further react upon the unfavorable exchange rate of the silver currency, thus adding to business difficulties.

The law gives labor privileges which employers claim will be ruinous to industry. It upholds the collective labor contract, obliging employers to contract directly with unions for their help, concedes the right to strike, and permits strikers to close a business while a labor controversy is in progress. Employers are obligated to provide living quarters for labor and only a limited number of employes who are not Mexican citizens can be hired.

Hope was felt until the last that the general protests that had been made against this measure, even after it had passed Congress, would lead President Ortiz Rubio to veto it. Since he has given it executive approval its provisions will take effect immediately following publication. Foreign banks and branches that have already withdrawn from all credit business, may retire from the country entirely. The new labor law may have an equally serious effect upon industry.

PLANNING IN ADVANCE.

In times of depression cities are urged to expand their public improvement projects in order that work may be provided for the unemployed. Money for such enterprises, however, can not always be raised by additional taxation because hard times mean lower incomes. Taxpayers are reluctant to vote bond issues at such times, as they do not wish to assume the burden of interest and the future charges for retirement of the bonds. Money for such purposes is much more readily secured before the crisis.

During times of prosperity voters are usually willing to provide for public improvements, but they seldom wish to wait until the next depression to carry out projects for which appropriations have been made. This can be avoided in many cases by having the people vote bonds which would be ready to sell, but would be held over until the time of need. If these bonds could be released at such a period they would easily be disposed of, as during a depression hundreds of millions of dollars are withdrawn from industrial investments and the demand for first-class bonds is greatly increased. In a majority of American cities this would be possible, as most of them have a considerable margin of unused credit.

Cities that are growing rapidly can not postpone improvement and building projects. Construction of sewers, water systems, street lights and schools must keep up with city growth. In such cases, though none of these works can be delayed, extra work can be provided by planning ahead. In Milwaukee the school board keeps its building plans prepared for five years in the future, and the department of streets and sewers has projects in advance of its usual requirements. By having blue prints and specifications completed the work can be launched as soon as an urgent situation arises. The benefit of this intelligent forethought is reflected in the comparatively stable situation of that city's laboring class.

This type of planning should recommend itself to cities throughout the country so that the future will find them prepared to cope with the problem of unemployment. The present emergency is so extraordinary that no city can expect to take care of its unemployed through public improvements. More extensive plans are necessary to provide for the acute needs that will be certain to arise during the winter. The urgent demand for relief work this year should impress every community with the necessity of planning against unemployment crises in the future.

WORLD DEMAND FOR WHEAT.

The decision of the Farm Board to sell wheat to China may develop a much larger market there than is indicated by the initial transaction involving 15,000,000 bushels. The rice crop of Japan is so short that exports have been prohibited by the government. In Burma rice production is far below the average this year. Resulting high prices for rice and the low price of wheat indicate a certain increased demand for wheat will be forthcoming from China. While China is the greatest rice producer in the world, she requires additional imports amounting to almost 1,500,000,000 pounds annually.

Northern China has been consuming wheat in increasing amounts during recent years, normally importing about 50,000,000 bushels a year, most of which comes from Australia. It is believed that China's demands for foreign wheat may readily be doubled this year. The Chinese market has the particular attraction that it will absorb the poorer grades of wheat.

Experts estimate the international wheat requirements for the year from August 1, 1931, to July 31, 1932, at 776,000,000 bushels. The exportable surplus of the world is estimated at 192,000,000 bushels in excess of this, even after shipments have been completed and reserves held. The world requirements are divided as follows: United Kingdom, 248,000,000 bushels; the Continent, 320,000,000 bushels, and the rest of the world, 208,000,000 bushels. A decreased demand of about 60,000,000 bushels from Europe, due to good crops there, may be offset by the increased demand from the Orient.

The world market will be supplied by wheat-raising countries, according to the Broomhall survey, in the following ratio, expressed in bushels: United States, 324,000,000; Canada, 176,000,000; Argentina, 120,000,000; Russia, 120,000,000; Australia, 80,000,000; Balkans and Hungary, 40,000,000, and all other countries, 16,000,000, thus completing the total of 776,000,000 bushels.

COST OF CRIME.

George W. Wickersham and his ten colleagues, who constitute the National Law Enforcement Commission, threw up their hands in despair when confronted with the question of what crime costs the United States. The figures which they were able to assemble indicate that appropriations for police regulations, losses through theft, expenditures for penal institutions, criminal insurance, &c., aggregate more than $1,119,790,000. But these figures are far from being a complete tabulation of the cost of crime. The commission found that "losses due to commercialized fraud and racketeering are enormous, and very probably exceed those due to any other form of crime."

Even though the commission found it "wholly impossible" to make an accurate estimate of the cost of crime its report discredits most of the estimates that are currently used. One authority, who is frequently quoted, places the cost of crime in America at about $12,000,000,000. When a committee of experts with the aid of many research workers can account for less than 10 per cent of that amount after two years study, there is good reason for believing that it is far too high. Crime is unquestionably a heavy burden upon the people, but there is no reason why the costs or the profits from crime should be exaggerated.

Apparently the largest item enumerated by the Law Enforcement Commission is the cost of police control. It is questionable whether the expenses of police departments should be included in the cost of crime. Much of these funds go toward the prevention of crime but large amounts are spent for purposes not directly connected with crime, such as the direction of traffic. There is a wide difference between expenditures to maintain law and order and losses suffered by the public through racketeering, fraud and malicious destruction of property.

Washington may be proud of the fact that its per capita expenditures for law enforcement and criminal justice rank high. It should be remembered, however, that the District has no State government to share these expenditures. The effectiveness with which crime is handled and the extent to which it is prevented is far more important than the relative costs of police protection. Criminal records indicate that Washington is compensated for its high expenditures by having fewer crimes than the average American city of its size.

It is notable that the commission did not recommend curtailment of expenditures for law enforcement anywhere. This item entering into the cost of crime may be expected to grow constantly larger, but other items will probably shrink substantially as a result.

WASHINGTON'S TWO AXES

By CHARLES W. ELIOT 2d, Director of Planning, National Capital Park and Planning Commission, in the American Civic Annual.

The features of the National Capital which have made Washington known as a city of potential beauty and magnificence are concentrated along two lines which, from the beginning of the Federal City, have been the controlling axes of the great plan of Washington. One of these lines runs east and west and is already marked by the Capitol, Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial. The other great line runs north and south, along Sixteenth street, through the White House, and down the 10-mile straight course of the Potomac River to Mount Vernon.

These two great lines or axes were the basis of the original plan for the Federal City prepared by Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant in 1791, and are today the basis for new plans and studies being made by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for the larger region into which Washington is rapidly growing. Many of the plans, schemes and possibilities along these two great axes, suggested by the director of planning and staff of the commission, have never received any official indorsement or approval of the commission, and are here presented solely as the ideas of an individual.

The axis line through the Capitol, Monument and Lincoln Memorial had been studied in great detail by Maj. L'Enfant, the McMillan Commission of 1901, the Commission of Fine Arts and by the Planning Commission, but always with primary emphasis on the section west of the Capitol to the Potomac River. With the growth of the city beyond the limits of the original L'Enfant plan, across the Potomac and the Anacostia Rivers, the time has come for a study of this line for greater distances. The topographic conditions about Washington make the natural limits of this axis the bounding hills on the east and west.

Approaching Washington from Annapolis and the east, the view of the Capitol dome first breaks upon the visitor as he comes over the Anacostia hills. Just at this point on the axis line are the remaining earthworks of an old Civil War fort, known as Fort Chaplin, which command a view of the two rivers, the city and beyond to the Arlington Ridge. At this "entrance" to the National Capital, it has been proposed to arrange a plaza or circle, marking the point where the Fort Drive or Parkway will eventually cross the axis line. The visitor would then have a choice of continuing straight ahead toward the Capitol dome, or of taking the Fort Drive encircling the city and connecting the Civil War forts and the wonderful views which they command.

On the axis line, sweeping down the hill straight toward the Capitol dome, the visitor would pass Minnesota avenue and over the railroad, to the low-lying land along the Anacostia River. Beyond the axis line crosses the river and by two proposed bridges leaps the artificial lake created in the course of the project to reclaim the marshes. These bridges would be located exactly at the point originally suggested by Maj. L'Enfant and are referred to as "the two bridges" in the notes on his plan.

On the Washington side, it has been proposed that a monumental entrance to the city should be arranged. Such an entrance might be flanked on either hand by a sylvan theater and a stadium. The natural bank between the lands now being built upon and the low-lying park lands is ideally suited for development as a grandstand overlooking a broad field and the Kingman Lake beyond. A stadium to accommodate 75,000 to 100,000 persons could be erected here for use on ceremonial occasions, in Olympic games, Army and Navy games or air circuses. A site for a future great memorial has been suggested on the axis line at this point, which is almost exactly the same distance from the Capitol on the east as the Lincoln Memorial is on the west.

From this point to the "Congress House," as L'Enfant called it, East Capitol street now exists. This street it is now proposed to transform into an "Avenue of the States." Along it there are some 50 sites for buildings of various sizes which would serve as permanent headquarters and exhibition buildings for the several States. In front of each building, or in its main hallway, would be locations for statues. These sites would take the place of Statuary Hall in the Capitol.

POST HASTE.

Life in China isn't a fair gamble; there are too many heads and not enough taels.

The London stock market goes up with a regularity that is positively insulting to free-trade England every time a tariff is even discussed.

The Farm Board will sell 15,000,000 bushels of wheat to China. Couldn't they slip in double measure when China isn't looking?

Official impotence in its bankruptcy muddle causes conjecture as to whether Chicago has not overlooked the utilization of Capone's experience in making collections.

Mr. Gifford's Tel. & Tel., biggest corporation in the world, will pay its regular quarterly dividend on the basis of $9 a share. He is the right man to head the world's biggest relief organization.

An aerial tour of the world sounds fine, but the Lindy family is welcome to all the nights spent in a plane riding a choppy sea.

Surely no one will be so rude as to suggest that the bankers approve revision of Government war debts because it would strengthen international bank loans.

Mexican novices in economics and finance are learning a lot, but their official education is proving costly for business and monetary values.

Germany promptly sends a mayor to offset Jimmy Walker's visit, but France is still searching for a delegation to match the bunch we sent there.

Gov. Murray put his hall mark on the application of the old Army game to oil, but Sterling is not afraid of being stamped as an imitation.

Detroit will spend $200,000,000 for a subway. No, it is not to connect with the Canadian border.

No wonder Mr. Gifford is able to do so much in the daytime, since he does not fish or play golf, but how does he bridge over his evenings?

When the Federal Treasury needs a small-change loan like $60,000,000 the most interest Americans can evince is about a four-to-one oversubscription, but give them a chance at $800,000,000 and they double that showing.

The roll of the National Advisory Committee indicates that if the members are too busy to attend meetings, they can just send in their checks and the whole financial campaign will be over.

You think you are abused? If England's rate of taxation were in force here, not only would there be no deficit, but it would provide the Federal budget five times over.

Capt. Hawks will soon have to begin flying backward or upside down in order to make any new records.

Slogan: You gave for war till it hurt; give now for the unemployed until you feel just wonderful.

GOING AUTOMATIC.

The fad for automats, or, more properly, automatic selling devices, is not confined to the United States. It is highly popular in Germany, according to the New York Evening Post. That country, in fact, seems to have outstripped us in ingenuity. Books, newspapers, writing paper and beer have long been sold by pfennig-in-the-slot machines, and a specially intricate contraption disposes of hot wieners and mustard, boiled before the eyes of the expectant purchaser. A still more recent development is the automatic receiving teller which accepts deposits at the municipal savings institutions and returns an official receipt.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY Dear Louise:

It is your misfortune to live and learn in an age of intellectual cowardice.

The world has seen many such periods.

Usually they come as an aftermath of war or plague, when people driven to desperation make life a mad frolic to avoid going insane.

People don't think at such times.

They gamble, drink, live on their nerves, laugh at tragedy, mock things that are sacred, keep themselves drunk on excitement and use wise cracks as a substitute for intelligence.

The present isn't as bad as that; but the tendency is to live for the indulgence of the moment, make whoopee to cover anxiety, pretend there is no tomorrow, and play with fire to get a kick that will prevent thinking.

Young and old are afraid to think.

They much prefer saying: "We are here and can't help it, and there's no use wondering why or worrying about it."

Well, they are wrong, my dear, and they are storing up trouble for themselves.

Nobody can stay excited all the time. The longest and gayest party comes to an end at last. And when these people finally face hard reality and have no sound philosophy of life to lean on, they will find that existence has the flavor of dust and ashes.

I don't want you to run from life. I want you to understand its purpose and play your part bravely and happily.

Do you know why you are here?

It is because you are needed—because you are a necessary unit in a great plan. And the success of the plan depends on how well you play your part.

A moment's thought will show you that the plan of the universe—God's eternal plan—is one of growth.

Step by step the plan has unfolded—the world a body of flaming gas, the development of a solid crust, the condensing of mists to form the seas, the appearance of soil and vegetation and animal life, the gradual development of man, and now the age of science, honor, compassion and unselfish service.

Always progress toward some ultimate perfection beyond our understanding.

We are tools of God, my dear. One man is a good tool and God uses him to advance the work. Another is dull or easily broken, and because of him the work is delayed.

The man who contributes anything to make the world better is a success. The man who does nothing to move the world forward is a failure, though he win both fame and fortune.

You are more fortunate than men.

It is your privilege not only to contribute your service, but also to become the mother of men and women whom you can train to move the world forward.

There are useless women—selfish parasites who take all and give nothing and leave the world without a mark of their passing.

But good mothers are the best of God's tools. The story of all progress is their story.

Is there a higher career than that of helping God to work out His plans for the ultimate perfection of mankind?

Think it over, dear.

One of the Master's tools has no right to rust.

Love. DAD.

Practical Relief.

New York Herald Tribune.

Mr. Hoover summons Mr. Walter S. Gifford and makes him chairman of a committee for organizing and coordinating all existing agencies of relief to the single end of relieving those who may require aid. We do not think that Mr. Gifford will produce magical results; we do not even suppose that his efforts will reach every case of suffering or want which the winter may produce. But when an emergency appears it does seem to us that the best and most practical way of meeting it is to put a competent man to work with the tools that we already have.

There are even graver objections to the movement to saddle the burden of relief on the Federal Government than its inability to stand the financial strain at this time. But regardless of that consideration, how would the Federal Treasury meet this additionally heavy obligation? Where would the money come from?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

City Marshal of Tombstone Thinks Wickersham Commission Is Encouraging Crime by Coddling Criminals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just been reading in the papers about the Wickersham Commission and its activities in investigating crimes in the United States, also the criticism it is making of the law-enforcement bodies.

I have no way of telling what experience Brother Wickersham and his commission have had with the criminal element in the United States, but from the way they talk, it must have been mighty little. I have been an officer in Arizona continuously for the last 31 years as deputy sheriff, constable, ranger and chief of police, in the City of Tombstone, and have come in contact with criminals of every character known to mankind. For a body of men of the Wickersham type to go over the country and ask the poor, downtrodden criminals to come in and weep on their shoulders is enough to make a man boil when he has been risking his life for the protection of law-abiding citizens. The commission, in my opinion, is actually encouraging crime by this unjust criticism of law-enforcing officers.

I am 64 years old, with 31 years of experience in handling criminals, and have found out that a mollycoddled prisoner will shoot you in the back the first chance he gets.

Citizen Wants to Know Why 30 Per Cent Wine Is Legal and 3 Per Cent Beer Is Not.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to ask Dr. LaRue why anybody with $30 or $35 to spare can have an agent of Fruit Industries, Ltd., deliver to his cellar a keg of wine which, after a couple of months, will have an alcoholic content of from 25 to 30 per cent; and why those who can not spare that amount of money can not have a bottle of beer with an alcoholic content of from 3 to 5 per cent? Is that prohibition? If it is I will eat my straw hat September 15. What a pity Gilbert and Sullivan are not alive today. They could write a couple of good comic operas around that situation. And the champion of Fruit Industries, Ltd., is none other than Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who went into the churches and campaigned against Al Smith because he was a "wet."

Dr. LaRue's comparison of repeal of the laws controlling opium, pure food, and the laws regulating the sale of machine guns, and the campaign of the American Federation of Labor for light wines and beer is too silly to deserve consideration.

The fact is there is no prohibition, never has been and never will be.

Writer Scores Lack of Interest on the Part of People Who Are Able to Contribute to Relief of the Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From your United Press dispatch from Chicago in Wednesday's issue the following sentence is quoted: "The people who are able to give and to pay their taxes do not seem to realize the situation."

This is a statement of an outstanding fact. The very ones who could do most, and therefore ought to give liberally, are not concerned enough to realize the suffering that is constantly grinding the life out of multitudes of their neighbors.

Call on this group and they hastily write you a little check for the community chest and go merrily on their way, piling up profits and hoarding cash. Then they wonder that anybody should expect more from them.

A gold medal awaits the inventor who will bring forward an instrument keen enough to pierce the consciousness of these callous souls.

Eat More, Not Less, Advises Maj. Gen. Fries.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see in today's press an article entitled "Choice of Most Nourishing Food for Least Money to Be Taught." (I am wondering if Miss Schuman expects to be shot at sunrise. Doesn't she know that the Farm Board has 200,000,000 bushels of wheat that they can't give away in this country? The corn crop is almost as bad, to say nothing of cattle, sheep and pigs.

If they go to work teaching people to live on the least possible amount of food they are going to make this oversupply of food perpetual and put us all in the poorhouse. Their proper work under these circumstances is to urge people to eat the least nourishing food and then to take cod liver oil and other appetizers, so they will consume twice as much as at present.

I believe that would aid greatly in solving the present depression.

FAIR AT ROCKVILLE TO SEEK BETTING

Officials Believe Pari-Mutuel System at Races Will Save Association.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

The only salvation for the Rockville Fair is to obtain permission to hold pari-mutuel betting on the horse races, in the opinion of the fair association officials. Barring this, it is probable that the fair association will have to sell its property at Rockville to satisfy the more than $22,000 debt against it.

The three-day fair, which closed Thursday, resulted in a deficit of between $1,000 and $2,000, and the association already owed about $20,000. The fair grounds at Rockville are valued at approximately $50,000. The grounds are fully paid for, but are subject to lien for the money owed by the association, of which about $20,000 is in the form of a mortgage.

A meeting of the fair association directors will be held next week to discuss the difficulties of the group. At that meeting it is probable that decision will be reached to strive for permission to operate pari-mutuels. Another problem to be met is finding the money to pay off the various premiums from the fair. The association last year was forced to cut the premiums to 25 per cent, but expects that with State aid, which is due the first of the year, all of the premiums can be met this year.

Clarence C. Gilpin, president of the fair association, and Otho C. Trundle, secretary, were unanimous in their belief that the only way out is to secure betting privileges. They pointed out that practically every other fair association in the State operates with betting on the races. The Marlboro Fair was pointed out as an example. The Marlboro Fair was on its last legs when it was given permission to install betting, and now is one of the most prosperous in the State.

The merry-go-round and Ferris wheel which were used at the Rockville Fair were attached yesterday by Sheriff Richard H. Lansdale on a writ from the circuit court of Anne Arundel County. The attachment was sworn out by the Glenburnie Restaurant, alleging that the Arlington Amusement Co., which owns the equipment, owes the restaurant $153 for board and lodging of its employes.

L. Staley, manager of the show, told the sheriff that the amusement company does not owe the money but that it is personal bills owed by the employes.

Barnet Brothers Circus will arrive in Rockville today for a one day stand at the fair grounds. The show consists of a three-ring circus and trained animal show.

The annual carnival of the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department will be held September 16 to 19, it was announced yesterday by J. Fred Imirie, chief of the department. Plans for a hook-up contest in which all volunteer fire companies of the county will be invited to participate, and for other features, are being worked out now, Chief Imirie said.

Legion's Marchers Viewed by Ritchie

Cumberland ParadeMarred by Rain; Governor Hits Body's Critics.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 21.—More than 1,000 marched in the rain as Gov. Ritchie of Maryland reviewed the parade today on the second day of the thirteenth annual convention of the Department of Maryland American Legion. There were nearly a score of drum corps from Maryland, (West Virginia and Pennsylvania and a half dozen bands).

Tonight the annual dinner was held in the auditorium of Beall High School. Gov. Ritchie, who made the principal talk, said: "As I remember the eternal gratitude we vowed to you boys when you went overseas, nothing would ever be too good for you then, I can not refrain from protesting when the president of Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching calls you indiscriminately 'political colonels.'

"The only political colonels I know anything about were the members of the governors' staffs, appointed as a reward for political influence and favors, and I am glad to say that in my first term, in 1920, I abolished these in Maryland, and took my staff, when one was needed, from the Maryland National Guard, under the leadership of Maryland's great soldier, Gen. Reckord."

West Virginia Fugitive Is Held for Extradition

Harvey E. Tucker, 45 years old, was being held by Washington police last night as a fugitive from justice wanted in Martinsburg, W. Va. Tucker was arrested yesterday at his home, 3338 P street northwest, on a warrant sent from Martinsburg charging him with commiting a felony.

For a number of years, Tucker was employed as an insurance agent in Martinsburg and only recently came to this city. The warrant charges him with raising the amount originally stipulated on a surety bond. West Virginia authorities are seeking extradition papers.

2 Incendiary Suspects In Branchville Freed

Two men who were arrested during the investigation of a series of fires in vacant houses near Branchville, Md., were released yesterday after a hearing before Judge Horace Taylor. When arrested they were charged with arson in connection with a fire in a house belonging to William Har.

The pair who were freed are Anton Parker and Charles Kleppert, both of Berwyn. They were arrested on warrants sworn out by Joseph Dougherty, of the State fire marshal's office.

Careful Ballot-Marking Urged.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation, meeting last night at the home of the secretary E. Alexandria Will Lend Replica of Fire Engine

Alexandria's Friendship hand fire engine, replica of one presented to the Friendship company by George Washington when he was a member of the unit, will be exhibited at the Sesquicentennial Celebration at Yorktown in October, its loan for the purpose having been requested by the Bicentennial Commission.

The original of the historic old engine, which is now in Baltimore, and is claimed to be the one actually purchased by Gen. Washington for the Alexandria company, will be brought to Alexandria and placed on exhibition for the bicentennial celebration next year.

ALEXANDRIA LEGION INSTALLATION HELD

"Forty and Eight" Voiture Also Completes Plans for Convention Trip.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria voiture of the Forty and Eight, honor society of the American Legion, last night at a meeting in the Belvoir Hotel, installed recently elected officers, who are William H. Meeks, chef de gare; G. Fred Birrell, chef de train; John Haggerty, of Quantico, commissaire intendant; G. Raymond King, correspondant; Robert Insko, conducteur; Joseph Fagelson, garde de la porte; Halley Dove, lampiste; Louis Fones, commissaire voyageur, and E. H. Hinkins, H. B. Lemon, Dr. J. A. Boston, W. McArthur and Sidney Weil, cheminots locaux.

Final arrangements for attending the State convention in Clifton Forge next week were completed, and it is expected a large delegation from Alexandria will make the trip, the majority of them by automobile, leaving tomorrow morning, although some will not go until Monday.

The local voiture of the Forty and Eight draws its membership from the legion posts of Alexandria, Arlington County, Leesburg, Culpeper, Warrenton and Quantico.

The Alexandria Post of the American Legion, which has the largest membership of any post in Virginia, will be represented at the Clifton Forge convention by fourteen delegates and as many alternates.

Fire destroyed a woodshed in the rear of premises on the 1400 block of Princess street shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The damage was slight.

Marion Randolph Fugitt has sold to Leonora Fugitt house and lot on the east side of Henry street, between Wilkes and Gibbon streets and Samuel A. Tucker, jr., has sold to Fannie A. Wair lots 114 and 115 in the subdivision known as "Sunnyside." Deeds of conveyance have just been recorded covering these transfers.

A report has been made to the police that a wallet containing $105 was missing from the pocket of Frank M. Hill, who was struck Tuesday night by an automobile driven by Reynolds Williams, 1102 King street. The police have so far been unable to locate it.

Mr. Hill was reported yesterday to be resting fairly comfortably in Alexandria Hospital, although his injuries are considered serious.

The zoning board of appeals recently appointed by Judge William P. Woolls, of the corporation court, for the purpose of hearing appeals from the zoning ordinance recently adopted by the city council, met last night in the city conucil room of the city hall for organization.

The board is composed of J. Owen Lynch, Charles W. King, Francis H. Fannon, Albert A. Smoot and George K. Bender.

Announcement has been made by R. C. Bowton, superintendent of schools of Alexandria, that examinations for teachers in both the high and elementary schools, for renewal of their certificates, will be held August 28, starting at 10 a. m., in the office of the superintendent of schools in the Jefferson School Building.

Albemarle County Votes Budget Cut

Unpaid Taxes Cause Shortage of Funds for Expenses.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 21.—Concerned over depressed agricultural conditions, as especially exemplified in the laxity of tax payments, the Albemarle County Board of Supervisors has requested all county agencies to cut their expenses to the minimum during the current fiscal year.

The measure became necessary when it was brought to the attention of the supervisors that the county is still carrying about $50,000 in delinquent taxes. Although the county spent only $641,077.87 in the past fiscal year when estimates of expenditures had been $645,903.65, it was pointed out that the delinquent tax list makes the books run decidedly in the red.

The largest expenditure for the year was $248,013.89, which was $4,537.55 over the budget, according to County Manager Seth Burnley. The forest protection fund, due to the large number of fires last year, exceeded its budget estimate by $1,500, and several other unexpected items were brought out during the year.

Girl Driver Goes to Jail In Default of $202 Fine

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Marjorie Duvall, 19, of Fredericksburg, Va., was sent to jail today while friends tried to raise a fine of $202.45, imposed as a result of an automobile collision yesterday. The girl said she came here from Quantico, Va., with two marines. She first identified herself as Marjorie Gordon.

Tax Survey Starts In Prince Georges

University Expert Heads Pomona Grange Group to Make Study.

Paul Walker, economist at the University of Maryland, has been named by the Pomona Grange of Prince Georges county to head a survey of the county tax situation. Other members of the committee are Harry Sutsman, Thomas Miller, S. B. Cantor and William P. Mumford.

The group was named at quarterly meeting of the Grange at Brandywine. Its report is expected to provide further ammunition for the fight on the present scheme of taxation based on land holdings. The Grange has pointed out that the farmer's tax rate remains stable while his income varies greatly from year to year.

The organization also made plans to honor members who have been affiliated for more than 25 years. Dr. Harry Nally is chairman of a committee which is making up the list.

Lincoln Shooting Witness Recalls Scene at Reunion

More than a score of friends last night joined 78-year-old Frank Dowling, 1434 Harvard street northwest, in celebrating his birthday at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kelly, at Park Lane, in Arlington County, where he officiated at the cutting of a cake made in his honor which bore 78 candles.

Mr. Dowling was rich in memories of post-Civil War days in Washington and of more than 58 years as an employe of the Government. He entered the Treasury Department at the age of 11 and spent 28 years in that department before going to the Government Printing Office for the same number of years.

When guests gathered last night in the Virginia home Mr. Dowling told memories of Abraham Lincoln, and the stories gained interest because he was in Ford's Theater the night Lincoln was shot.

On that night Dowling had gone with several friends to the theater especially because the President was to be a guest. Later, he said, one of his most poignant memories was of all Federal employes wearing bands of mourning on their arms as they went about their work.

Guests who were present at the dinner and who showered both Mr. Dowling and his wife with congratulations were Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kelly, Misses Helen, Katherine, Hazel, Ruth, Alice and Nancy Kelly, Miss Grace Dowling, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Garland, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Cummins, Mr. and Mrs. William Noland, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Collins, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Butler, L. M. Wallace, of Fairfield, Iowa; Miss Cummins and Lillian Garland.

Women to Hold Bake Sale.

Hanger, treasurer; Mrs. J. E. Rice, chaplain; Mrs. C. F. Edwards, sergeant at arms; Mrs. W. C. Welburn, historian. The newly elected officers will be installed at the September meeting.

Delegates to the annual State convention, which opens at Clifton Forge, Va., Monday to continue through Wednesday are; Mrs. E. L. Nalley, Mrs. T. R. Wallace, Mrs. C. W. Hanger, Mrs. Wallace Johnson. The group will leave for Clifton Forge early tomorrow morning.

Maryland Body Allows Cut in Train Schedules

Maryland Public Service Commission, in a hearing at Baltimore, has approved application of the Pennsylvania Railroad to discontinue five local trains between Baltimore and Washington.

A number of persons living near Bowie objected. In response to their pleas, the commission ordered that train No. 5113, an express, stop at Bowie on signal. The change in schedule is made because passenger traffic has fallen off, the railroad said.

Rev. John M. Pearson Returns From Vacation

The Rev. John H. Pearson, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church, returned yesterday from his vacation, and will conduct the morning services tomorrow.

The union services of the Clarendon, Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist churches will be held tomorrow evening in the Methodist Church. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Templeman, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Old Murder Bared By Dying Woman

Confession Names Three Others in 1913 Crime; Skull Exhumed.

Webster Springs, W. Va., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The confession of a dying woman disclosed today that a man buried 18 years ago as a victim of drowning was slain. The dead man's skull was exhumed yesterday and a verdict of death from gunshot wounds was returned by a Coroner's jury.

County authorities would not reveal the name of the woman who confessed nor the identities of a woman and two men she implicated. Examination of the skull disclosed the victim, Jonas Tharp, 22, a lumberman on Elk River, near here, was shot in the mouth. Tharp's mouth was held open and a bullet fired into his brain, the woman stated.

The woman and two men implicated in the statement will be sought on warrants charging murder. County authorities said one man lives in this district, the woman lives in a Western State, and the whereabouts of the other man is unknown.

Official Life In State Group Gets Recruits

C. M. Ravndal Among Those Transferred to Capital.

Activity in residential circles in the Capital may be almost at a standstill, so great is the absentee list, but recent transfers in the State Department have brought and will continue to bring, recruits to the Capital's official group. Having been assigned to the visa division of the State Department, Mr. Christian M. Ravndal, former consul at Toronto, has come to Washington and will be joined here later by his wife and their two children now in Vienna. A former Viennese noblewoman, Mrs. Ravndal will be an interesting addition to the little circle of State Department hostesses. She is with her family in the Austrian capital. Mr. Ravndal's father recently retired as consul general at Berlin, so his association with the foreign service dates back many years.

Also awaiting the arrival of his wife in Wasnington is Mr. George H. Winters, who has come here from Mexico City, where he served as vice consul. He has likewise joined the ranks in the visa division of the department. Another newcomer is Mr. Clarence E. Dauss, former consul general at Tientsin, who has been detailed to the State Department, and with Mrs. Dauss and their son will make his home in Washington.

Others here on leave from their respective posts will add a little zest to the activity of a waning season. Mr. George L. Brandt, consul general at Cologne, Germany, arrived recently. Accompanying him are his wife, a former Washington girl, and their three children, Daphne, Eleanor and Anne. Mr. Brandt is well known in the Capital, where, several years ago, he served as chief of the visa division of the State Department. Mr. Frank C. Lee, consul general at Halifax, also on leave from his post, with Mrs. Lee, is spending some time at their home on Phelps place. The latter, before her marriage, was Miss Olga Pilson.

In this country from Germany is Mr. William F Daugherty, assistant commercial attache of the embassy in Berlin, who arrived in New York yesterday on the George Washington. He is well known in Washington, having been here for many years as a newspaperman.

Mr. George Ward sailed for Europe a few days ago and will be abroad during the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Woodson have returned from a stay in Nantucket, Mass. They will present their daughter, Miss Jean Woodson, on Christmas Day.

Mrs. Fred Altemus, who has been in the Adirondacks, in northern New York, has returned to Washington.

French Envoy Sails at Noon For Homeland

Ambassador Claudel to Join Wife, Summer Visitor in Paris.

The Ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel, will sail from New York at noon today on the France for Europe, where he will join Mme. Claudel, who has been at their home in Paris for several months.

The Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Leander McCormick Goodhart entertained at a dinner last evening at Bar Harbor, preceding the dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart to present their daughters, Miss Ayer and Miss Patience McCormick-Goodhart. The fete was given at the Bar Harbor Club, where the ballroom was decorated with white lilies and palms and the swimming pool was illuminated by Japanese lanterns.

Maj. and Mrs. Reginald Cocroft have returned to their apartment in the Shoreham after a stay of several weeks in the Catskills. They are accompanied by their children.

Beatrice Craft Is Hostess at House Party

Dinner Dance Tonight Will Celebrate Birthday Anniversaries.

Just returned from a holiday spent in Annapolis and Pennsylvania, Miss Beatrice Craft is hostess at a house party this week-end at the home of her parents, Capt. Ralph P. Craft, U. S. N., and Mrs. Craft, who came back Thursday from a two weeks' motor trip to eastern Canada.

Tonight Miss Craft and Mr. J. Atkins Campbell will celebrate their birthday anniversaries with a dinner dance at the Craft home in Jocelyn street. The guests will be the visiting group of young people and several others from the young Capital set. The visitors include Miss Mary Miller Kress, Miss Anne Britten, Miss Barbara Britten and Miss Anne Casson Bootes, of Philadelphia; Lieut. and Mrs. L. Peterson, of Fort Humphreys; Lieut Howard, Lieut. Herbert Riley and Lieut. Paul Weaver, of Annapolis, and Mr. Arthur Carpenter, of Washington.

Among the dinner dance guests will be Miss Barbara Jewell, Miss Elizabeth McKelvey, Miss Louise Campbell, Miss Dorothy Nicholson, Miss Helen Ranier, Mr. Warren Whiside, Lieut. Smith, Mr. Harry Baldridge, Mr. William Seery, Mr. Eugene Scarf, Mr. Albert Spinks, Mr. Paul Conrad, Mr. Stringfellow and Mr. Nathan Poole.

This afternoon Mrs. Thomas Shott will entertain at the Army, Navy and Marine Country Club in honor of Miss Craft and her house guests.

Melendez Host At Dinner to Envoy Curtis

Guest Has Been Recent Minister to Dominican Republic.

Senor Don Roberto D. Melendez, Second Secretary in charge of the Legation of Salvador, entertained at dinner last evening in the Carlton in honor of Mr. Charles Boyd Curtis, newly appointed United States Minister to Salvador. The other guests included Senor Dr. Don Juan B. Sacasa, Minister from Nicaragua; Senor Don Oscar Blanco Viel, Charge d'Affaires of the Chilean Embassy; Senor Don Pablo M. Ynsfran, Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of Paraguay; Mr. Walter C. Thurston, chief of division of Latin American affairs, State Department, and Mr. Leon, from Chile.

Mr. Curtis is in the Capital for a few days, accompanied by Mrs. Curtis, having arrived in this country from Santo Domingo, where Mr. Curtis served as minister. They will visit at their home in Bantam, Conn., before departing for their southern post.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is spending a short time in New York.

IF COST IS ALL THAT MATTERS..
LET'S GO back to horses

IT costs you more to run your automobile than it would a horse and buggy, but that doesn't stop you from owning a car, does it? The added convenience, comfort, time-saving are worth ten times the added cost.

It's the same with Automatic Gas Heat. It costs a little more (about 75 cents a week more than ordinary fuels for the average six-room row brick house) but the added health, cleanliness, ease and solid comfort it brings are worth a hundred times the added cost. Just figure 75 cents a week for 52 weeks and you'll agree.

With Automatic Gas Heat you light the pilot light in the fall—and that's your whole winter's furnace tending. No matter how the thermometer drops or climbs out-doors, the temperature in your home remains constant, comfortable, healthful. No getting up in the morning to fix the fire, no dirty fuel or ashes to handle, no dust or soot or vapors seeping through the house. Two thousand District families will tell you they have found Automatic Gas Heat to be the greatest convenience of all the modern devices in the homes.

With gas it is possible to estimate in advance just what the annual cost will be. For your own satisfaction, find this out. Call our housheating department, NAtional 8280, or see any certified heating contractor—there is no obligation. With the new rate for househeating working out around 75 cents a thousand cubic feet as compared to the old rate of $1, you'll almost certainly find that you, too, can easily afford Automatic Gas Heat and really ENJOY the coming winter.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE ambitious plan of C. R. Cummings, of Williamsport, Pa., to erect low-powered broadcasting stations in 267 small cities and towns throughout the country is certain to meet with serious opposition at the Federal Radio Commission hearing scheduled for October 16.

Not only will the broadcasting industry as it now stands almost unanimously oppose the proposal because it requires the exclusive use of 25 channels now occupied by numerous stations, but the small town newspapers are already engaging counsel to fight the plan because of the serious competition such a system would offer in the advertising field.

The Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association recently employed counsel to represent the body at the Cummings hearing, and the American Newspaper Publishers Association and other newspaper agencies are expected to oppose the establishment of a community radio chain.

Because no specific frequencies were named by Cummings in his application for 25 channels, the Radio Commission did not name any specific stations as parties to the hearing.

While the Radio Commission is not expected to grant the application because of the upset it would cause in the present broadcasting system, the plan will likely be carried to Congress this winter. There it may gain substatntial support from many of the rural representatives whose districts are obviously poorly served by existing broadcasting facilities.

THE final matches of the forty-fourth annual Women's National Singles Championship, at Forest Hills, L. I., will be broadcast by Ted Husing (WMAL, 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.)

A special broadcast in the cause of fire prevention, originating in San Francisco, and presented by the American Legion Department of California, will be heard (WMAL, 8:30 o'clock tonight). The Zane Irwin Post Band will provide musical numbers.

Part of the Chicagoland Music Festival will be broadcast tonight (WJZ, network, 9 o'clock). Spirituals sung by 2,000 Negro choristers, a musical-dramatic interpretation of "Sheridan's Last Ride," featuring a troop of U. S. cavalry, and a massed band of 2,200 pieces are included in the air presentation.

The guest artists with William Wirges Orchestra tonight (WRC, 8:30 o'clock), are Roy Smeck, wizard of the strings; Aileen Clark, a newcomer before the microphone, and Willard Robison.

AN up-to-date police radio system is planned for New York City if an appropriation of $100,000 is granted this fall.

Three short wave broadcasting stations and a short wave receiving set for each of the 350 police squad cars, the two police airplanes, and the police launches would comprise the system. The transmission would be "scrambled" so that criminals would be unable to pick up the messages with ordinary short wave receivers.

The veteran comedians, Weber and Fields, will augment the B. A. Rolfe orchestra program, with a sketch depicting organization of a bank (WRC, 9 p. m.).

NIGHTLY programs by Jesse Crawford are scheduled for N. N. B. C.'s coast-to-coast networks in the near future. Crawford, now completing his fifth year with the Paramount Theater in New York, has signed for exclusive radio appearances from the theater, where he will soon play his 250th weekly program on Broadway.

Crawford was born in Woodland, Calif. He started playing the organ in Spokane, Wash., 18 years ago. He appeared for the first time as soloist at Grauman's Theater in San Francisco. He played a six-month engagement there, but when his employer built Grauman's Theater in Los Angeles, Crawford was installed as a leading attraction. He stayed four years. Then he played at the Chicago Theater in Chicago five years, before he was sent on to Broadway.

Crawford married Helen Anderson, of Chicago, in 1923. Mrs. Crawford is also a recognized organist and composer. They have a daughter, Jessie Darlene, 5 years old.

SHOULD Lanny Ross, tenor, be forced to give up singing for any reason, he can hang out his shingle and begin earning his living as an attorney. Ross holds an A. B. degree from Yale and an LL. B. from Columbia University. He took the New State bar examinations last spring.

Jane Interprets the Mode

You may enjoy your autumn days so much if you do a little of this and that now. (Reminds Dah-ray.)

New York, Aug. 21.

THIS hot weather has been enough to tire out a saint, now hasn't it? 'N' we're all looking forward to getting all peppy and everything and just enjoying ourselves when cooler days come, aren't we? 'N' if we have an autumn wardrobe to get ready to wear, and wait until the cooler days to do it, we're not going to be able to have much time for play, are we?

'N' those of you who just said NO to my last question are WRONG! You can have an autumn wardrobe and enjoy the cooler days all at one and the same time—if you know how to go about it. I never could find any real reason for not getting all the hard work of fixing things up for autumn done while the hot weather kept us more or less at home. And I was very much surprised to find out that hardly anyone else had thought about how much could be done before the actual season starts.

For instance, in getting ready for the autumn days, it's much more sensible to sit down now, when there's plenty of time, and go over things you already have with an eye to making perfect autumn clothes of them, than to rush at things all in a heap with the first cool breeze! You can take your time right now, and get all the dirty work done in a week or so, shop for the necessary additions that you'll have to have much more economically than a little later on and be all ready and waiting for fun as soon as the weather crisps up!

And in case you don't know just how to go ahead, I have prepared a leaflet for you, telling you just where to start in, and what to do next and what can be made into which and incidentally giving you directions for making a suit that's anything but incidental—being perfectly stunning and an exact copy of a Paris model! And this suit, my deahs, is to be made out of almost any wool suit you have worn this summer. 'N' all you have to do to get this information is to sit down and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Post.

And now, while we're on the subject of stamped, self-addressed envelopes, have you sent yours to the Dare department of The Post yet for the leaflet giving a lesson in fashionable and necessary French terms? If not, better hurry, for our copies of this liberal education for a two-cent stamp are just about all used up!

* * * *

It's smart to be economical in lots of ways, but there's one way where economy is a sin, not a virtue! If you buy a cheap pair of black suede gloves you'll regret it. The dye from cheap gloves comes off on your hands and arms, and rubs on your dresses and pocketbooks and things. And these stains are just impossible to remove! S-o-o-o, if you would follow the smart fashion of black suede gloves, buy good ones, my deahs, or none at all.

Dare offers valuable advice in her weekly fashion leter, which appears in The Sunday Post.

Au revoir!

Culbertson on Contract

OPENING BIDS AND RESPONSES.

The choice of a correct Opening bid is one of the most difficult faced by the novice at the Contract table. It might be said in passing that it is a question which frequently puzzles experts as well.

An Opening bid is a leap in the dark. It is a sort of skirmishing party or a cavalry foray sent out to test the strength of the opposing army or to establish communication with the allied forces across the table.

It is natural to use military terminology in discussing card games, for the essential structure of card games is based upon military organization and usage.

In response to many requests, I am giving herewith the requirements in the Approach Forcing System for various bids of one, two, three and more, as well as the responses by partner to such bids.

Minimum requirements for opening suit bids of one:

(a) In the suit—a biddable minimum and

(b) In the hand—at least 2½ honor-tricks in two suits and when in the third or fourth position, at least 3 honor-tricks. When two suit bids are available, prefer any biddable five-card suit to any four-card suit, but otherwise prefer the higher valued suit.

Minimum requirements for opening notrump bids of one:

At least 2½ honor-tricks in three suits and when vulnerable at least 3 honor-tricks.

The Approach principle requires that when the Opening Hand contains a biddable suit and, at the same time, a biddable notrump, the suit, be it even a four-card minor and not the notrump, should always be bid first. It follows that any Opening one notrump denies a biddable suit.

Responses to opening suit one bids:

1. Raise only if holding adequate trump support (at least Q 3 2 or four small).

2. Lacking adequate trump support but holding a biddable trump suit takeout with a new suit, providing the hand contains 1 to 2½ honor-tricks. If the hand contains at least 3 honor-tricks and a biddable suit, make a forting takeout—a bid higher than necessary, but below a game level. Forcing takeout signals game (sometimes Slam) and unconditionally requires both partners not to drop the bidding until some game bid is reached.

3. Lacking both the adequate trump support or a biddable suit, Takeout with one notrump (about 1½ honor-tricks), two notrump (about 2½ honor-tricks) and with three notrump (at least 3 honor-tricks).

When the Opening bid is notrump, the same general procedure applies as regards suit Takeouts.

Minimum requirements for Opening (Forcing) suit bids of two:

5½ honor-tricks in three suits if holding a minimum biddable trump suit.

5 honor-tricks in three suits if holding a good trump suit (a five or six-card length with good tops).

4½ in three suits if holding a great freak or a practically solid trump suit. All Opening two-bids in any suit are Forcing (partner must respond or die) but Opening two notrump are not Forcing and show at least 5 honor-tricks with at least protection in all four suits.

Responses to Opening suit two-bids (assuming both opponents pass):

1. Under no conditions is pass permissible until a game is reached—even with an absolute blank.

2. Respond, as a rule, with two notrump (the "bust" response) on any hand containing less than 1 honor-trick, even if holding adequate trump support.

3. Lacking adequate trump support or a biddable suit, respond with three notrump on 1½ or better honor strength.

4. Raise once for each outside trick, provided the hand contains Q 3 2 or four small (adequate trump support) and at least 1 honor-trick.

5. Takeout with a biddable suit if hand contains 1 or more honor-tricks. With Raises and notrump show, if able, full values at once. With suit Takeouts, on the contrary, respond as low as possible, regardless of the strength of the hand until some game bid is reached.

OPENING THREE AND GAME BIDS IN A SUIT AND RESPONSES.

Minimum requirements for Opening major suit bids of three:

(a) A powerful trump suit which guarantees 5 sure trump tricks; and

(b) 8 playing-tricks in the hand, of which at least 1½ are in side honors.

Responses:

Raise once if holding 1 trick and a "plus" (A Queen or a Knave or a singleton), trump support is not required. Opening minor three-bids are not profitable. Bid one or four or five.

Minimum requirements for Opening game bids (four in a Major, five in a Minor):

If major suit
Vulnerable	Not Vulnerable
8 playing-tricks	7 playing-tricks
If minor suit
Vulnerable	Not Vulnerable
9 playing-tricks	8 playing-tricks

The trump suit guarantees 5 sure trump tricks, but the hand promises no outside honor strength.

TODAY'S POINTER.
Notrump Valuation.

In notrump bids the winning of tricks with low cards depends largely on the number of honor-tricks held, which are the indispensable reentries and stoppers. Therefore the count of honor-tricks alone in the hand will automatically include a proportionate amount of low-card tricks. The ratio of honor-tricks to low-card tricks is roughly 8:5. From this basic idea any player can logically work up a table of no trump bids, Raises and Takeouts.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

An Unfair Bargain.

DEAR Frances McDonald: When I was 16 I won a scholarship. The principal of the school urged my folks to let me use it to go to college. I won several others and partly paid my way, but most of my living expenses had to come out of them, which is, I suppose, why they made the bargain with me that if they let me go instead of going to work to help them, I would agree not to marry until the youngest child was self-supporting. There have been four children born since. I now have seven brothers and sisters younger than I and four older. The older ones are all married and two of the younger. And nothing was said about their lives.

But I have been in love for eight years. And every time they see a letter from the girl or any evidence of my interest in her they remind me that marriage is not in the books for me. Is this a fair price to pay for a chance in the world? All the children who were born before I went to college are out of school. But my father seems to understand our arrangements as applying to all children he might ever have. I am embittered beyond words and feel like letting the bunch have my life insurance. Is there another answer?

"THIRTY."

Minors can not make valid contracts of any kind. You were a minor when your parents exacted this unheard-of promise which has been more than fulfilled. But in any case it could not be construed to mean that you were assuming responsibility for your father's future activities in the matter of populating the world.

Inform your parents that you regard your obligations at an end and plan your own life. Payment of the sum they actually spent for your board at school is all that you ever really needed to repay. Put from you any weak idea that you owe these people any further tribute. You certainly would not have selected such parents had the choice been yours. So do not feel too keenly the accidental tie that binds you to their selfishness. Hokum holds many in bondage. The old idea that parenthood confers sainthood has gone out. Parents, like other mortals, are judged by their performance. Yours have performed like a couple of racketeers. So, instead of your life insurance, leave them your very best wishes—and depart to live your life.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to prevent my ferns, coleus and begonias from being destroyed by insets. Also, why leaves persist in falling from a begonia, an angel-wing variety. I know the name of all my begonias except the one from which the inclosed leaf was taken.

FRANCES E. F.

Spray your ferns once a week with the forceful spray from a rubber bulb hand syringe. The plant has some scale on it. Go over each frond with a small brush and dislodge the insects. Constant spraying will prevent a return of these pests. When a begonia loses its leaves it is due to too much or too little water, too much or too little sun and too little fresh air. Keep all begonias, especially the blooming ones, in an eastern exposure. The flowering varieties all demand morning sun. Water them when you notice the surface soil in the pots is dry. Keep the soil loose at all times. The leaf you inclosed is from an albo-picta begonia.

I have gloxinias which have bloomed for many years until the last year. During this period they have produced only one or two flowers to a plant. I am also having trouble with my amaryllis. Also have a hoya which never blooms, though it is a healthy plant.

MRS. JOHN F. W.

Your gloxinias may have outlived their usefulness. Would suggest getting new bulbs this fall. We have a circular on the care of the amaryllis which we will send to you if you write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The hoya, or wax plant, does not take kindly to a change, so only repot it when you are sure it is potbound. Keep it warm in winter and rather dry unless it should be making growth. In its growing season it needs considerable water. Never remove the little stem on which the flowers are produced, as next season new flowers will appear there. Its only enemy is the mealy bug, which you can soon get rid of by constant spraying with cold water. Try when it enters its next period of growth giving it some liquid manure.

When must I plant pansy seed, also the seed of bleeding heart to have flowers next season? When removing my tulip bulbs I found a number of bulblets. What shall I do with these? MRS. J. I. K.

Start pansy seed in early May in a soil composed of good loam, sand and leafmold, also some well-decayed cow manure. The soil must be friable. Sow the seed in drills, covering them not more than four times their diameter and firming the soil well above them. The seed germinate in from eight to twelve days and must not be allowed to dry out during that period. As soon as the seedlings are sufficiently large that they can be handled without injury, lift them and place them in rows. Space the plants 9 inches apart. Choose a sunny place where they will be protected from the wind. Bleeding hearts are better grown from roots which can be planted in the spring. They can be propagated from seed which can be sown in May. Plant bulblets just as you plant your larger bulbs. They will grow and in time produce flowers.

Please tell me how to keep down the currant worm.

FRANKLIN D. G.

Hellebore is a most satisfactory poison to use on currants and gooseberries to keep ahead of the currant worm. The most economical way to use hellebore is to mix it with water and apply with a spray pump or whiskbroom. Some persons mix it with flour and use it in dry form. The flour aids the powder in adhering.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed rose. MRS. S.

I am sorry, but it is impossible to identify a faded rose.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF August 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:50 a. m., from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m., and 9:20 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m., and 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

An unexpected harvest, the seed for which was sown in a forgotten past, will be reaped on August 22, and your life will be enriched in more ways than one. Romantic experiences and pleasant ties formed among young people, but not an auspicious time for marriage vows to be taken.

The child born on this August 22 will have a puckish wit, a nimble brain and ingenious hands. It may suffer through its impulsiveness, as it will be inclined to speak and to act without sufficient forethought. It is not naturally selfish, although it will often be guilty of thoughtlessness.

Born on August 22, you are a human paradox; diffident, courageous, careful, obstinate, kindly and merciless. You have a social side which is likable and attractive, one which may fool other people. Behind your "hail-fellow-well-met" exterior, however, is hidden a cautious, shrewd character, which is not easily "taken in," and never walked upon. They who try to impose upon your good nature, which is genuine, are quickly put in their place. You have a large bump of gratitude, and you never forget a kindness. On the other hand, you have a sensitive part to your nature, which makes it easy for you to be wounded, and you never fail to get even with those who have hurt you in any way.

You have great ambitions, and in your endeavor to reach a goal you spare neither yourself, those who work with you or those who stand in your way. To you the end justifies the means. You never make impulsive moves, but when you do act, you act with force and purpose. You have considerable foresight, and you often do things which are incomprehensible to those about you. It is seldom that you make a false move in a business or material way. You are really very affectionate, although you seem ashamed to demonstrate your feelings. The softer side of your nature is little revealed outside of your home circles. Your best self is revealed to your family.

Successful people born August 22:

1—John B. Gough, temperance lecturer.

2—Emily C. Judson, "Fanny Forrester," author.

3—Willard Glazier, explorer.

4—George W. DeLong, Arctic explorer.

5—Melville E. Stone, journalist.

6—Maud Powell, violinist.

2 teaspoons vinegar
1 cup water
2 egg whites, beaten
1 cup diced marshmallows
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, vinegar and water. Let stand four minutes. Mix well and boil gently without stirring until a thread forms when portion is slowly poured from a spoon. Slowly pour in beaten egg whites. Beat until thick and cold. Add rest of ingredients. Frost cake. Cut in wedge shaped pieces and serve with a fork.

Use paper cups for holding cake mixtures. Fill the cups half full and space two inches on baking sheets during the baking. This saves much dishwashing.

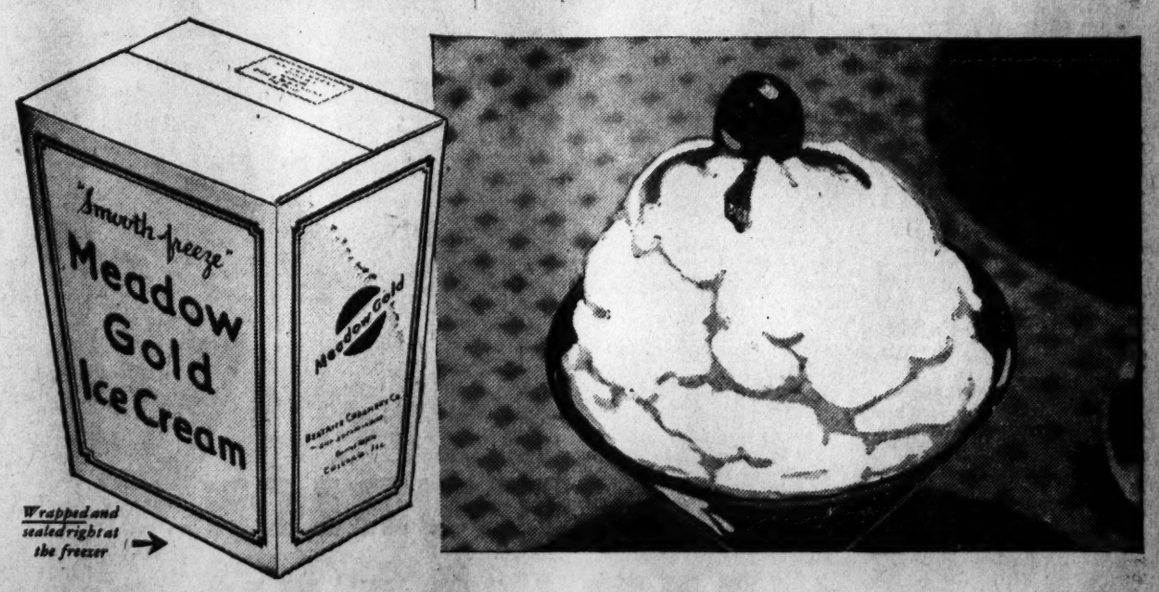
Thousands find new deliciousness in this "smooth-freeze" ice cream



Wrapped and sealed right at the freezer

Carry home a sealed, "carry-home" package today

A NEW METHOD OF FREEZING

Meadow Gold "Smooth-freeze" Ice Cream is frozen by special patented machinery which reduces the freezing time from minutes to seconds. The result is tiny ice crystals and a velvety smoothness not obtainable in ice cream made any other way.

IT'S the ice cream news of the day—this new way of freezing that brings velvety smoothness, a rich, creamy texture to Meadow Gold Ice Cream. Now, for the first time, you can enjoy ice cream that hasn't a single lump or icy crystal to mar its delicate flavor.

Meadow Gold's "smooth-freeze" brings out to the full the rich goodness of this finer ice cream. Delicious, sweet farm cream . . . pure milk . . . vanilla and chocolate flavors made right from the beans. Fresh fruits in season; real fruits always—there's never a substitute used.

Buy this smoother, finer ice cream in the sealed, "carry-home" package. Filled and wrapped at the freezer, the Meadow Gold Ice Cream in this container has never been touched by human hands.

The dealers who offer you Meadow Gold give it the same scrupulous care it receives in the making. You'll find a soda tastes better with Meadow Gold. Let the children have as much of this healthful, easily-digested frozen food as they want.

WOODLAND BEACH BUSES INCREASED

Two Trips Each Arranged to Accommodate Growth of Neighborhood.

Announcement of additional transportation facilities serving Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on South River in Maryland, was made yesterday by L. L. Altman, president and general manager of the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines.

Under a rearrangement of the line's service buses will serve Woodland Beach, South River Park, Edgewater, Marlboro and Annapolis, buses leaving Washington at 9 and 1:30 o'clock each day from Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Returning, buses leave the ferry wharf at Annapolis at 11:35 and 4:35 o'clock.

The bus schedules and routes have been altered because of the rapid growth of population in the Woodland Beach territory where many Washington residents have built or are building cottages which they are using or expect to use not only during the summer season but for most of the year.

Woodland Beach is available to Capital residents now at bargain prices, all lots there being listed at $93. That amount need not be paid in cash, however, for a down payment of $9 together with the price of a subscription to The Washington Post will enable any one to make a selection. The balance may then be paid in monthly installments of $3.50 each.

Another factor which influenced the bus line in changing its route is that the State of Maryland plans a new $750,000 concrete bridge over South River within a short time. This improvement is expected to increase property values all along the river with Woodland Beach sharing in the increase to a large extent.

Mrs. Hurley Wins With Chopsticks

Secretary Relies on Fork at Tokyo Dinner Given by Ambassador.

Tokyo, Aug. 21 A.P.).—Secretary of War Hurley doesn't know his chopsticks like Mrs. Hurley does. The Secretary was completely outclassed by his wife in use of the eating implements here tonight at an informal Japanese style dinner given in their honor by the American Ambassador, W. Cameron Forbes.

Mrs. Hurley lived in Tokyo as a girl when her father was an embassy naval attache. She spurned the use of a fork. Her husband did not. The Hurleys took off their shoes and sat on the floor and thoroughly enjoyed the dancing of Geisha girls between courses.

The Secretary and his wife arrived in Tokyo this morning. Mr. Hurley made a courtesy call on Foreign Minister Shidehara. Then he went sightseeing and attended a luncheon as the guest of Minister of War Minami. Other guests included Ambassador Forbes, Edwin Neville, councilor of the American Embassy, and Col. James McIlroy.

Cat's Brain Found Run by Electricity

Minute Phone Central Is Described in Reports From Harvard.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Existence in a cat's brain of a lifelike telephone central operating by minute natural electrical currents has been found at Harvard Medical School.

The discovery is described today in Science, official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by H. Davis and L. J. Saul, of the department of physiology and psychiatry.

They confirmed and developed a discovery made about a year ago at Princeton that by talking into a live cat's ear suitably hooked up to a highly sensitive telephone circuit human speech can be transmitted clearly over the nerves of hearing, through the cat's brain and out along metal wires terminating in a phone earpiece.

Plane Is Landed Safely Without Using Wheels

Special to The Washington Post.

Upperville, Va., Aug. 21.—A Continental Airways plane landed on the Chamblin farm near Bluemont today without use of its wheels.

When the weather became bad on the ship's route from Chicago to Washington, Pilot Harold Johnson decided to land. The only field in sight was muddy. As the plane's wheels fold into the wing in flight, he let them remain so rather than risk a turnover. The craft was undamaged, and shortly Johnson flew it on to Washington. Two passengers were aboard.

Jury Reports on Bribery Charges.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Montgomery County grand jury today submitted a report of its investigation into charges of bribery and corruption of the recent session of the Alabama Legislature, but failed to find justification for indictment of any member of the Assembly.

FOX

"THE BRAT." Fox picturization of the stage play by the same name by Maude Fulton, starring Sally O'Neil. Directed by John Ford. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By DON B. REED.

Here is a show lasting nearly three hours, yet without a dull moment. Since there are two distinct stage presentations, it may be the "flesh" portion of the bill should be given precedence over the film; but to me "The Brat" was a corking good picture which deserved top place on almost any program.

Sally O'Neil does a job here as "The Brat" which is surprisingly excellent throughout. Her mode of dress, her slangy expressions, her intensely human emotions combine to make her a decidedly lovable, though reckless, heroine. Two high spots of the performance are where "The Brat" tells the society group exactly what she and others think of them and a rough and tumble battle between Miss O'Neil and Virginia Cherrill in which the girls do everything but break each other's necks.

Supporting Miss O'Neil is a cast that showed the result of splendid selection. Allan Dinehart, as the author who picks up "The Brat" in police court as atmosphere for his next novel; Virginia Cherrill and June Collyer as the debs in love with Allan; Frank Albertson as the author's younger and much abused brother, and who, incidentally, finally wins the girl; J. Farrell MacDonald as the butler, and Albert Gran as the bishop, are exceedingly good in their parts.

From the time she is shoved out of a police patrol into night court, through all the adventures of living with "her betters" and on to the final scene where she marches down the church aisle with her lover, Miss O'Neil is appealing. She pulls the audience to her side at her first appearance and holds it constantly at her beck and call. Whether right or wrong, she is constantly the central figure and as such she earns, through a marvelous characterization, the full sympathy of her public.

Mr. Dinehart takes first honors among the supporting players with a smooth, sophisticated performance, while Frank Albertson and Farrell MacDonald furnish most of the love and comedy background for the story. John Ford has done well by this story and the players he was given.

As for the all-Washington revue, if its first presentation is any criterion, Fox audiences all week will enjoy themselves thoroughly. Filled to the brim with almost every kind of entertainment, run on and off the stage with precision, accompanied by the snappiest of music, this revue is all its sponsors claimed for it, and considerably more. It would require too much space here to list all those who participated and to try and pick a star is beyond this reviewer's realm. More about the revue will be found in today's "About the Showshops" column, but it would be unfair to halt here without giving Al Mitchell and the Fox orchestra a great big hand for their work in aiding the singers, dancers and comedians. It was a great demonstration of theater cooperation, and the result most pleasing.

The Fanchon & Marco unit consists of the Hollywood Collegians, a band of parts, and a beautiful blonde, Dorothy Crooker, who does about the best "one-foot" dancing seen here in many seasons. Somebody with a real sense of comedy and lighting effects has helped the Collegians put their stuff over, which they do in a thoroughly delightful and whole-hearted manner. Not as smooth, perhaps, as some of the other orchestras which have been around a long time, nevertheless the Collegians have the stuff for any audience.

A brief release of the Fox Movietone News completed this long but interesting bill.

FILM TIME TABLES

Produce to Be Accepted For Tuition in College

Barboursville, W. Va., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Farm produce will be accepted in payment of tuition at Morris Harvey College here during the coming school year.

Leonard Riggleman, president of the college, said the officials decided to accept produce in lieu of cash for tuition, because many young persons who wished to attend Morris Harvey lacked money, but had an abundance of farm crops. The produce will be used in the college dining hall, he said.

Nautilus Enters Arctic Ice Pack.

Berlin, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Sir Hubert Wilkins, pushing into the Arctic in the submarine Nautilus, radioed the newspaper Acht Uhr Blatt today that the submarine had entered the ice pack zone and already had penetrated 20 miles, traveling at the rate of eight knots an hour through floating ice. Navigation was very difficult, the message said.

RKO-KEITH'S

"THE PUBLIC DEFENDER." A Radio picturization of the novel by George Goodschild, adapted for the screen by Bernard Schubert; starring Richard Dix, supported by Shirley Grey, Edmund Breese, Paul Hurst and Alan Roscoe. Directed by J. Walter Ruben. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Executive ability, 'tis said, is the capacity for getting the credit for the work performed by one's subordinates. On that basis, then, Richard Dix should further add to his histrionic laurels with his delineation of the Reckoner, a private citizen who undertakes, with all the cunning of Robin Hood, to solve the mystery attending a bank failure.

It should not be thought that Mr. Dix, in "The Public Defender," gives a substandard performance, for it is not so; he interprets the role with his accustomed finished craftsmanship. While his interpretation is impeccable, Mr. Dix is somewhat handicapped by a vehicle which offers little chance to give a complete accounting of his many accomplishments.

To those supporting Mr. Dix must be given the credit for most of the action and movement of the story, a cast admirably chosen and whose efforts are largely responsible for the exceedingly good light in which the star finds himself.

Shirley Grey, as the daughter of the banker falsely accused of illegal financial manipulations; Edmund Breese, as Dix's attorney; Paul Hurst and Boris Karloff, the star's right-hand men; Nella Walker, as Miss Grey's puritanically inclined aunt; Ruth Weston, as a mutual friend, and Alan Roscoe, as the police inspector, contribute to the straight side of the drama's development, while the conniving bankers are played by Purnell Pratt, Frank Sheridan and Carl Gerrard.

In spite of crooked banking and murder "The Public Defender" is decidedly not a gang picture. It is a clever sleuthing tale, with Mr. Dix admirably blending the attributes of Robin Hood, Philo Vance, and Sherlock Holmes to make excellent diversion.

Supporting the feature is a list of short subjects no less entertaining. There is, first of all, the screen version of The Washington Post feature, John Hix's "Strange as It Seems," photographed in color. Then, without regard to their respective merits, there are the Silly Symphony, "The Cat's Nightmare," the Mickey McGuire comedy, "Mickey's Diplomacy" (just what it was is beyond this reviewer); an abbreviated release of the Pathe Review, featuring Walter Damrosch and a resurrected shot of Theodore Roosevelt's first airplane ride, and the current issue of the Pathe News.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With DON B. REED

BECAUSE limited space in the regular reviewing columns did not permit an exhaustive report on the all-Washington revue now being staged at the Fox, I want to take this opportunity to outline briefly some of the numbers which Capital patrons will see and hear. One of the numbers which won instant favor with yesterday's audiences was Julian Hall's imitation of Charles Chaplin, an imitation which I thought the best I had seen. The three Yates Sisters gave an attractive dance routine, while Tereta Schaeffer's male impersonation, with song and dance, went over in a big way.

Romeo Guaraldi's rendition of "Neapolitan Nights" could have been better with a little more expression on the part of the singer. Kearney, Long and Belt, three male tap dancers, presented some trick steps, while Bernice Stevens' whistling, with excellent orchestral accompaniment, scored heavily. Mulroe and Sanger, a mandolin-dancer combination, did well enough, and Harlan Randall sang "Lover, Come Back to Me," rather nicely. Dorothy Reddish, with Al Mitchell aiding her, presented a popular song, but her voice did not carry well to the rear seats. An acrobatic dance by Eleanor Hudlow was a bright spot of the show, while the younger generation went overboard for Nadine Brownfield, who as a cigarette girl, sang a blues number that was really blue.

The Foxettes showed evidence of rigorous training at the hands of Helen Kearney and Margaret Culahan. So well did they offer their opening routine that many in the crowd thought it was part of the regular Fanchon & Marco stage presentation. Managing Director Harry Crull had his program so timed and executed that all the usual delays of hometown performances were eliminated and a high-class show presented.

And because of the rush of business yesterday, the Fox will put on five de luxe shows today, the doors opening at 9:30 a. m. Or are you like me, to whom 9:50 a. m. is just an excellent time to sleep?

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Chateau Lido, formerly the Villa Roma, on Rockville pike, come Tuesday night. Mischa Guterson, director, has announced for his opening program the appearance of Claire Ray, of the pictures; Gene Seville, dancer, and Jacques Belchere and his Chateau Lido Orchestra, direct from Daytona Beach, Fla. Attractions will be changed weekly with Mildred Harris listed as the second star on the program.

Having seen the Sally O'Neil-Virginia Cherrill fight to a finish in "The Brat" at the Fox yesterday afternoon, I am anxiously awaiting an opportunity to see Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins go to it in "The Smiling Lieutenant" at the Columbia. I have been informed that the Colbert-Hopkins battle is a humdinger and it probably is, but until I actually see it, either Miss O'Neil or Miss Cherrill can join my stable of lightweight championship seekers.

I know of no feature which the motion pictures have treated as kindly and with such telling effect as the cartoon "Strange As It Seems," which appears daily on the sport pages of this family journal. The addition of color had given "Strange As It Seems" a particular appeal while the camera, instead of merely picking up the inanimate drawings of John Hix, the author, has gone into the far-off places and actually photographed strange and at times unbelievable items to amaze an eager public. Incidentally, the color treatment of the Hix series, one of which is now on the screen at RKO-Keith's, has been consistently good.

The radio, which keeps some of my colleagues posted on the events of the day (and night), has just revealed, from down the hall, that the Palace in New York has decided to keep its present bill intact for the fifth consecutive week, a record which has even sophisticated Broadway gasping and demanding explanations. I think this has been mentioned previously, but just to refresh your memory, the headliners of the program are our own Kate Smith and Lou Holtz. More power to them, say we.

A late shift in bookings will bring Marty Collins and Harry Peterson in "You're a Wise Guy" to head the vaudeville program at the Earle next week instead of Lew Pollack in "Theme Songs." Collins and Peterson are old favorites in the Capital, having played both Earle and Palace on previous occasions. The picture at the Earle next week is "The Last Flight," the latest by Richard Barthelmess. It is adapted from the novel, "Single Lady," by John Monk Saunders.

BROWN HURLS NATS TO 6-3 TRIUMPH AT CLEVELAND

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BECAUSE the American public has a curious habit of withholding deserving recognition until time clothes its sports heroes in a sort of immortality, Lefty Grove must wait the passage of years before he is rated as the greatest of all left-handed pitchers.

Then the fans of the present generation will be the die-hards of a future baseball era, holding out for Grove as the greatest of all southpaws with the same fervor and tenacity that the venerable Pete Marsnall holds out Rube Waddell and Eddie Plank.

But this column is ready to concede Grove the honors. His feat of winning sixteen straight games and tying the league record for consecutive victories is by no means the decisive influence. Grove, without a string of victories approaching sixteen, would still be the great Grove. He has cemented his claim to immortality with consistent brilliance out there on the pitching mound.

Figures in Error

It is pointed out by the die-hards that Grove's sixteen straight victories show a run average against him of 3½ runs per game, but the figures are slightly in error. True, the sum total of runs scored in the sixteen games he is credited with winning during his streak average three and a half, but the fact that Grove went into many of these games in the late innings after the opposition had compiled several runs off his predecessors is not taken into consideration. The actual number of runs scored off Grove would show considerably less than 3½ per game.

In mechanical ability Grove can not be underestimated. Even Pete Marshall would not be so rash as to venture that Grove's fast ball was not as fast as Waddell's or Plank's. And there is well-grounded ssupicion, nay belief, that neither Waddell nor Plank could impel within a few miles per hour the same velocity that Grove gets on the ball with his fork hand.

Neither can it be said against Grove that he has had his spots picked for him by Connie Mack. Included in his triumphs this season are three duels with Wesley Ferrell, ace of the Cleveland staff, and each time Grove emerged triumphant. Included, too, among his two defeats are a heart-rending 2-1 setback he received in Washington last April 18 and a twelfth inning loss to Chicago as a relief pitcher when Lou Fonseca hit a home run.

Grove Has Edge

Grove has an edge over the batter the moment he steps into the box. It is a distinctly different type of pitching that Grove serves up to the plate; and give a hitter all the batting practice in the world, and he is still "cold" when he faces Grove. No other twirler in the league has his fast ball; no other pitcher has his curve. The hitters don't get a look at pitching like Grove's until the great man himself is in the box.

To Grove's credit it can be said that he has acquired the wile and guile of the pitching master through bitter experience. When he broke into the league he didn't know how to temper his speed or his curve with control and conservation of his strength, and it is on the record books that he failed to last the route in thirteen successive starts against the Washington Club in the early days of his big league career.

It is a different Grove who is out there winning the pennant for the Athletics for the third consecutive year. He is bearing down only when the occasion requires; and eased up, he is still clever enough to turn in a sizable number of victories.

None Like Grove

The world series battles of 1929 and 1930 testified to Grove's effectiveness. The Cubs of 1929 and the Cardinals of 1930 had never encountered the speed or the curve of a Grove. There were no pitchers in the National League who served the same kind of fireballs plateward.

Hack Wilson, Hazen Cuyler, Chick Hafey, Jim Bottomley, Riggs Stephenson, Charley Grimm, all vaunted sluggers, were helpless before Grove in the last two world series. Yeah, they were glad to take their three swings and get away from the plate. The old confidence oozed when Grove's fireball buzzed across the platter. Only Rogers Hornsby, the greatest natural hitter of them all, stood up there squarely and took his cut at the ball.

And, by the way, Grove's streak hasn't ended yet.

GRID STAR WEDS.

New Orleans, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Lloyd "Preacher" Roberts, all-Southern center and captain of Tulane University's football team last year, was married here last night to Miss Winifred Orr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Orr, of New Orleans.

Helen Jacobs Ousted by Briton

Mrs. Whittingstall Is Winner in Upset, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6.

Mrs. Moody Is Lone U. S. Hope Against British Invasion.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Union Jack waved triumphantly over the ramparts at Forest Hills tonight after an embattled day that saw three members of the British Wightman Cup team sweep into the semifinals of the forty-fourth national women's tennis championship.

Alone of the hugh American field that started the quest for the title on Monday, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of San Francisco survived to continue the fight against the invaders. The six-time champion calmly brushed aside another opponent after having watched her fellow Californians take it on the chin all afternoon.

Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, seeded no higher than fourth on the foreign list, supplied most of the day's fireworks with a stirring three-set victory over Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., seeded No. 2 on the American list and figured at least to reach the semifinals, the husky Coast star was erased by a deadly net attack, 3—6, 6—3, 8—6.

Mrs. Harper Ousted By Phyllis Mudford.

Pounding Phyllis Mudford, another of Old England's representatives, attended to Mrs. Lawrence Harper, of Oakland, Calif., America's official No. 1 player, 4—6, 6—3, 8—6. After dropping the first set, in which Mrs. Harper won the first four games with her peculiar chop stroke, the chunky British girl came back to blast her left-handed rival hither and yon the rest of the way. As a result of her strong showing in the last two sets, it was predicted Miss Mudford would give the great Moody more than usual competition in their semifinal bout tomorrow.

If she does, it will be more than little Dorothy Weisel, of Sacramento, was able to accomplish today. Suiting her game to that of her opponent, Mrs. Moody played a soft, careful stroke all the way to win by scores of 6—1, 6—2. She was content to maneuver her less experienced opponent out of position and then smash over a placement.

Macks Win Slugfest With Chisox, 15-12

Chicago, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Although outhit 14-10, the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the White Sox, 15 to 12 today. The wildness of five Chicago pitchers contributed to their defeat.

Rube Walberg received credit for the victory, although he was knocked out of the box during a Chisox uprising in the sixth inning. The Rube allowed nine hits, walked five batters and struck out one. He was succeeded by Roy Mahaffey, who was subjected to a bombardment in the seventh when the home clan came within one run of tying the score at 13-12.

The Sox pitchers were merely throwers today, the five who worked yielding eight passes all told. Errors by the Sox infield also contributed toward the Macks' victory.

Williams and Cramer hit homers for the Macks.

G. U. Eleven Is Dealt Blow; Dashiell to Stay on Farm

WHAT doubtless will prove sad news to the football coaches and other Georgetown University athletic officials The Post learned yesterday when it was reported that J. Douglas "Whitey" Dashiell, star half back of last year's freshmen eleven, will not return to the Hilltop for the fall term.

In a letter to Charles Corbett, of Alexandria, Va., with whom he formerly made his home, Dashiell, writing from his present home in Jacksonville, Tex., stated that he is going to remain there to assume charge of his mother's farm.

Dashiell was highly regarded last year as a prospect for a regular backfield position on this year's Georgetown varsity team. Coming to the Hilltop from the Marine Corps in which he had gained a fine reputation for gridiron prowess, "Whitey" immediately impressed Head Coach Tommy Mills and other coaches with his speedy broken field running and

BRITISH PAIR VICTIMS OF DOEG-LOTT

Americans Win 5-Set Match to Enter Newport Finals.

By BILL KING.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Johnny Doeg and George Lott, national tennis doubles champions for the past two years, gained the final round of Newport Casino team play today with a five-set victory over Frederick J. Perry and G. Patrick Hughes, British Davis Cup team. The scores were 5—7, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4.

The champions, however, face the battle of their career tomorrow, for Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, sensational Californians, who have tasted defeat only once this season, took the other final bracket by upsetting another pair of West Coasters, Jack Tidball and Lester Stoffen, in straight sets, 8—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Before engaging in the doubles finals, Vines will get in the initial singles windup with Perry. Both qualified yesterday, Vines defeating Johnny Van Ryn and the Briton advancing when Sidney Wood was defaulted because of a leg cramp.

Doeg and Lott today found the Britishers steady foes, capable of holding their own through eleven keenly contested games and then, given a point lead on Lott's double fault, they limited themselves to two errors as they smashed over two placements and a tricky angle shot that Doeg netted to break down his partner's service. This fracture gave the Britons the first set.

Doeg-Lott Center On Hughes.

Doeg and Lott played easily and, by concentrating on Hughes, broke down his service in the seventh game of the second set and won when Doeg served a love game in the tenth.

Hughes dropped his service twice during the third set, but he and Perry rallied to cras Doeg twice and Lott once to regain the lead. They continued without a rest and the American pair pulled even by overcoming a 40-love lead and breaking Hughes in the twice deuced fifth game of the fourth set. They won the deciding series when Hughes cracked for the fifth time in the third game.

Tidball and Stoeffen held Vines and Gledhill even for twelve games before the latter pair, the national clay court champions, broke through Stoeffen and took the lead. They accomplished this feat by forcing him to out their lobs. Gledhill then ran out the set.

Nine games in the second went with service before Tidball was broken with a mixture of sizzling strokes that forced two nets and an out after the server double faulted. During the

Cubs and White Sox Set Dangerous Precedent by Giving Charity Full Intake

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—They are planning a ball game for charity between the White Sox and Cubs in Chicago, and, strange to say, charity will get 100 per cent of the receipts. The prize fighters, managers and promoters who have conducted shows in the name of charity will regard this as a dangerous precedent, for the understanding always has been that when the gladiators appear in the ring for charity's sake, they also head the list of beneficiaries. In the Chicago ball game, Charlie Comiskey and William Wrigley will pay all the expenses of the production besides furnishing the ball clubs and the grounds, so charity, for once, will receive the gross receipts, and not the net.

There is a great difference between the gross receipts and the net in any promotion, but it is never so great as when the eleemosynary instinct seizes the prize fighters and they fight for charity.

Benny Leonard, who is now returning to the ring, once fought for charity's sake in Chicago, and when all the worthy subjects connected with this laudable enterprise had helped themselves to the charity, each according to his needs and his conscience, the gross receipts of many thousands of dollars had dwindled to $17 net.

Rather oddly, the broken-down prize fighter in whose aid the boys had given of themselves so generously was not properly grateful for the $17 net, and when the promoter of the contest went to him later and said, "My boy, your condition is breaking my heart again and I am going to run another benefit for you," he replied, "No, you are not; it is my turn to run for you."

Last year, Tuffy Griffiths and Willie Stribling obeyed that charitable impulse in Chicago, fighting ten rounds for the benefit of Gov. Emmerson's fund for the relief of the unemployed. This is the same fund that will receive the gross receipts, not the net, of the impending charity ball game. Tuffy and Willie drew a gate of $84,000, about $20,000 more than they would have drawn if charity had not assisted in the sounding of the ballyhoo. It was a successful show. The two needy young prize fighters, who were down to their last few hundred thousand dollars, divided $40,000 between them. Then there were the deductions for the expenses and, finally, the promoters, in pardonable pride, were able to report a

Braves Beat Bucs, 2-1, In Pitchers' Battle

Boston, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Braves gained an edge in the series with the Pirates by taking the third game, 2 to 1, today. Cantwell and Brame indulged in a pitchers' battle with Wally Berger contributing his seventeenth home run of the season as a potent factor in the victory.

Despite three errors by his teammates, Cantwell was given sensational support. Maranville contributed several fielding features. The Pirates' lone run was unearned, coming after an error by Freddie Maguire.

Red Sox Errors Help Detroit to Win by 11-5

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—The Tigers, aided by seven walks and five errors, defeated the Boston Red Sox, 11 to 5, in the third game of a series today. Uhle, pitching for the Tigers, held the Sox to five hits and one run after a bad first inning in which four runs were made. The Tigers evened the score in the second and piled up a safe margin in the seventh and eighth. Durham and Moore pitched for Boston.

Gehrig Follows With His 34th; Yanks Win, 11 to 7.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth started things off again today when he walloped his 35th home run of the season and the 600th of his major league career in the third inning against the Browns. The homer, followed immediately by Lou Gehrig's thirty-fourth of the year, put the Yankees on the road to an 11-to-7 victory over St. Louis.

The two homers opened the action in a 5-run Yankee rally and they never were in serious danger after this scoring burst, hammering Blaeholder, Stiles and Kimsey for a total of 16 hits. The Babe left the game in the seventh inning by order of Umpire Van Grafian when he protested long and loudly that Ralph

Dempsey Bars No Opponent On National Tour, He Says

ATLANTA, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Southern newspapers received telegrams today from Leonard D. Sacks, secretary of Jack Dempsey, giving further details of the Manassa Mauler's projected exhibition tour.

The telegram to the Memphis, (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar said:

"Will make entire country, the tour ending in March. Will not carry any sparring partners, but will accept any opponent offered by promoters. If Dempsey is satisfied with his condition and his own efforts after the tour he will be ready to talk about a big fight."

The wire to the Atlanta (Ga.) Journal said:

"Will be South during winter. Will positively include Atlanta. Dempsey in great shape. Will most likely be ready for any one after conclusion of exhibition tour ending March. Weighed 199. Looked great last night."

Conditions of the tour, the wire to

D. C. PRINTER NINE WINS TOURNEY

Defeats Chicago and Cincinnati to Clinch U. S. Typo Title.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAMILTON, Ontario, Aug. 21.—For the eighth time in the last ten years and the ninth in 24, the Washington Typo Baseball Team is the champion of the Union Printers Association and possessor again of the perpetual Garry Hermann Trophy, which Chicago won last season.

When Jimmy Dewhurst, pinch runner for Cy Simons, crossed the plate in the tenth inning on Lefty Schneider's perfect line single into left field, the winning tally scored to give Washington a 7-to-6 triumph over a scrappy and young Cincinnati runner-up opponent. The victory gave the Capital Tossers a deserved reward for their marvelous tournament play, in which they copped six consecutive games without a setback.

Tom Heeney was rested for the title assignment and continued on the mound through eight interesting frames until he became ill and was replaced by Gladstone Roudabush, who earlier in the day had allowed Chicago six singles in pitching Washington to a 13-to-7 triumph.

Cincinnati Shows Fight.

Fighting a game uphill battle behind Britton's fine pitching, Cincinnati counted runs in the third and fourth to begin an exciting match. Britton turned back Washington with only six hits and one run besides six strikeouts, until the ninth, when Hollis gained a single, but was stranded.

In the eighth, after two out, Herbert walked and scored on Hueselbush's triple. Without having a hit in the ninth off Roudabush, Cincinnati tied the score, 5 to 5, after two out when Stieringer walked and Eten fanned, but Catcher Simon allowed the last strike to get away and runners camped on second and first, respectively. Homan, who had a hard time fielding hoppers, heaved wildly past Wapie, permitting Stieringer to score. Britton had a chance to be a bigger hero, but grounded out.

Washington almost forged ahead

Rev. Dineen New Sports Moderator at Hilltop

The Very Rev. Peter V. Masterson, faculty moderator of athletics of Georgetown University, has retired, to be succeeded by the Rev. Timothy J. Dineen, of Woodstock (Md.) College, it was announced yesterday by university authorities.

The Rev. Dineen once was faculty moderator of athletics at St. Joseph's High School in Philadelphia.

It was indicated by the authorities that the change in the office represents no change in policy since the actual operation of the athletic association is now in the hands of Graduate Manager H. Gabriel Murphy.

Clint Brown Pounded Out in Fifth as Nats Clinch Game.

By E. J. WHITNEY
(Cleveland Plain Dealer Staff Baseball Writer).

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 21.—Lloyd Brown, Washington southpaw, went to the mound this afternoon and the bats of the slugging Cleveland team were effectively silenced, the Nats annexing the fourth game of the series, 6 to 3.

While the Nat hurler was limiting the Tribe to six hits, his namesake, Clint Brown, of the Indians, was being socked for eleven hits in four frames.

The Cleveland right-hander has been in the American League for three seasons, and has yet to record a victory over the Nationals.

Washington belted out fifteen hits, making at least one hit in every inning but the eighth and the ninth. While Brown was setting down the Cleveland clouters, Averill and Morgan, without a hit, Washington's clubbers, Rice, Cronin, Manush and Bluege, were chalking up nine hits between them. Montague and Kamm, two of the weakest hitters in the Cleveland lineup, made four of the Tribe's six bingles.

Cronin and Myer Sparkle Afield.

Cronin and Myer sparkled around the keystone sack, while Bluege had a busy day at third.

A pretty running catch by Vosmik of Manush's liner kept the Nats from driving Clint Brown off the mound in the first inning. Myer doubled, Cronin doubled and West singled in this frame, but the rally produced only one run.

The Nats continued their attack in the second session, but this time were nipped by a double play. Kuhel doubld and Spencer singled. Brown hit into a twin killing and the rally was over.

Clint Brown made the first Cleveland hit in the third inning, but was forced by Porter.

Kuhel pried off the fourth with a double off the wall, stole third and tallied on Spencer's single.

The Indians tied the score in the fourth. With two out, Vosmik and Kamm singled and Sewell walked. Montague then cleaned the sacks with a triple to the center-field bleachers.

Clint Brown Driven Out in Fifth.

A savage Washington attack in the fifth produced two runs and drove Brown to the showers. Rice and Manush singled and Cronin doubled to chase Brown. Pete Jablonowski replaced him and retired the side in short order.

Brown's double and Rice's third straight hit gave Washington another counter in the sixth. Manush also singled, but both runners were left stranded.

The Nats got only one hit off Jablonowski in the final three innings; but Brown limited the Tribe to a pair, and neither team threatened to score.

Rice saved Brown some trouble in the fourth by leaping into the air with his back against the wall to spear Averill's liner.

Lloyd Brown's double off the wall in the sixth split Dick Porter's hand and forced the right fielder out of the game.

Walker Is Next Schmeling Foe, Manager Says

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Mickey Walker will be Max Schmeling's next opponent when the German decides to defend his title, Joe Jacobs, manager of the champion, told the United Press today. The bout, according to Jacobs, will take place either at Atlantic City or Miami, probably late in February.

The German's pilot also made known that he is endeavoring to arrange a fight against Gene Tunney or Jack Dempsey, both former champions. This bout might be held in Chicago, if arranged, he said.

TWENTY GRAND RUNS FOR $5,000 PURSE IN TRAVERS TODAY

Mate to Idle, Not Entered For Race

Derby Winner Would Pass $200,000 by Taking Test.

St. Brideaux, Sun Meadow Leading Opponents.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Twenty Grand, the crown prince of the 3-year-old turf division, starts in the sixty-second running of the $5,000 added Travers tomorrow; and barring another of Saratoga's famous upsets, the star of Mrs. Payne Whitney's barns should send his total earnings past the $200,000 mark.

Five other 3-year-olds have been named for the rich 1¼-mile jaunt, but there is no Mate or any horse like the 3-year-old champion to oppose Twenty Grand. A. C. Bostwick failed to name Mate for the event when the entries closed nearly two years ago, with the result that the son of Prince Pal will stay in his stall while Twenty Grand goes after his fifth victory of the year. He has won the Wood, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes and the Dwyer.

Sun Meadow May Prove Threat.

Twenty Grand's chief opposition probably will come from his stable mate, St Brideaux, or Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's Sun Meadow, which outgamed Jamestown to run second to Twenty Grand in the Belmont Stakes.

As a companion feature to the Travers, twelve 2-year-olds will start in the $10,000 Spinway Stakes, with two fillies the probable public choices. C. V. Whitney's Top Flight appears to be the class of the field, with W. R. Coe's Polonaise a strong contender.

Mrs. Charles Amory's Sagamore Stable, which always fares well at Saratoga, won another race when Towee got up in the final strides to account for the Troy, a claiming stake for juveniles and feature of today's program. Quoted at 12 to 1, the Sagamore youngster was given a well-judged ride by Johnny Bejshak to beat Joseph Leiter's Princess Camelia, the favorite, ridden by Eugene James. A half length separated the pair at the finish, with the Belair Stud's Faireno another length and a half back in third place.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Hawthorne Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 21.—A banner crowd is expected to witness the closing day program at the Hawthorne course tomorrow, which will be featured by the $10,000 added Hawthorne Juvenile Handicap, a test over the 6-furlong distance. Supporting the main event on the well balanced eight-race program, will be a $5,000 handicap, for the older horses over the mile and a sixteenth route.

In the juvenile feature, a field of 22 have been named to contest the closing fixture. BURNING BLAZE from the Valley Lake Stable, which scored with comparative ease in his last, is in prime condition and figures to annex this rich prize. Chief opposition will be furnished by the Respess Stable's OUR FANCY, with LIBERTY LIMITED, a brisk worker, favored for the short end of the purse.

The supporting feature attracted a list of ten 3-year-olds and upward with DARK SEA a consistent colt, with several impressive victories to his credit, favored to show the way to his rivals. CHIEF JOHN, from the J. Marsch string, showed a splendid effort last outing to score over a fair field and with that race as a conditioner, the Sir John Johnson colt is accorded the place. MORSEL will favor the route and should share in the purse.

FIRST RACE—The opening dash at six and a half furlongs should result in a victory for BRAVE AND BOLD. NIGHT VINTAGE suffered interference last start but figures to force the pace, with PRINCE VOLTA as the show possibility.

SECOND RACE—In the second, at 6½ furlongs, a large field of juvenile platers will contest the purse. CHEPERA closed considerable ground last out and off that effort should score. RUNANWIN has trained well and will furnish the opposition, with SHAKER LADY favored over the others.

THIRD RACE—WORKLESS and MASTER ACE are closely matched in the third, which will be decided over the mile-and-three-sixteenths route. The former is given the call on his recent splendid performance. CABILDO should get into the money.

SIXTH RACE—SUNFIRE appears a standout in the sixth. The son of Olambala scored in his last four starts and is on edge. SERAJEVO is the contender, with TIGER FLOWERS as the show selection.

SEVENTH RACE—Seven claimers will travel over the mile-and-a-quarter route. MACEDON has shown consistent form and should annex the purse. WISE LEE and SEARINGTON will battle it out for the rest of the money.

EIGHTH RACE—The concluding event brings together a large group of platers to contest the purse at the mile-and-three-sixeenths route. PUNISHMENT should hold this field safe. DELMONICO is favored for the place, with BEAR CRY given the show call.

HAWTHORNE, ILL., CHART, AUGUST 21, 1931.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRIASSIC, $15.48, $5.44, $3.30; VISHNU, $3.60, $2.64; DISCOBOLUS, $3.96

TRIASSIC took a good position at the start and, although racing a trifle wide in the stretch, finished fast to catch VISHNU in the last stride. The latter opened up a good lead after going a quarter and, racing well to the end barely missed. DISCOBOLUS was off slowly, was used up racing into contention on the outside and weakened slightly in the final run. THE WHIG met with some interference on the far turn. LAVENDER LADY tired badly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good for all but Wild Child. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:44. Off at 2:45. Winner, Superior Stable's b. c. (3), by Best Pal—Annie Lyle. Trained by R. W Selden Value to winner $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EIGHTY TWENTY, $6.88, $4.60, $3.42; DEWEY FLY, $12.88, $8.54; ORANGE PLUME, $7.44.

EIGHTY TWENTY, always close to the pace, forged to the front after going half the distance and held DEWEY FLY at the end. The latter raced forwardly and loomed up dangerous at midstretch, but hung slightly in the final drive. ORANGE PLUME made up some ground. ONRITA also staged a good finish. HIGH POCKETS quit.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs (Hawthorne course, out of chute). Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Vibration. Won driving; place, same. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY VA VA, $52.86, $14.94, $7.90; GRAND PRINCE, $5.26, $3.58; TUNE IN, $4.64.

LADY VA VA gained steadily in the early running and, coming fast in the final quarter, caught GRAND PRINCE near the end and won going away. The latter raced in front all the way, but could not stave off the winner. TUNE IN set the pace and held on fairly well. PAGAN LADDIE was cut down behind and went lame in one of his front legs during the stretch run. CROSS BONES could not keep up. BAG SMASHER was in close quarters on the far turn. NUSAKAN tired badly.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:49½. Winner, W. Haughton's ch. g. (6), by Ormond—Beryle. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 1:14, 1:40, 1:53 3-5.

THE SOUTHERNER, easily best, was blocked twice in the first quarter, but moved up strongly when clear and, taking command in the stretch, was a handy winner. MACEDON came on strongly after going half the distance and finished courageously, but was not good enough. GREY KITTY weakened slightly in the final run. WATERPORT could not keep up and seems to be a trifle off form. SHOW DOWN tired badly in the stretch after setting the early pace.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:19. Off at 4:20. Winner, Mrs. J. A. Pink's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAIUS, $16.40, $7.88, $4.76; RIFF RAFF, $5.96, $4.20; PAULA L, $4.60.

CAIUS was off quickly and setting the pace under slight restraint, had enough left at the end to score a handy win. RIFF RAFF was always well up and held PAULA L. in the final drive. PAULA L. met with slight interference when racing next the rail during the back stretch run. BUNCH OF LILIES was badly outrun to the stretch, then moved up fast, but did not do enough. BLUE LAW was in close quarters on the far turn. BRIGHT DAY raced below her recent good form.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:50½. Off at 4:52. Winner, Mrs. Edenmark's b. f. (4), by Supremus—Cushion. Trained by R. T. Watts. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49, 1:14 2-5, 1:41, 1:47 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TISHYBO, $19.36, $7.42, $4.66; REVERBERATE, $4.66, $3.28; THUNWIN, $3.92.

TISHYBO, showing sudden improvement, went to the front at once and, racing well, won easily. REVERBERATE challenged at the stretch turn, but was not good enough. THUNWIN loomed up dangerously entering the stretch, but was weakly ridden in the final eighth. BLUE CANOPY raced a trifle wide most of the way, but displayed fair form. EVERGREEN QUEEN was running well when she was in close quarters behind the leaders at the stretch turn and, taken to the middle of the track, tired. BELL O' SCOTLAND was pulled up soon after the start, was in close quarters on the back stretch and bled during the race. FLO O'NEILL and O'NEILL were never dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:24. Off at 5:28. Winner, G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANTA SOPHIA, $5.98, $3.90, $3.22; ROBERTA L., $4.34, $3.40; SWEET MANDY, $6.00.

SANTA SOPHIA raced badly at the barrier and was off slowly, but saved ground around the first turn to reach a contending position and, after being shuffled back at the far turn, came to the outside at the stretch turn to wear down the early leaders and win under mild urging. ROBERTA L. moved up fast at the far turn and took a short lead in the stretch, but could not resist the winner SWEET MANDY showed improvement in the stretch, but was no some ground. TRANSGRESSION was running well on the back stretch when she was sharply put off and forced to pull up. BLAMELESS had early speed, but met with interference when crowded on the far turn. ANGELENA stopped as if short.

GRID CROWN SOUGHT BY PALACE

Southwest Eleven to Play in Capital City League.

CLOSE on the heels of the announcement that the Centennials, champions of the 150-pound division of The Post's Capital City Football League, are reorganizing for the coming season, comes the news that Joe Perrone is gathering his Palace A. C. pig skin toters about him to figure out ways and means of regaining the title of this class which Palace held for three consecutive years previous to last season's campaign.

Perrone's club will not be associated with the District Grocers this year as it has been in the past two seasons. Back under the old colors the Palace gridmen hope to recapture the title which they seemed to hold a mortgage on. A meeting of all of last year's players and any new candidates is scheduled for tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at Sixth and B streets southwest. All players are requested to report promptly.

The Capital City League will be organized about the middle of September this season in order to give the teams advantage of better playing weather. Two sections, 150 pounds, and unlimited will be sponsored by The Post this year, and a record turnout is anticipated.

70 Bluefish Caught By Capital Auditors

A fishing party composed of O. H. Martuer, A. E. Wise, George Merit, and J. E. Mathews, auditors in the Internal Revenue Bureau, landed a catch of 70 bluefish while trolling off Solomons Island early Thursday morning. The average size of the fish was about two pounds, although some weighed as much as two and a half pounds. The party was out about five hours.

Scalzi to Play Pro Football With Dodgers

Joining a host of former college stars making their advent into professional football, John Scalzi, star quarter back for Georgetown University in 1929 and 1930, will play for the Brooklyn Dodgers this fall in the National Professional Football League.

Scalzi, who gained fame last year with a pair of 95-yard run-backs of kick-offs for touchdowns in Griffith Stadium, will perform against three other former Georgetown stars when the Dodgers and the New York Giants, of the same league, clash on October 5 and December 6. Wearing the uniforms of the Giants will be Jim Mooney, captain and tackle of the 1929 eleven; John Tomaini, end from 1927 to 1929, and George Murtaugh, guard from 1922 to 1925.

MITCHELL IS LONE DISTRICT SURVIVOR IN PARKS SINGLES

Player Gains Semifinals At Detroit

Wins Over Cleveland Star in Thrilling 4-Set Match.

Markey Beaten in 5 Sets; Mrs. Martinez Bows to Champ.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—One Washington entry, Dooly Mitchell, remained in the pursuit of the national public parks singles title at the finish of today's quarter-final matches. Mitchell defeated Harold Bartel, of Cleveland, in a four-set struggle, 4—6, 6—2, 7—5, 6—1.

While Mitchell was disposing of Bartel, Thomas Markey, Washington champion, yielded in five sets to George O'Connell, of Chicago. O'Connell won by the scores of 5—7, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3. As a consequence, Mitchell and O'Connell are scheduled for the second semifinal tilt on Saturday.

Mrs. Ruth Martinez, Washington's last entry in the women's singles, fell before Mrs. Virginia Dueker, of St. Louis, the defending champion, in the first of the semifinal tests. Mrs. Dueker gained the verdict, 6—2, 6—3.

Mitchell and Markey
In Doubles Finals.

Mitchell and Markey advanced to the final round of the men's doubles in erasing Jack Castle and Kasael Packoff, of Buffalo, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3. The Washington pair was superior at the half volley, in service, in driving and in lobbing, a combination of assets that left the Buffalo team far in the lurch.

In the semifinals of the women's doubles, Mary McHale and Charlotte McQuiston, of Dallas, Tex., defeated Ruth Martinez and Frances Walker, of Washington, 6—0, 6—4. Miss McHale's service and chop strokes, and the steady lobbing of McQuiston brought the verdict to the Texas pair.

Mitchell and Bartel spent their time trading drives throughout their four-set match and Mitchell had the better of the dickering except in the first, which Bartel captured, 6—4, largely through the medium of Mitchell's errors.

Bartel's shaky service cost him the second. He had three double faults and netted or drove out his first ball repeatedly. Mitchell leaned on the soft seconds, too often to suit Bartel, and in addition won his own service five times to make the score 6—2, and the net call one each.

In the third set Bartel kept even with Mitchell until the eleventh game which Mitchell won on his own serve. Needing but one game to win set and lead, Mitchell sent over severe drives, fore and back hand that Bartel could not reach, and gained the set at 7—5.

Tired from his early exertions Bartel could barely move one foot after the other in the fourth set and was often left standing still in center court as Mitchell's shots flew past him. The Washington boy had matters all his own way in taking the set, 6—1, a victory that brought him the match.

Markey Tosses Away
Easy Points.

Concerning Bud Markey's struggle with O'Connell it was anybody's match from the opening exchange, although Markey collected the first two sets, O'Connell cancelled the advantage by squaring the count largely through better play at the next and in lobbing Markey out of position.

O'Connell took a 4—3 lead in the fifth when Markey threw easy points away by batting into the net, as points were his for the taking, and netting once on his forehand. Once ahead, O'Connell chopped, drove, and lobbed Markey into one bad position after another. To these shots, Markey had no adequate reply and one slip after another proved fatal, O'Connell winning the set, 6—3, the match, and a place in the semifinal.

Ruth Martinez's defeat at the hands of Virginia Dueker, of St. Louis, was laid to the weakness of his service, ordinarily the strong point in her game, and her inability to return the sidelines drives to which Mrs. Dueker resorted. Mrs. Dueker placed her returns in court on a sufficient number of occasions to gain the margin needed.

In the men's doubles finals Saturday, Mitchell and Markey clash with George Jennings and Gordon Braudt, of Chicago. Jennings and Braudt qualified today by ousting the Chicago-Los Angeles combination of George O'Connell and Clay Mahoney, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1.

PRECEDENT IS SET; CHARITY TO GET ALL

net contribution to the governor's fund of $3,720.

The trouble with charity in all charity prize fights is that everybody has a manager but charity. When charity is the drawing card, a manager would insist on a flat guarantee and the option of a percentage of the receipts. It would be no trifling percentage, either, because charity not only draws customers whom the prize fighters, themselves, couldn't draw, but obviates the Government tax of about sixteen per cent, thus enhancing the fighters' percentages, too.

A prize fight that would draw $50,000 under the auspices of the New York Garden or the Chicago Stadium would be likely to draw $60,000 under the auspices of a charity. Moreover, under the management of the Garden or the Stadium, that $50,000 would be subject to a tax of about $8,000, so that the fighters' percentages would be based on a gate of $42,000. But the same prize fight, produced under the charter of the gin fund or the beer fund, not only would draw more money but would enjoy exemption from the Government tax.

A champion for 37½ per cent of the net thus would draw $15,750 under ordinary auspices, but $22,500 under the mantle of charity, so it is no wonder that the prize fighters are numbered among the most enthusiastic charity workers in the United States.

In the recent contribution to charity by the prize fighters in New York, the two principal philanthropists were Jack Sharkey, an inveterate altruist whose career has been marked by many such sacrifices, and Mickey Walker, who is by no means a novice humanitarian himself. The boys split the nominal sum of $96,000 between them, and of gross receipts of $223,000 the charitable object was reported to have received $35,000, which was not at all bad as such things go. In fact, the New York Milk Fund is the only charity more or less regularly engaged in conducting prize fights whose promoters work for nothing and exert themselves to curb the fighters, managers and miscellaneous chiselers who operate on the policy that charity begins at home.

Milk for Babies and Wine
For Fighters.

Nevertheless, for every pint of milk which the customers have bought for the poor little boys and girls, they have paid the price of a pint of wine to Mrs. Dempsey's little boy, Jack, to Mrs. Cuckoshay's little boy Joseph Paul, and Ma Stribling's boy, Willie.

The greatest purse ever turned over to charity from a sporting event was the $607,412 given to the Salvation Army after the Army-Navy game in New York last year. Even so, this production was not a complete charitable success, because Mr. Grover Whalen could not realize that the customers needed charitable treatment themselves and overpriced the tickets. Consequently, the Salvation Army had to eat a lot of tickets, as they say, which a more versatile promoter would have peddled from soap boxes for as much as they would bring an hour before the game. This has been done quite often to bring in much money from tickets which would otherwise have died in the racks.

Incidentally, and without any wish to hurry the pitcher, nine months would seem to be almost time enough for the Salvation Army to get up a detailed report of the relief administered with the $607,412.

The proprietors of the Chicago ball clubs may seem to be gathering much credit for a small contribution, inasmuch as their teams will have to be paid anyway and the plant maintenance is taken care of in the regular overhead charge. Their out-of-pocket expense will not be very large, either.

But it happens that the White Sox and Cubs this year are opponents in a local rivalry which the proprietors, if they wish to save the showdown until the end of the season, could exploit for a big profit in a renewal of the old Chicago city series.

Baseball Teams Sacrifice Much
For Game.

When the prize fighters fight for charity they argue that a natural rivalry is goods on their shelves which they should not be asked to sell for less than the market price. Mr. Comiskey and Mr. Wrigley are donating, not only the clubs, the grounds and the cash expense, but a baseball "natural."

Unemployment is not local to Chicago, and a similar showdown between the Giants and the Yankees in New York, under similar conditions, might help. But charity prize fights would hardly relieve the situation, for it takes about $10 of spending to yield a quarter's worth of relief. If the public had enough money to buy that many prize fight tickets, there would be no need of charity.

Washington's Golfers Fail In P. G. A. Qualifying Test

Houghton and Diffenbaugh Stroke Away From Tie for Place as Baltimore Trio Wins Over Rain-Soaked Course.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 21.—All three places allotted to the Middle Atlantic section in the National Professional Golfers Association tournament were captured by Baltimore representatives today when Glenn and Cliff Spencer and Lawrence Wisner shot the low scores among 21 aspirants over the rain-soaked Five Farms course.

Glenn led with 149, Cliff was a stroke behind, but young Wisner added the unexpected touch by outscoring the veteran campaigners from this city and Washington, for the most part, who sought the position. His total was 156 and he just nosed out George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring, and Al Houghton, of Kenwood, who led the Washington contingent, each one stroke higher.

Wisner held up his game in the face of threatening disaster on the very last hole. He had romped through the rain in the morning with a surprising 76, but had taken 41 for the outgoing nine in the afternoon. On the return journey, he found trouble on the eleventh, going 2 over par, and he dropped another stroke on the short pitch which comprises No. 13. After a fine drive on the eighteenth, he pushed his approach into the rough. His recovery was fair, but a three-putted green would have meant a triple tie for the next position to the Spencers. His touch did not desert him, however, and he sank the second one to earn his place.

Glenn Spencer's irons were running true to the green for the most part, and enabled him to recover from difficulty encountered with tee shots that strayed rather often.

Cliff played steadily, drawing the applause of the gallery of some 25 spectators with a neatly played shot from the left trap at the seventeenth.

Glenn Spencer (Maryland Country Club), 75, 74—149.

Cliff Spencer (Hillsdale), 75, 75—150.

Larence Wisner (Suburban Club), 76, 80—156.

George Diffenbaugh (Indian Spring), 80, 77—157.

Al Houghton (Kenwood), 80, 77—157.

Ruth Pays Fan $10 For Home Run Ball

St. Louis, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth knocked a baseball out of Sportsman's Park today and then paid $10 to have the ball returned.

The home run was Ruth's 600th major league circuit wallop and he desired the ball for a souvenir. After completing his circuit of the bases he asked the announcer to announce that he would pay $10 for the ball.

ability to block opposing defensive players.

While there were others on the squad last year who matched Dashiell in speed, he had hardly an equal in the art of blocking, looked upon as one of the most important attributes of a football player under the Hilltop system of play. Coach Mills often expressed the hope of developing Dashiell into a first-rate varsity man for 1931.

Dashiell first attracted notice in Washington during the sandlot football season of 1929 when he performed in the backfield for the St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, against the Mohawks and Apaches of local fame. The tow-headed, fleet youngster, who braved the fiercest battle without aid of a helmet, gave a one-man show on occasions that made him a favorite with the crowds.

He was outstanding on the Marine elevens of 1928 and 1929.

in their half of the ninth when Hollis singled and went to third as Daligish sacrificed, but Britton fielded Roudabush' tap and Kriege, substitute fielder, grasped Homan's bid for a homer near the left field fence.

Halloran smashed wickedly past Edwards to score Herbert in the tenth, putting Cincinnati ahead, 6-5. But Washington came back with Edwards singling and Waple moving him up by grounding to third. Dewhurst was sent to run for Simons after he had walked. When Holbrook singled to left Edwards romped across with the tying marker again. Up stepped Bennie Schneider to win the game, with a well-placed poke and Dewhurst tallied.

Blonde Betty, playing at the top of the form that sent her through to the championship a year ago, was a pronounced favorite to win from Mrs. Whittingstall tomorrow and enter the finals.

Other results were as follows: Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Calif., and Dorothy Round, England, defeated Mrs. L. A. Harper, Oakland, Calif., and the Baroness' Levi, Italy, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2. Betty Nuthall and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, England, defeated Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., and Virginia Rice, Boston, 6—4, 6—2.

third set, the pressure applied by Vines and Gledhill became so great that both of their rivals yielded, Stoeffen breaking down in the fifth on three errors and Vines' sizzling drive to the baseline and Tidball in the seventh, when he and his partner overdrove the slashing angle shots that the opposition poured into the server's side of the court.

HURLS NO-HIT GAME.

"Gilly" Daniels hurled a no-hit, no-run game as the Rover A. C. defeated the Army War College tossers in a seven-inning game yesterday, 13-0. Daniels fanned twelve opposing batters, only two men reaching first base, one on an error and the other by virtue of a free pass.

Mat Show Monday Night; Fort Fights Delayed Week

YESTERDAY'S insistent downpour caused Matchmaker Joe Turner to postpone his scheduled match between Ray Steele and Tiny Roebuck, and its supporting card, to Monday night. A possible clash with Fort Washington's scheduled card of boxing bouts, also slated for Monday night, was averted when Capt. H. B. Turner, in charge of athletics at the fort, agreed to shift the date of the fights to the following Monday night, August 31.

The action of Capt. Turner was taken in deference to Turner's inability to secure the services of both Ray Steel and Dick Shikat, the co-headliner, after Monday night. Both wrestlers have bouts booked for Tuesday. The fort card was to be headed by an eight-round tussle between the aggressive Sailor Landers, of Norfolk, and Jimmy Tramberi, of Baltimore. The fort card will remain the same.

The card of wrestling matches will not be altered by the postponement, Turner said. It is made up of, besides the Steele-Roebuck encounter, the following exhibitions: Dick Shikat vs. Kola Kwariani, Doc Wilson vs. Vick Sock, Carl Pojello vs. Mike Romanoff, Chief White Feather vs. Tiger Nelson, and Dutch Green vs. George Romanoff.

CHURCH LOOP HITTERS LED BY DURYEE

Eldbrooke M. E. Ace Bats .452; Hodges Is Runner-up.

POUNDING out 24 hits in 53 trips to the plate for an average of .452 enabled Bill Duryee, former Business High School star, to lead the Georgetown Church League in batting during the past season. Duryee performed with the champion Eldbrooke M. E. nine.

A teammate, Thompson, finished two points behind Duryee, although H. Hodges, of West Washington Baptist, is the logical choice for runner-up with his mark of .445, as Thompson played in only seven games. Hodges was credited with making the greatest number of hits, 33.

Other leaders were: Stolen bases, Pizza, West Washington Baptist, 12; runs, H. Hodges, West Washington Baptist, and Schneider, Eldbrooke M. E., 17; leading pitcher, Freeman, won 5 and lost 0.

Capital City League Nines In 4 Title Frays Tomorrow

Ellipse Scene of Clashes Headed by Saks-Takoma and Olmsted-Miller Battles; Stewarts-Schwartz in Deciding Game.

TOMORROW is World Series day for followers of The Post's Capital City League, no less than four championship games being scheduled for the Ellipse grounds. The midget and senior titular series will open tomorrow, the Saks Clothiers and Takoma Tigers meet in the second game of their series for the unlimited title, and by sundown either Stewart's Pharmacy or the Schwartz Jewelers will be in possession of the 1931 junior crown.

The program tomorrow is comparable to a show under the "big tent" with the teams competing in the main ring. All of the teams that will play tomorrow have been drilling strenuously during the past week and should be on edge for the important games. By scheduling these games on the Ellipse Capital City League officials are accomplishing their objective of making it possible for all sandlot fans to view the various title contenders in action. This is particularly true of the Takoma Tigers who will be appearing for the first time this season within the limits of the city.

Tigers to Visit
Ellipse.

Heretofore the fans have been obliged to journey out to either Montgomery County during the regular schedule or Maryland University to see the champions in action. It will be the Ellipse fans' only chance to witness the Tigers, for the third game, if necessary, will be staged at Maryland U.

The big fellows will not have the stage entirely to themselves, however, as the highly touted Olmsted Grillmen will be meeting the Miller-Roamer aggregation at the same hour. With many observers predicting a victory for the furniture dealers the fray is likely to hold its own in vying with the unlimited clubs for the fans' attention.

After their ragged performance in the first two games of their series the Stewart's Pharmacy and Schwartz Jewelers are primed for the game which will give one of the two the junior championship of the league.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WATCH YOUR MUSSELS.

On the Pacific Coast it is contrary to law to eat mussels at certain seasons of the year. This law arose from an outbreak of mussel poisoning in which 102 persons were made sick and six died. The California State Board of Health watches the mussels grown in waters near San Francisco and informs the people when they can be gathered, marketed, and eaten; and when they are forbidden.

During the last four years there has been continuous study to discover why mussels become poisonous, and when at first it was thought that it might be due to feeding on sewage, it was proved that this was not the cause. Mussels in California do not live and grow in places where the water is polluted by sewage. In addition, mussel poisoning in human beings has none of the characteristics of a polluted water disease. Since mussels, oysters, clams and shellfish generally have the power of picking up and storing harmful chemicals, tests have been made to determine if the food was made poisonous by reason of hydrocyanic acid, oils and other chemicals. The evidence was negative.

The proof seems conclusive that the poison is generated by the fish. Most fish produce a small amount of poison and some are definitely poisonous to human beings. Most of the poison is carried in the skin as a rule.

Pacific Coast mussels and clams were found to carry a small dose of poison at all times, but the amount is far below the level where it is capable of harming human beings. It is at the spawning season that this poison accumulates in mussels until it reaches a concentration where the fish can no longer be eaten with safety. On that coast mussels spawn twice a year—once in winter and once in summer. In certain sections the spawning season is different.

Dr. K. F. Meyer says that an experienced person can pick a poisonous mussel by its appearance. The digestive organs are greenish in color, and either lighter or darker in shade than is a safe mussel. However, rather than follow this method all persons should be guided by the advice and the rules of the health department. Further research may discover a method of making mussels safe regardless of season, but the only proper plan is to follow the direction of the health department.

HEART ASTHMA.

Mrs. H. L. F. writes: My father, aged 56, is troubled with heart asthma. He suffers severe spells of coughing and choking.

1. Is there a cure for this?
2. Does the heart cause the asthma?
3. Are herb medicines advisable?
4. Would a change of climate be of much benefit?

REPLY.

1. The cure must be directed to the heart. If compensation is established the lung symptoms clear up.
2. Yes.
3. Digitalis, the sheet anchor, is an herb. At that, your question indicates that your father's case is not getting intelligent consideration.
4. He needs treatment. Change of climate is a possible but not probable part thereof.

PRIMROSES AND ECZEMA.

J. writes: Is it true that contact with the Chinese primrose will cause some people to have an eruption of the skin?

REPLY.

It is. Many cases of so-called eczema are due to contact with this or some other plant.

PROBABLY TOO LATE.

J. M. writes: I am 16 years old and have rickets. Do you think there is any chance of curing myself of this disease by taking cod liver oil?

REPLY.

Probably rickets has done you most of the harm it can. Stay in the sunlight as much as possible. Take cod liver oil or viosterol. Eat radiated foods.

ORANGE JUICE IN MORNING.

J. F. writes: I drink the juice from two oranges each morning. Could this possibly produce rheumatic pains in limbs and hips some days and slight stiffness? I am 60 and have no teeth of my own.

REPLY.

No

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Here's a beauty! The straight, youthful box-jacket gives this exclusive model a new distinction and tailored sports air with its rolled notched collar.

It adapts itself perfectly to the lovely thin woolen fabrics now so popular at fashionable rendezvous.

The accompanying slip-on dress hugs the figure beautifully through the hips.

It's very easily made! The saving in cost is enormous.

Style No. 619 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch material for jacket and skirt with 1½ yards of 39-inch material for waist.

It's stunning with the dress in printed crepe silk with plain harmonizing jacket.

Two shades of blue are also very effective in crepe silk.

Shantung, linen and cotton mesh are also suitable.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN LAST-HOUR SALES

Violent Slumps on Exchange Mark Trading; Leading Issues Lose.

New York, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—After slumbering through three extremely dull sessions the stock market was awakened by a rather violent spill today.

The market was extraordinarily inactive during the early hours, but began to slip downgrade with increasing acceleration after midday, winding up in a selling flurry during the last hour. Losses of 1 to 6 points appeared throughout the list at the finish. With the exception of Monday's abrupt slump, it was the sharpest decline of the month.

There was little in the day's news to account for the sudden decline, and brokerage circles generally attributed it to discouragement of the leaders of the recent bullish efforts over lack of decisive signs of an autumn upturn in business. Weekend profit-taking and bear selling appeared in some volume.

Last Hour Active.

Although the day's sales were only 1,312,078 shares, almost half of the turnover was in the last hour. Up to noon only 300,000 shares were transferred. Short covering caused a little upturn in the last few minutes. American Telephone, for instance, regaining 2 points of an extreme loss of 8, but in the main, final prices were not far from the day's lowest.

The price average of 90 shares lost nearly 2½ points, which reduced it to within a couple of points of the lowest level since the Hoover moratorium rally the third week in June. Market theorists watched with interest the average for 20 rails go down to within one-half of 1 point of the bear market low recorded on June 2. The recent bull campaign, launched a week ago last Tuesday, came when the rail average had come within a poin of the June lows.

Selling of the railway shares was in smaller volume than liquidation in other parts of the list today, but there was not let-up in the liquidation of railroad bonds, which continued to record new minimum levels. The bond market, after stiffening a little yesterday, showed rather pronounced heaviness.

Profit-Taking Appears.

Most of the recent bull favorites ran into considerable profit taking, even the oils, although both gasoline and crude oil prices continue to gain, and Wall street's rumor mills are again grinding out rather plausible stories of a merger of the Standards of New Jersey and California. Most of the Standard issues, however, slipped back a point or more.

U. S. Steel dropped 3¼ points, then recovered ½. Miscellaneous issues losing 2 points or more included American Can, Atchison, Bohn Aluminum, Case, Consolidated Gas, Eastman, General Asphalt, Houston Oil, Macy, Safeway Stores, Union Pacific, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Westinghouse.

Air Reduction lost 6, and Auburn, after dropping 7¾, recovered 3. General Motors, General Electric, Chrysler and Radio sagged about a point. Kreuger & Toll touched a new low.

Wage News Has Effect.

A rather bearish influence was a financial news ticker discussion of the prospect of a wage reduction in the steel industry, which stressed the fact that some steel executives do not look for much in the way of an autumn recovery. Reports from the motor trade also generally indicated expectations of low production pending new model introductions around November 1.

Foreign exchanges generally were firm. The Argentine peso, recent soft spot, pushed up moderately on reports that foreign banks had agreed to ease any currency stringency that may result from Argentina's paying off its $50,000,000 loan here maturing in the autumn. Sterling recovered ⅛ of a cent to $4.86 for cables, and the Dutch florin pushed up to a new high for the year.

Commodities moved narrowly. Wheat was firm for a time in sympathy with Liverpool, then lost virtually all of its gain. News of an exchange of Farm Board wheat for Brazilian coffee came too late to influence the market.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 21 (A.P.).—Topsy-turvy action of the corn market had a bearish effect on all cereals today, and September corn outmatched the season's bottom price record. Liquidating sales of September corn resulted from fading away of cash demand and from execution of stop loss orders. Definite announcement that 25,000,000 bushels of United States Government financed wheat would be exchanged for 1,050,000 bags of Brazilian coffee came too late to be a factor in today's wheat market.

Corn closed nervous ¼ to ⅞ cents lower, wheat ⅛ to ⅜ off, oats at ⅛ decline to ⅛ advance, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents setback.

Weakness in corn developed after an early show of strength that was a reflection of transient wheat price upturns. On the downward swing of corn, September suffered a fresh tumble of 1⅛ cents, and reached as low as 42 cents a bushel. The spread between September and December narrowed quickly, and a majority of pit traders took to the selling side of September. Little power to rally was shown, and the finish was at about the day's lowest figures, influenced partly by good rains in the Ohio Valley and by showers in the West.

Much of the relative firmness of wheat was associated with a report by the Canadian Growers' pool suggesting that 8,400,000 acres of the 23,178,000 acres of wheat seeded this spring in Canada had been abandoned. Further reports of unfavorable weather in Europe were also at hand. Besides, statements were current that Russian wheat shipments apthat Russia wheat shipments appeared likely to diminish rather than increase when the spring crop consitituting the bulk of Russian wheat production was harvested, the spring wheat outlook being less promising. Reports that in the American and Canadian Northwest more wheat has been cut for hay this season than during any previous drought year were ascribed to low prices which have made harvesting with combines unprofitable in fields yielding under 6 bushels an acre.

Scantiness of receipts upheld oats.

LIFE POLICY SALES DROP IN DISTRICT

Insurance Taken Is Less Throughout Nation; Pacific States' Loss Higher.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Life insurance sales in the District of Columbia in July were 7 per cent below those of the month a year ago, the monthly survey of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn., made public yesterday, reveals. With the exception of Massachusetts, sales in which equaled those of July 1930, sales of all States and Territories were behind those of the month last year.

Life insurance sales in the District last month aggregated $5,817,000 in value, and 37 per cent of the companies doing business here reported gains for the month. The bureau's survey deals with new paid-for ordinary insurance and the 76 companies whose statistics are included in this report had 88 per cent of the total legal reserve ordinary life insurance outstanding in the United States on January 1, 1930.

Volume of ordinary life insurance sold in the United States during the first seven months of 1931 was 16 per cent below sales of the same period last year. This general loss, although more severe in some sections, was experienced by every State in the country. The States on the Eastern seacoast have had the best experience in life insurance sales during 1931.

New England Status.

The New England States have suffered the least and show a loss of only 6 er cent for the seven months. The loss in sales, while less severe in the East, is now being strongly felt in the West. The three Pacific States, which at the end of seven months of 1930 lead all sections of the country with gains in sales, during 1931 have experienced greater losses than the average for the United States as a whole. During 1931, the largest decreases in sales were in those States which suffered most from the severe drought in the spring.

Telephone operating revenues of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for July amounted to $737,453, the report of operations just filed with the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia shows. The total operating income, after deducting taxes and uncollectible, was $189,389.

Telephone operating revenues for the seven months ended July 31 totaled $5,357,589, as compared with $5,036,880 for the same period last year. Total operating income after deducting taxes and uncollectible for the first seven months of this year was $1,324,065, as compared with $974,323 for a similar period in 1930.

Balance of Income.

Balance net income in July was $168,750 while that for the seven months ended July 31 amounted to $1,058,559, as compared with $720,520 for the first seven months of last year. Taxes in July were $57,113 as compared with $42,979 for the same month last year. Taxes for the first seven months of this year were $391,057, an increase of $61,853 over a similar period in 1930.

Capital expenditures for new plant and equipment added to the company's system in the District of Columbia for the seven months ended July 31 totals $1,222,633. Gross retirements during this period were $763,392, making net additions $459,241. Net additions to plant for the twelve months ended July 31 were $858,678.

There were 172,762 telephones served from Washington switchboards at the close of business July 31, 4,282 having been added to the system since January 1. Telephone users made 17,950,000 calls during the month, which was an increase of 10.4 per cent over those made in July of last year.

Winners at Outing.

Winners in the District of Columbia Underwriters Association's outing at Congressional Country Club Thursday, were announced yesterday.

The championship of the golf tournament was won by James A. Maloney with a low gross score of 79. Others to whom prizes were given were J. H. Baldwin, with the low net score of 74; J. S. Baldwin, 77; G. T. Howard, 80; G. L. Stabler, 82; R. Earl Gawthrop, 86; Carl F. Mayer, 89; George Clendeniel, consolation prize at 157, and L. A. Sapp, second consolation prize with the highest stroke total for any one hole—12.

At bridge, Mrs. Joseph Baldwin won the ladies' first prize, Paul Sleeper won the second prize, Mrs. Karl Hoffman another prize, and Karl Hoffman consolation prize.

John Dolph was chairman of the golf committee and the hostesses were Mrs. J. Alan Mathis and Mrs. Paul Sleeper.

TRACTION COMPANY SUBMITS SCHEDULE REVISION PROPOSAL

Saving of $100 Daily Is Seen by Street Car Officials Under New Plan.

DISCHARGE OF NINE MEN TO RESULT FROM MOVE

Less Frequent Service Will Be Given at Dull Hours on Certain Lines.

A detailed explanation of the Capital Traction Co.'s proposed schedule revision, intended to effect a saving of approximately $100 a day, was filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. The utilities body had been unable to act on the proposal heretofore because of incomplete data.

The schedule, which becomes effective Sunday, reduces the number of trips on Fourteenth street, the New Jersey avenue line and the Florida avenue line. It also will bring about the discharge of nine men, eight of whom are said to have been employed two months or less, and trainmen will be given a holiday once in every seven days instead of once in every eight days as heretofore.

Taxi Cut Not Considered.

"The new schedules were under consideration before the recent reduction in taxicab rates," the Capital Traction Co. states, "and all service changes were based on traffic counts made prior to that time and take no consideration whatever of any losses since."

The new schedule on the Fourteenth street and the Navy Yard divisions "provide some operating economies without affecting the quality of the service rendered," the statement adds. The service on these routes will be continually checked, it is said, and additional trips will be added when necessary.

One southbound trip and eight northbound trips are to be cut from the Fourteenth street line for every 24 hours. The new schedule provides for 483 trips a day in each direction, exclusive of owl service.

Excess Service Disclosed.

Traffic counts made in June disclosed an excess service between 7 and 10 a. m. and 3 and 9 p. m., the traction company explained, between Rock Creek loop and the Bureau of Standards. Changes were made so that a portion of this excess will return to the Navy Yard from Rock Creek loop instead of the Bureau of Standards. No changes are to be made in the thorough service on Connecticut avenue to or beyond Chevy Chase Circle.

On the New Jersey avenue line nine trips out of 182 are to be taken off, eight of these between 3 and 10 p. m. On the Florida avenue line one trip in each hour between 2 and 6 p. m. is to be dropped, and the service between 6:15 and 7:30 p. m. is to be placed on a 7½-minute headway instead of a 6-minute headway.

Speeding up of the street cars during the early morning and at night, when traffic is at a minimum, is promised under the new schedule. The nine men to be dropped will be recalled when vacancies occur, the company said.

Boy, Railroad-Bound, Missing.

Albert McCarthy, 13 years old, was reported missing yesterday from his home at 720 E street northeast. His mother, Mrs. Margaret McCarthy, said that she learned from his playmates that Albert set out for a freight yard Thursday morning with the intention of "going some place." He had $2 in his pockets.

U. S. to Wage War on Illegal Punt Gun, Conserving Small Supply of Wild Game

It takes several men to lift this gun, captured on the Potomac River by agents of the Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture. Guns such as this are used by poachers at night.

Wholesale Slaughter of Ducks and Geese to Bring Action.

Weapon Is Smuggled Into This Country; Many Confiscated.

One of the problems the Government will have to face this fall in protecting its already extremely short supply of wild duck and geese, is the use of the illegal "Punt" gun, a so-called shotgun having the dimensions of a cannon. Sportsmen of the tidewater section of the East who like to commercialize their hobby, have a bad habit of creeping up on a flock of ducks of geese at night with this large gun mounted on a skiff, and discharging it into their midst. More than 95 birds have been felled at one shot.

The gun, which usually weighs about 80 pounds, requires several men to lift it. Government officials describe it as a muzzle-loading weapon having a 1-inch to a 1¾-inch bore. The charge is usually a pound of shot and one-half pound of black powder. The explosion is caused in the same manner as the old muzzle-loading shotgun.

Ever since man has known the use of firearms he has had some sort of punt gun, although it has been a little-known and little-used weapon. The migratory bird treaty act of 1918 made its use illegal in this country. But most European countries still allow their birds to be killed in this manner. That means that the American "game bootleggers" use those countries as a shop where the guns may be purchased. The barrel only is smuggled into this country, the stock being very simple to devise in any workshop.

A number of these guns are captured by agents of the United States Biological Survey every year. But this year it will be more necessary than ever to suppress this wide destruction. The drought in the breeding grounds of the Northwest has so reduced the number of duck and geese that the Government has amended the migratory bird regulations so as to shorten the length of the open season 15 days on ducks, geese (including brant), coots and jacksnipe.

SALARY WRITS TRAIL BESET CIRCUS TRAIN

Indianapolis Threat Today Seen as Last Barrier on Oklahoma Flight.

Running a legal gantlet across the land, the 101 Ranch Wild West Show train this morning has one more barrier to pass before it arrives safe and unattached in Oklahoma.

H. L. McCormick, one of counsel for the show's 400 unpaid employes, last night made known elaborate plans to stop the train, fleeing service of attachment writs, in Indianapolis, Ind.

He said the Actors' Equity Association had been requested to make bond for the employes at that point. A number of the show troupe are members of the association. Should it comply with the request, he feels positive the show can be attached there and sold to satisfy salary claims.

Last night the show train was on a siding in the Pittsburgh, Pa., stock yards, where live stock was being watered and fed, the local office of the Pennsylvania Railroad informed The Post.

Although the train was expected to pull from the siding at any minute, railroad officials said it would be impossible to say when it would reach Indianapolis, as no schedule of movement was being followed.

Efforts were made to tie up the circus at Harrisburg, Pa., and Newark, Ohio, yesterday, but lack of bond apparently defeated the project.

The fact that Judge Oscar T. Poore quashed attachments on the show property at Tuxedo, Md., does not free the company of claims for $10,000 salary represented by the writs, Mr. McCormick said.

Hearing on these is scheduled for August 28. The lawyer declared he will ask Judge Poore to reverse himself on his ruling to quash, early next week. He admitted no practical benefit would result from such a reversal, since the circus has moved, but added it would give considerable "personal satisfaction."

He said he had dug up legal precedent showing the basis on which Judge Poore quashed the attachment at fault.

Union Hero Tells Of Capital in 1861

Boy, 19, Saw Pigs Wallow Along Pennsylvania Avenue in Mud.

How the City of Washington appeared to a lad of 19 70 years ago was graphically told by Charles F. Hopkins, a guest at the Dodge Hotel. "The Capitol was unfinished, as the dome had not been completed. Shanties lined the upper end of Pennsylvania avenue, and it was a mire of mud in which one frequently came across pigs wallowing," he said.

Mr. Hopkins enlisted in the Army early in the war and he came here as a young soldier of the First New Jersey Infantry. "We marched across the Long Bridge and camped in front of the Treasury. There was a structure on Pennsylvania avenue, called the Soldiers' Rest, where food was dispensed to us. It was a rough frame building, containing four long tables, past which we filed, taking bread, with no butter, and receiving a cup of lukewarm coffee," he recalls.

Mr. Hopkins saw service throughout the war, taking part in many engagement, among others those at first Bull Run, Mechanicsville, Gaines Mills and the Wilderness. For saving his sergeant's life in the engagement at Gaines Mills, Mr. Hopkins was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for "an act of bravery outside the line of duty." However, it was not until 30 years later that Mr. Hopkins actually received the medal, in 1892.

Gambling Raid Nets Three.

David Pelot, 33, was charged with permitting gaming and two other men were booked as Government witnesses yesterday in a raid at 1830 Fourteenth street northwest led by Sergt. R. A. Johnson. Pelot lives at 823 Quackenbos street northwest.

Driver Is Exonerated In Death of Garrison

Charges of manslaughter against John Morris, of Clarendon, as a result of an automobile accident in which Thomas Garrison, 70 years old, also of Clarendon, was instantly killed Friday night a week ago, were dismissed yesterday by Judge Harry R. Thomas in the Arlington County police court.

Morris, an employe of the Virginia Public Service Co., was the only defense witness. He testified that he was driving the car along Garrison road, in Clarendon, at about 30 miles an hour, when he struck Mr. Garrison and Mrs. Sarah Dewey. Morris declared that the lights of an approaching automobile blinded him. Mrs. Dewey, 71 years old, who is in the Georgetown Hospital, is reported to be in a critical condition. She suffered the loss of her left arm in the accident.

Blade-Eater Awes Judge; Beats Term

But Alexander Smith Is Sent to Gallinger for Observation.

Alexander Smith's self-claimed ability to digest broken glass, razor blades and other sharp articles got him out of a charge of drunkenness in Police Court yesterday, but now he is in Gallinger Hospital for examination.

The colored man faced Judge Gus A. Schuldt on a drunkenness charge.

"Aw, I wasn't drunk, judge," pleaded Alexander. "The officer's just mad because I tricked him."

"See that glass? I can drink the water and eat the glass!"

The judge cautiously moved his water glass away from the prisoner's reach.

"Were you on the stage?" the judge asked him.

"Yes, sir. I did 50 dance steps on broken glass and razor blades, then ate them both. I'm tough."

Judge Schuldt decided he had better go to Gallinger for a few days.

RAY H. ARNOLD DIES; ONCE BROKER HERE

Death at 51 in Los Angeles Ends Sensational Battle to Get Divorce.

Word of the death of Ray H. Arnold, millionaire real estate and investment broker, formerly of this city, whose marital troubles have figured in New York and Nevada courts for the past three years, in Los Angeles, Calif., was received here yesterday. He was 51.

With his death one of the most sensational divorce cases in recent years was closed. Only a week ago Mr. Arnold brought a new suit for divorce in Reno against his wife, Mrs. Bessie Sturm Arnold, whom he sought in vain to divorce in New York in 1929. While in Washington the couple lived at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Neither was granted a divorce when the New York jury disagreed. While the case was pending, Mrs. Arnold was said to have received $3,333.33 a month alimony. Mr. Arnold managed an investment office on H street northwest when the two lived in Washington.

Death came to Mr. Arnold three days after his arrival from Reno. He was president of Income Properties Corporation and Arnold & Co. Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, William, and two daughters, Raybella, of New York, and Mrs. Howard Monks, of Los Angeles.

Night Chute Jump Planned at Airport

Air Fireworks to Follow Leap at Washington-Hoover Field.

The count of ten will be as significant to Harold Annas, of Suffolk, Va., at 9 o'clock tonight as it has ever been to an aspirant for honors in the squared circle. At that time Annas expects to be plunging toward the ground from a Ludington Line plane circling above Washington-Hoover Airport and hoping that his parachute will open as he pulls the ring.

This will be the first time that a night exhibition parachute jump has been attempted in Washington and one of the few times a chute has been used at night except as some flier joined the famous "Caterpillar Club." Following Annas' sensational leap, George Pomeroy, pilot of the ship from which he will jump, will give a demonstration of aerial fireworks.

The event has been arranged to focus attention on night-flying activities at the airport and will be followed by regular passenger-carrying flights.

WOMAN DRAWS GUN AFTER AUTOS CRASH; ROUTS OTHER DRIVER

Threatens Hyattsville Man, Then She and Male Companion Speed Away.

FLORIDA LICENSE TAG TRACED TO MIAMIAN

Neither Machine Is Heavily Damaged in Collision on P Street.

Florida authorities have been asked to assist District police in identifying the well-dressed woman who yesterday drew a gun and threatened to kill a motorist after a collision at Fifteenth and P streets northwest.

The woman forced Arthur McDermott, 26 years old, of Hyattsville, Md., the driver of the other car, to get back into his automobile. The second car, in which the woman was riding with a man, then sped north on Sixteenth street.

The tags on the car, according to police advices from Florida are listed to a man giving Miami as his home.

The argument that preceded the display of the gun, took place in front of 1518 P street. McDermott, who conducts a garage in the rear of that address, was driving to it when his automobile was sideswiped. Neither car was badly damaged. The man, who drove the Florida car, according to McDermott, cursed him.

The two men got from the cars and advanced toward each other when the woman jumped from the automobile and flashed a gun which she had hidden under a fur neckpiece.

The woman pressed the gun against McDermott, according to police, and said: "Beat it, or I'll blow your — — brains out." McDermott said he saw the hammer of the pistol drawn back and he withdrew. The couple then sped away.

Expert Retained By Planning Body

William J. Heiser to Aid in Study of Capital's Railroad Yards.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday retained William J. Heiser, New York railroad expert, to assist in a general railroad study, one of the aims of which will be construction of overhead bridges across the yards north of Union Station.

The practicability of placing railline facilities in the Buzzard's Point area, between the Army War College and the Navy Yard, was the subject of a study undertaken by Capt. E. N. Chisholm, jr., the commission's engineer, and railroad officials, and which was completed yesterday. Development of the Buzzard's Point area into a commercial section is one of the park commission's objectives.

Already the commission has conducted an investigation of parking and garage problems in the business district under the act of Congress by which it is authorized. Future water and sewer facilities in the Capital, as well as railroad accommodations, also are being worked out.

Police Pistol Team Goes To Camp Perry Matches

The pistol team of the Police Department left yesterday for Camp Perry, Ohio, to attnd the school of instruction of the National Rifle Association, and to participate in rifle and pistol matches. Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer and Maj. [illegible] G. Pratt bade farewell to the team.

team is captained by Lieut. Harvey G. Callahan, head of the police school. Those on the team are M. J. Bridges, G. M. Stewart, H. E. Brodie, E. L. Warden, R. L. Decker, S. R. McKee, G. R. Waldrodt, W. M. McEwan, P. G. Alter, B. F. Bean, K. G. McCormick, A. Richitt and J. R. Birch. A. C. Poulson is the team coach.

Alleged Bootlegger's Car Loses Policeman in Chase

Upper Connecticut Avenue Scene of Thrilling Pursuit After Patrolman Seeks to Warn Driver of High Speed on Bridge; Arrest Looming.

To the accompaniment of screaming women, grinding brakes, automobile horns and a whining siren, a high-powered sedan led Private A. G. Keene's small police roadster a scorching 60-mile-an-hour chase on upper Connecticut avenue last night, but escaping, after the policeman had identified its driver as a reputed bootlegger.

What probably would have been a serious accident was narrowly averted at the intersection of Calvert street when the fleeing machine spun completely around to avoid a passing auto and renewed the flight in the opposite direction.

The pursuit opened on Klingle Bridge when Keene drew up alongside the big car to tell its driver that he was exceeding the 15-mile speed limit and the machine had no taillight. Noticing that the policeman had recognized him, the driver, who was accompanied by another man, screeched the tranamission into second gear and was off.

The sedan turned south into Connecticut avenue and went through red lights at Woodley road and Cathedral avenue only seconds apart. At Calvert street the route reversed itself when the big car skidded on the wet pavement and came to a stop facing north.

Keene, following close behind, almost cracked up here, but turned around sharply and kept on the trail, although he lost considerable ground. At Albemarle street the gap between the machines had widened so much that the Fourteenth Precinct policeman was forced to give up.

A lookout for the car was broadcast and an arrest is expected momentarily.

DIAMOND BRACELET HELD STILL MISSING

Servants Deny Recovery of Schoellkopf Jewels Worth $10,000.

First reported missing last Wednesday, then on Thursday reported found again, a $10,000 diamond bracelet belonging to Mrs. Walter Schoellkopf, wife of an American diplomat, yesterday was said to be still mysteriously gone from her home at 2700 Macomb street northwest.

After reporting to police that the jewel had been stolen and offering a reward of $500 for its recovery, Mrs. Schoellkopf left Washington for a visit to New York City.

Shortly after her arrival there Thursday, police here were notified by a telegram said to have come from Mrs. Schoellkopf, that she remembered leaving the bracelet in a wall safe of her home.

Although police declared a detective was immediately dispatched to make sure the valuable trinket had been found, servants at the Schoellkopf home yesterday said no one had been there and they had received no word from their mistress regarding the whereabouts of the bracelet. It disappeared last Wednesday, they said, and is still missing.

Swim Carnival Today At McKinley Pool

A water carnival will be held at McKinley High School swimming pool at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Life saving methods will be demonstrated by Ira Lee Law, director of instruction of the District Red Cross Chapter life saving service.

Law will be aided by three of his assistants and Miss Adeline Kuenzel, in addition to twenty expert swimmers of the special life savers exhibition corps.

Purpose of the water show will be to create interest in swimming and to educate the public in water safety. Starting the program there will be a short demonstration of teaching. Standard strokes in swimming, including the side stroke, breast crawl, the crawl and the racing back stroke will be demonstrated.

Car Driver Fined For Striking Man

Police Court Case Taken as Autoists' Warning on Pedestrians.

Motorists who fail to give right of way to pedestrians at intersections not controlled by traffic lights or policemen were virtually served notice yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon, in Police Court, that they could expect little clemency in event they are haled before him.

Judge McMahon only the day before threw consternation into ranks of police emergency car and ambulance drivers when he ruled that they did not have any right under the present code to exceed speed regulations no matter on what errand they might be.

He fined Harmon E. Rucker $75 for striking George W. Summers at Connecticut avenue and R street, where Summers was crossing the street afoot. Rucker was charged with failing to give right of way to a pedestrian.

Driver in Crash Accused Of Fleeing From Scene

Charges of leaving the scene of an accident without making his identity known, illegal possession of 18½ gallons of whisky and driving without a permit were placed against Thomas James Robinson, colored, after he allegedly collided with a parked car yesterday. He said he is 32 and lives at 121 F street southwest.

According to police, Robinson got out and ran after the car he was operating struck the car of Earl S. Place, 3023 Fourteenth street northwest, near Delaware avenue and Canal street southwest. He was caught in the basement of a corner house by Policeman W. P. Als.

DR. MORGAN CHOSEN GEORGETOWN DEAN

University Directors Make Him Head of School of Medicine.

The election of Dr. William Gerry Morgan as dean of the school of medicine of Georgetown University was announced yesterday following a meeting of the university directors with President W. Coleman Nevils.

In accepting the position, Dr. Morgan also will continue to serve as a regent of the university. Dr. Nevils also announced that two other vacancies on the board of regents had been filled by the Rev. John L. McLaughlin and the Rev. Francis J. Lucy, both members of the faculty.

The Rev. Father McLaughlin, in addition to being regent, has a newly created position as dean of the faculty of the college of arts and sciences and dean and regent of the graduate school of arts and sciences. He has just completed a two-year course in theology, with the degree of doctor of canon law, at the Gregorian University in Rome, founded in 1554 as the first Jesuit college.

His assistant is Rev. Vincent Hart, newly arrived from Woodstock College in Maryland, who has been made dean of the college of arts and sciences.

The other new regent, the Rev. Father Lucy, will represent the law school on the board. He has been professor of legal ethics on its faculty for several years and professor of philosophy at the college.

President Nevils, in announcing the election of Dr. Morgan, congratulated the medical school on having as its new dean a man who has become distinguished in his profession and has been identified for nearly 25 years as a member of the medical faculty at Georgetown. As dean of medicine, Dr. Morgan succeeds the late Dr. John A. Foote, who died last spring after serving two years as dean.

Parking Space Offers By Hotels Are Probed

The Better Business Bureau is investigating offers by local hotels to prospective guests to provide free parking space. It is charged that in some cases the free parking is nothing more than space on the streets.

The bureau sent a circular letter to hotels advising that an investigation is being made and that this condition has been found in several cases, and warning that if they advertise this priviledge, parking space should be provided in addition to street space. Further investigation will be made soon to determine if the suggestions have been carried out.

Attempt at Escape Wins Heavy Guard

Colored Man Who Leaped From Window Is Held on $5,000 Bond.

With a bevy of deputy United States marshals and policemen acting as special guard, Warren Dixon, colored, was taken to Police Court yesterday for arraignment on a charge of robbery. Reason for Dixon's escort was that on the preceding day he had jumped from a window in the Traffic Bureau and was recaptured only after Policeman J. A. Voss had leaped through the window after him and suffered two broken legs. The prisoner was ordered held under $5,000 bond for action of the grand jury.

The man was charged with having snatched $235 from Lewis R. Meredith, 1434 Harvard street northwest, while Meredith was approaching a teller's window in a Seventh street bank.

Dixon fled from the bank with the money, but was caught by Policeman Voss, who took him to the Traffic Bureau, to which Voss is attached. While the man was undergoing questioning there he leaped through a window and attempted to escape. Detective Sergt. Richard Cox caught the fleeing man after a short chase. Voss is in a hospital.

TRAFFIC IMPERILED AS AUTOS SKID ON SLIPPERY STREETS

Man Killed in Virginia When Car Leaves Road in Rainstorm.

TWO DRIVERS HELD AFTER ACCIDENTS

Motorman Reported Taken on Attempt to Flee Crash Scene.

With streets and highways made perilous to traffic by 1.09 inches of rain yesterday, several accidents in and near Washington were reported. A colored man was fatally injured when the automobile he was driving skidded from the Washington-Alexandria highway and crashed into a railroad embankment.

Thirty minutes after he was brought to Alexandria Hospital last night, a colored man tentatively identified as Julius Jackson, of South Washington, Va., died of injuries received when his car left the road near Virginia Highlands and he was thrown out.

The victim was taken to the hospital by Mr. and Mrs. Levi Jackson, colored, who found him in the road. He was about 30 years old. In his pockets were two postcards addressed to Julius Jackson, South Washington, Va.

Motorman Faces Probe.

Joseph Earle Rigdon, 35-year-old street car motorman, of 919 North Carolina avenue northeast, was booked for investigation as the result of an accident early yesterday on Burns street southeast, in which Miss Betty Kennedy suffered lacerations to the scalp and bruises. He is said to have attempted to escape on foot after the collision.

Miss Kennedy was with Julius D. Westcott when their car was struck by Rigdon's, according to police. Charles Waple, of Bladensburg Heights, Md., caught Rigdon when he attempted to get away, police said. Westcott, who is 38, and the woman gave 1327 Tenth street northwest, as their address.

Mrs. Anice L. Bayne, 74, 1325 Maple View place southeast, was seriously injured late yesterday when the auto in which she was a passenger skidded and overturned on the Lee highway near Bull Run Postoffice, Va. Mrs. N. H. Griswold, of the same address, also in the car, received minor hurts.

Taken to Hospital Here.

They were taken to Emergency Hospital by John G. Linthicum. Mrs. Bayne was treated for possible fractures of the pelvis and spine and internal injuries.

Neither woman was able to explain how the accident occurred, Mr. Linthicum said. He is a contractor and lives at 3715 Thirtieth street northeast.

A fire plug was broken off and an electric light pole struck yesterday by the skidding pumper of No. 28 Engine Company, which was speeding to an alarm. The accident occurred near Thirty-seventh street and Wisconsin avenue. Sliding on the slippery car tracks, the pumper first leveled the plug and then crashed into the pole, tilting it to a 45 degree angle. No one was hurt.

Virginia Driver Is Held.

William Pallas, 51, of Chain Bridge Heights, Va., was charged with driving while intoxicated last night after the sedan he was operating collided with a car parked near Fifth and N streets northwest and owned by Samuel Sturdvent, colored, 115½ P street northwest.

N. L. Brown, a Philadelphia salesman, suffered lacerations of the head, arms and shoulders, and a wrenched shoulder yesterday when his auto skidded and overturned on Baltimore boulevard near Berwyn, Md. Two hitch-hikers he had picked up on his way to Washington disappeared after the accident, Mr. Brown said. It is thought they were uninjured. The auto was wrecked.

Burglar Scare Menaces Investigating Policemen

Observant neighbors nearly caused a gun battle between policemen last night in a vacant house at 118 U street northwest. Private J. F. McWhirt had gone to the house to investigate a telephoned report that a light had been seen inside. Some one saw the glare of his flashlight and notified police headquarters.

Two radio cars sped to the scene. McWhirt was there to receive them. In the attendant confusion the original culprit—if there was one—got away.

Two 30-Day Sentences Imposed in Liquor Case

Henry Alton Hudson, 24 years old, was given two concurrent 30-day sentences yesterday when he was arraigned in Police Court before Judge Robert E. Mattingly on charges of sale and possession.

Police testified they had seized several bottles of home brew beer and a half gallon of liquor when they raided Hudson's place Wednesday. According to police testimony, Hudson told them he had only been in business for a week.

Car Stolen From Showroom.

Nicholas E. Bombard reported to police yesterday that the Capital Motor Co. salesrooms at 1339 Ninth street northwest were broken into the previous night and a roadster stolen. Its value was placed at $375.

Couple Seized in Liquor Raid.

Thomas Salter, 23, and his wife, Catherine, 25, were arrested and charged with illegal possession of less than one gallon of whisky yesterday afternoon when police raided their apartment at 308 F street northwest.

Giant Redwoods Sprouting On Capital's Dump Heaps

Unbeknownst to the Park and Planning Commission, and without expert advice of Government horticulturists, a California giant redwood forest was planted on the south bank of the Potomac yesterday.

As a matter of fact the little landscape gardening exploit, which one of these days may blossom into giant trees or nothing at all, was carried through entirely by the city's refuse department.

Last night they were in the woods about how it all happened. One man in Washington, however, knew, to his sorrow.

He was the proprietor of Schmid's Emporium of Pets at 712 Twelfth street northwest. Careless employes threw into the trash 50 redwood tree buds he brought here from the Coast to sell.

Presumably they are several inches below the surface of the city dump, and sprouting fast. Great oaks from little acorns grow, and some redwood trees, beginning as a knot of wood, grow 300 feet high and 20 feet in diameter.

Firemen and Police Free Boy, 6, Locked in Bathroom

Donald Wolf, 6 years old, brought out the fire engines and police cars to his home at 5001 Massachusetts avenue northwest yesterday, but he couldn't see them run. And then they put up a ladder to the second story of his house and brought him down it, but still he didn't appreciate it.

Donald, according to the story told by his mother, walked into the bathroom on the second floor yesterday. Being at an inquisitive age, he turned a key in the door, just to see what would happen. He found out when he tried to open the door and couldn't. He called his mother, alone in the house, who in turn called in the fire and police forces.

No. 11 Engine was among those responding. Children in bathrooms were no problem to them. Up went a ladder, and up the ladder went a fireman. Up went the bathroom window, and down came Donald. "He was just a little scared," the firemen admitted.
